About the Author

My name is Anna Haller and I’m a graduating Graphic Communication student with a concentration in Management. I am from Danville California and have loved becoming involved within Cal Poly through different clubs and organizations. At Cal Poly I have been involved in my sorority Delta Gamma, Cal Poly Choirs, the American Marketing Association, and the Women in Business organization. I’m so grateful to the Graphic Communication community for challenging me and inspiring me to make an impact at Cal Poly. After Graduation I am planning on working in Marketing Operations at a tech company!
Abstract

The focus for my GRC 462 Senior project is to dive into my role as Director of Marketing for the annual Women In Business conference. As the Director of Marketing for the event my goal is to develop visual branding and an event identity, develop a digital marketing strategy, create marketing collateral, and present promotional marketing to increase event sign ups. My role also includes managing a marketing creative team as well as marketing strategy team. I will also discuss how the branding and marketing initiatives reflect the Women In Business community values and add to the conference experience.
Problem Statement

Cal Poly’s Women In Business annual Defining Her Future: A Young Professionals Conference is an event with the mission to provide an opportunity for Cal Poly students campus-wide to connect, learn, and grow as leaders together. The Defining Her Future Conference is WEB’s largest event of the year and also is the largest student-run event on Cal Poly’s campus. DHF brings in around 500 attendees annually. In the past the branding has followed a similar theme of neutral coloring leaning towards a feminine style. An additional goal would be to create branding that is unique, gender neutral, and bright and colorful staying away from previously used colors and themes. This project is the perfect opportunity to combine my love of branding and marketing to present the conference to attendees and market it efficiently. This project will allow me to grow my marketing skills, leadership skills, and I will learn how to work creatively and establish branding.
Project Scope and Objectives

Marketing Skills
1. This project will allow me to understand how social media marketing works and how to effectively market an event.
2. This project will allow me to gain experience developing marketing collateral for event attendees.

Leadership Skills
1. This project will allow me to gain experience in a leadership role as head of marketing. I will learn how to manage a team, work with others, and ensure all deadlines are complete.
2. This project will allow me to utilize new software to manage the team.

Brand Marketing Skills
1. This project will allow me to understand how to create branding and how to create a brand identity for an event.
2. This project will allow me to creatively think outside of the box and allow the conference’s goals and mission to be reflected in the branding.

Project Execution

Phase 1: Background Research
In depth research was done before planning with the tram on inclusive branding, marketing, social media strategy and more. In addition to this drawing from my GRC courses including GRC 361 on developing marketing campaigns and project management.

Phase 2: Brand Guidelines
Before we began planning our event collateral and digital marketing strategy we worked as a team to establish brand guidelines. We worked over the course of a week to create the logo, typography, colors, and assets.

Phase 3: Social Media Assets
Once our branding was established the documents were shared with the team to begin the social media posts. This phase included developing a content calendar, content strategy, and the creation of the posts for Instagram.
Project Execution

Phase 4: Marketing Collateral
Maintaining a consistent brand identity was important to me and when working to develop our printed marketing collateral I wanted it to be adjacent to our social media with the same images, coloring, and theme. We developed a tote bag, stickers, T shirt, Tumblr, and Notebook that would effectively promote the event to attendees.

Phase 5: Promotional Items
The last step was developing a promotional strategy for the event. This included classroom presentations, high social media reach, and flyers to place around campus.

Future Improvements

For taking on a project similar to this one in the future I would like to improve the consistency of our printed collateral. While our tote bags and many of our designs included the event title reflecting I believe it’s important that every design included the event title, year, and the Women and Business organization name. I realized this when viewing the stickers in person and I think the best way to increase event awareness would be to include all the info on our collateral so when people are carrying around the tote bags or stickers it is clearly prompting the event for the future!
Project Successes

After completing the project I feel immensely grateful for the opportunity to take on a leadership role for a club that has impacted my college experience so profoundly. It was mainly to lead this event with Conference Director Briana Gallo and Head of Logistics Simone Pucher. A HUGE thank you to the Marketing team leads, Flannery Connor and Eshika Jain, for all their support! This event would not be possible without our talented and dedicated DHF Marketing team: Kathleen Lotton, Jacquelyn Wong, Naomi Baron, Smera Doshi, Nicolette Tramm, Ariel Avital, Tina Zeng, Lubnaa Alim, and Michaela Stauber.

I learned so much through this project and it was amazing to take my learning from my GRC courses into the real world and it was so rewarding seeing all the positive feedback from conference attendees! Seeing everything come together on the day of was such a rewarding experience. I’m so grateful to be surrounded by such incredible women who inspire me and help me grow daily! This conference wouldn’t have been possible without their passion and commitment!
Project Reflection

This project was the perfect opportunity to take a leadership role within an organization I’ve been involved in for a long time at Cal Poly. I enjoyed working in a team setting and combining my passion for branding and marketing with the Women In Business group. Defining her future conference always inspires me, and I’m so grateful for all the opportunities the club has given me. One of the most valuable lessons of my Cal Poly career was finding organizations that allow you to grow and work to leave a lasting impact on the club.
