A Vacancy

The feeling of missing something but not knowing what, crying but not knowing why.

CHLOE KERN

West Coast to Western

For this project, I did two photoshoots that juxtaposed two different lifestyles in the Central Coast; West Coast and Western. Fashion and styling also played a large part in the shoots to show off the two sides of fashion around us. The first shoot was centered around beachy, laid back fashion that is very prevalent in the coastal cities. The second shoot illustrated the western, cowboy-ish fashion that stems from the large farming and livestock community that we have in SLO.

Are They Looking At Me?

This is a representation of the feeling that you’re being watched even if no one is looking at you.
