SAN LUIS OBISPO, CALIFORNIA

FRIDAY, JUNE 25, 1948

DIRECTOR AND NEW COACHES NAMED TO ATHLETIC DEPARTMENT STAFF

President Julian A. McPhee this week announced the appointments of Robert A. Mott as director of physical education and athletics and Charles Pavelko as head football coach at California State Polytechnic College.

President McPhee also announced the appointment of three new members to the college physical education and athletic department to round out a staff of seven coaches.

Added were Sheldon Harden, Santa Clara University graduate, who will assist Pavelko in varsity football, aid in the college intramural program and coach wrestling; James Jensen, now coaching at San Francisco City college, who will handle varsity track. He will also assist in varsity football and coach gymnastics.

NEW FROSH COACH

Handling freshman football and basketball will be Bob Steele, San Jose State college graduate, who has been coaching at Lincoln High school in San Jose.

Mott, besides directing the department, will coach varsity baseball. A graduate of the University of Akron, Ohio, Mott came to Cal Poly in 1946. He has been acting director since the resignation of Dr. Carl Voltmer in February. The new department head after serving in the Navy during the war completed work for his master's degree at the University of Southern California which he started at the University of Michigan. He is working toward his doctor's degree this summer at USC.

Pavelko, a former backfield star at Santa Clara University, came to Cal Poly in 1941 as assistant football coach. He returned in 1946 after serving in the naval aviation physical training program during World War II. The new head grid mentor played fullback and quarterback on the great Santa Clara team which defeated Louisiana State University in the Sugar Bowl in 1936 and 1937. Following his football days, he joined the pro ranks on the Los Angeles Bulldog eleven. He has done graduate work at Whittier College, and will handle Cal Poly's boxing team.

HARDEN RETURNS

Harden, is a former Santa Clara lineman. He graduated in 1943 and has been doing graduate work at the College of Pacific. Following

ROBERT A. MOTT . . . Poly's director of athletics and physical education. Mott has acted in this capacity since last winter, but was officially appointed to the position this week.

Moroski To Receive Van Horn Trophy

Hank Moroski, twice named on the California Collegiate Athletic Association all conference basketball team, has been named the year's outstanding athlete by lettermen at Cal Poly.

The five foot 11 inch basketball star will receive the Oscar Van Horn Memorial Trophy. The award was started in 1935 in memory of Van Horn, an outstanding Cal Poly athlete, who died in that year.

Moroski headed the Cal Poly scoring in basketball last year with 325 points. He was third in conference scoring with 140 counters to gain a unanimous berth as guard on the 2C2A first five.

Hailing from Brooklyn, N. Y., the popular cage player is a set shot artist and outstanding on drive-in shots.

Also mentioned for the honor were Bob Coghlan, baseball and basketball; Don Garman, baseball; Vernon Bebernes, football and baseball; Ken Cornelius, boxing and football; and Marshall Samuels, football and track.

Jim Yates, hard hitting fullback on the Cal Poly grid team in 1946 was the trophy winner last year.

Traffic Regulations Rigidly Enforced

All students driving cars on campus are warned that all traffic regulations will be enforced to the letter seven days a week. E. A. Steiner, Security officer, is asking that all students cooperate so that he will not have the unpleasant task of handing out citations.

All gasoline driven vehicles must be registered with Steiner and stickers obtained for them. Vehicles may be registered and stickers may be obtained in room 102 and 125 in the administration bldg. at any hour of the day.

Students are advised to contact Vernon A. Meecham, dean of student welfare, when a citation is received.

Professional Library Donated By San Luis School Superintendent

As an indication of his interest in community affairs and the future of education in San Luis Obispo, Charles E. Teach, city superintendent of schools who will retire July 1, has donated his professional library to California State Polytechnic college it was announced this week.

Veterinarians Conclude Business Meet On Campus

Dr. S. T. Michael, San Francisco, was elected president of the California State Veterinary Medical Association for the coming year during the closing session of that organization's annual business meeting on the Cal Poly campus Saturday. Michael succeeds Dr. Charles H. Reid of Hollywood. Drs. F. P. Wilcox, Floyd White and E. F. Sheffield were selected by the association to serve as first, second and third vice presidents for the next year. Dr. Oscar J. Kron was re-elected as treasurer of the organization.

Following a barbecue in Poly Grove the Association heard and discussed several reports including "Pitfalls in Mastitis Treatment" by K. G. McKay, extension specialist in veterinary science from the University of California at Berkeley; "The Art and Business Aspects of Small Animal Practice" from J. M. Arburua, San Francisco; a report of the American Animal Hospital Association from Myron Thom, Pasadena; the "Use of Plasma Fractions in Domestic Livestock" by Hugh S. Cameron, University of California at Davis; the program report of Small Animal Section of the AVMA meeting in San Francisco by Eugene C. Jones, Hollywood.

Dr. J. L. Tyler closed the meeting with the installation of the new officers. Retiring President Reid received a gavel from the association as an expression of appreciation from the membership.

President Michael announced that the association would accept the invitation from California Polytechnic to hold their winter conference on the campus next January.

Poly Graduate Stars on Screen

Pedro Armendariz, a California State Polytechnic college graduate and now starring in motion pictures, returned to San Luis Obispo last week—on the screen.

Armendariz played the sergeant in Fort Apache which played at the Fremont theatre last week. Previous to that he played the lead in The Fugitive and The Pearl.

Armendariz graduated from Cal Poly in 1932 where he received his early military and dramatic training.

Dr. Hubert Semans, dean of the division of science and humanities, states that the Teach library has been recognized as one of the best individual professional libraries in this part of the state.

"Mr. Teach has always felt that an interest in developments in the field of education was evidenced by a personal investment in the best books coming off the press," Semans said.

VALUABLE COLLECTION

The book collection is valued at more than $5000.

"It has a value over and above that measured in dollars and cents," Semans points out, "Because many of the volumes are now out of print and therefore unavailable."

Among the books are certain volumes from the yearbook of the National Society for the Study of Education, which the college library attempted to purchase but was informed were not obtainable.

Collectors' items are found in the donation. One is a methods book issued by John Swett, principal of the San Francisco Girls High school and normal class and later superintendent of San Francisco city schools, 1891 to 1894. The book was published in 1886 and will provide a basis for comparison with the method books of today.

Another book of interest is the Primer of Physiology and Hygiene issued by William Thayer Smith, M. D. and published in 1885. The book offers an interesting contrast to the more lively and illustrated text books of today, Semans said.

INCLUDES PERIODICALS

Included in the collection is a nearly complete list of the publications of the American Council on Education, running up to the current year. In addition to the textbooks, Teach subscribed to several professional periodicals and has given the library the back files of such journals as School and Society, The Nations Schools, and American School Board Journal.

"This again will add much to the college's library service," Semans states, "Since it will now be possible to trace back, through use of the Reader's Guide, articles appearing prior to the time the college's library subscriptions were started."

STATES APPRECIATION

Showing his appreciation, President Julian A. McPhee stated that the donation was a further indication of the superintendent's confidence in the future of education in San Luis Obispo and California State Polytechnic College in particular.

The books will contain a book plate designating each volume as part of the Teach collection.

Ainsley A. Whitman, head librarian, announced that the staff plans to have the books processed and available for use by the fall term.

Summer Sign-up Hits Peak Record

According to Paul C. Winner, assistant dean of admissions, the first summer session enrollment at Cal Poly has hit and all time high. To date, 721 students have enrolled with 640 of these old students. This is an increase of 107 students over last summer's enrollment for the same session.

The second summer session will possibly show a decreased enrollment.

Ag Instructors Meet On Campus To 'Learn By Doing'

Approximately 250 instructors of vocational agriculture and 70 veterans' instructors in institutional on-the-farm training courses from every agricultural county in the state are meeting this week on the campus to learn the latest ideas in farm practices and the best methods to apply these practices in training courses.

California Polytechnic is also offering additional courses for academic credit to many of these teachers during the week of June 28.

This, the 28th annual conference of the California Agricultural Teachers' Association, will stress the theme of "applied agriculture" and these 320 teachers are attending "school" to learn more about the Cal Poly theme of "learn by doing."

Julian A. McPhee, president of the college and state director of vocational education, reemphasized the need for practical education in the vocational training of high school and veteran students in his welcoming address to the conference. The high school vocational agriculture program has always stressed the practical ends in its training program, and the veterans' program also follows that idea.

Featured in the conference are addresses by such outstanding men in agriculture as Jerry Sotoia, assistant director of the Armour packing company, livestock bureau; Waldo Weeth, well known swine producer from Coalinga; John Nylander, Dos Palos farm equipment dealer; Vard Shepard, dean of agriculture at Cal Poly; Harvey McDougal, manager of Fontana farms at Collinsville; Elmer Mers, executive secretary of the California Nurseryman's association, and W. P. Wing, secretary of the California Wool Growers' association. Other speakers at the conference will include members of the Bureau of Agricultural Education; Robert D. Miller, chief electrical engineer at San Francisco shipyard, and Norman Cruikshanks, science and humanities instructor at Cal Poly.

Published weekly during the school year except holidays and examination periods by the Associated Students, California State Polytechnic College, San Luis Obispo, California. The opinions expressed in this paper in signed editorials and articles are the views of the writers and do not necessarily represent the opinions of the staff, the views of the Associated Student Body, nor official opinion. Subscription price, $2.00 per year, in advance. Editorial office, Room 16, Administration Building, Phone 2151.

IS WAR INEVITABLE?

The following quotation taken from Harvard University's American Foreign Policy Library edition of "The United States and Russia" gives food for thought in a time of tension.

"War is never inevitable if by that phrase we mean that war is a natural phenomenon like a tidal wave that no amount of human knowledge and advance preparation can possibly avert. It becomes, or at least comes to appear, inevitable only when opportunities to avert it by various form of action have been allowed to pass through lack of information, heedlessness of warning signals, apathy, aggressiveness arousing counter-aggressiveness, or conscious desire to have the catastrophe occur.

All of these phenomena characteristic of periods preceding the actual outbreak of war have become tragically familiar to a generation which has witnessed two world wars in a quarter of a century, and are again observable in what we had optimistically anticipated would be a "post-war" period.

The United States and Russia, the two protagonists in any major conflict that may occur, both know little about each other, and such information as each possesses is often distorted by mutual prejudice and fear. Meager information, in turn, has caused both countries to place sinister interpretations on each other's actions.

Each, in its own way, following the traditional course of its interests, has reached out for greater power as a result of World War II—Russia by seeking to expand its influence over neighboring countries through military force and Communist propaganda, and the United States by trying to acquire new strategic bases on grounds of security and larger markets for its exports on grounds of equality of economic opportunity.

What has seemed like security to the United States has looked like aggressiveness to Russia."

Vera Dean, the authoritative author of this book suggests four things to be done in setting a course away from war. (1) Each country needs greater knowledge of the other. (2) Citizens of the United States need greater knowledge of our own position in World affairs. (3) We need to recognize basic issues. (4) We need to recognize that it takes all kinds to make a world like ours. At no stage in history has the entire world achieved exactly the same level of political, economic and social development.

Sumner Wells, former Undersecretary of State says of this book, "The final chapter should be read, marked, learned, and inwardly digested by every fair-minded American who hopes and believes that the influence of his country can even yet be so intelligently and effectively exercised as to make it possible for the United States to lead mankind into the paths of peace."

"The United States and Russia" and a companion volume, "The United States and the Near East" are both recent additions to the Poly library.

NO PONY YET

Notwithstanding the activity or the lack of it during the Summer season on the Poly campus, El Mustang will attempt to keep abreast of such activity (or the lack of it) for its Summertime fans. Said fans will also note that El Mustang is not a pony edition yet although it has decreased page count a little.

In this first Summer issue a few changes are evident. A few new contributions have appeared. Dr. Hubert Semans, dean of the division of Science and Humanities, has prepared a guest editorial which is found elsewhere on this page. Mr. Bert Thistledown, essayist, philosopher, thinker, and fortune teller returns to again grace El Mustang's pages (Also Elsewhere).

The small but capable staff is working under a revised and demanding deadline schedule so that the Poly printshop may publish El Mustang with a skeleton crew.

However, all concerned are getting quite a kick out of writing and printing these summer issues, and we hope reader expectation is satisfied.

LETTERS to the editor—

Ed. Note—The following was received shortly before we closed the spring quarter. The author wrote us, "Here is what I call my song without music? Print it in your paper with my compliments and set it to music if you can."

PISMO POLLY

By Lucille L. Lewis

My gal Polly of Pismo Beach
Is sure a little sugar peach!
She goes to Pismo Polytech,
That's where she learned to pet and nech!

On a seaside clambake she's the tender one,
Plumb full of love, just a bundle of fun,
She's an armful boy; she's a mansized squeeze
She's all for me, just trying to please.

When we dive and dip in the briny ocean,
With a mouth full of water I declare my devotion,
And by the time the tide is running high,
She's mine as the sun sets low in the sky.

Of all the gals, she's the best I know,
And we're going steady, 'til she finds another beau!
Hi ho, Polly, to you I toast,
You're the best little clam on the Pacific Coast!

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. — (ACP)—The editor of the College Heights Herald pleads for a re-check of collegian's manners:

"Weed out those manners and habits that only serve to lower your personality stock. Don't sponge or chisel in on your friends. Go Dutch treat if you can't foot the bill yourself. If the other fellow insists on treating you, don't make a scene, let him pay, but watch your chance to even the score.

"Take care of whatever you borrow and return it in the same condition if not better.

"Don't fight. Someone said the man who won the fight also lost it. Fighting never settles the argument; resentment and hatred grow even stronger. If you want proof on this, just read the papers.

"Nothing will make you so generally disliked as being a tattletale. Knowing when to keep one's mouth shut is a fine art which all of us would do well to practice more. Don't confuse tattling with evident-bearing. Gossip is almost synonymous with lying.

"Bragging is a childish way of showing off. If you are really a big wheel, your reputation will speak for itself. Keep yourself inconspicuous. You don't have to make a loud noise in public to prove you're there."

KINGSVILLE, TEXAS—(ACP)—At Texas College of Arts and Industries a fifteen year unaccepted dare had a taker.

To prove her theory that men are the conservative sex, Professor Edith Cousins has been challenging male members of her sociology classes to wear shorts to classes for one day. The reward proffered was two chicken dinners. (Originally an ice cream soda, the reward has grown with the year).

The shorts wearer announced that he was so comfortable in his white British tropical shorts—with cuffs, that he plans to wear them to classes again soon.

A thousand watt bulb outside the bus depot dissipated its brilliance in a cloud of winged creatures. The night was cold, the bulb was frosted, and so was I. Months ago a letter had informed me that I was eligible to attend college under the provisions of a law enacted at the conclusion of the Philippine Insurrection. . . substance checks would be forthcoming. The story is old; the locale . . . a town with a bus, a depot, a cold night and insects. The characters? See that gaunt hungry looking job over there with insects on him. . . that's me with substance checks forthcoming. And there by the curb, motionless in this endless depot drama, lies a bottle and the inevitable. . . the man of its distinction.

I think to myself that hitch hiking isn't so good like it once was; that's why, I tell myself, I'm here with the blub, the bugs and the man of distinction. . . distinctly stinky. All day long mostly I had hiked, all I hitched was that proverbial anatomical part which drags. That's why I'm herewith the bulb, the bugs and the man. . . I gotta get back to San Luis. All right, so pretty quick there's just the three of us . . . bulb, bugs, and me. The man? He was a vet of the first World War. . . a couple of guys in a black sedan, who picked him up said he was gassed. Musta been hot too cause he went to the collar!

So the service isn't so good, and it's like people say. The buses have gone to the dogs (they're even named after them) and the depots to pot. I look at the writing on the wall. It says a bus is coming, but not for a long time yet so relax I tell myself and enjoy the bugs.

Pretty soon while I'm waitin', I can see over by the main door a little guy just standin' quiet like. I watch him for a while. He don't say nothin', but every once in a while he gives a jerk like he wants to go somewhere but he don't move. After a while this guy that jerks gets my curiosity so I walks over to look at him. He looks bad. . . all beat to hell. I looks at this beat to hell guy and he gets my sympathy, 'cause I know what's happened to him. He was comin' through the door when he steps in a big wad of bubble gum and pretty quick before he knows it he's stuck to the sidewalk but good. Well he's too small to pull loose, and every time he bends down to untie his shoes and escape. . . Wham! Someone opens the door behind him.

I feel for the little guy, so I unties his shoes, lifts him out, and stands him on the sidewalk. He don't move or say nothin' so I gives him a cigarette and goes back to the bulb and the bugs. After a while the little guy gives a jerk, wobbles over to the curb and crosses the street just in time to be run over by the bus I'm waitin' for.

So pretty quick I'm being whisked along El Camino Real in the luxurious atmosphere and comfort of this bus. I re-adjust the protruding spring in the seat to a more suitable position and settle back. The soft metallic grinding of the gears just under my seat, and the warm fragrant fumes from the engine soon put me to sleep.

So I'm sleeping, but pretty quick I'm awake with the guy in front of me complaining about his kidneys. So all the way to San Luis this joker keeps turning around telling me about how weak and sore his kidneys are getting. This gets me 'cause I don't care about this guy's kidneys and pretty quick when I'm plenty sore I asks this character, "where in hell else can I put my knees?" Okay, so pretty quick I'm in San Luis where I extract my knees and leave the guy with the weak kidneys.

So I'm walking down Monterey street to catch a bus out to Poly when a sudden gust of wind blows me into Joe's where I see my little Italian friend from the Lower units. Well I gets a beer, joins my friend under the table, and tells him about hitch hiking being rough as a long and twice as cob.

When I'm through my friend asks, "So what's the moral?" Well he's smart so I asks him, "what's the moral?" "Come on let's go." So while we crawled out the door he told me, "Don't try hitch hiking if you're underslung 'cause you'll be dragging before you get back."

Mottmen Finish High In Final 2C2A Baseball Statistics

Individual and team honors were evenly divided around the CCAA, final figures revealed today. The champion College of Pacific Tigers, who dethroned San Diego State, boasted the top hurlers in the circuit, but the rest of the titles were scattered among the other five teams.

Big Stan McWilliams, first-year sensation of the Pacific squad, had the best won-lost record with a perfect 6-0 slate. His earned run average of 1.24 also was tops in the conference. Teammate Lou Bronsan and Fresno Bulldog Bob Lurker were right behind with 8-0 records. Strikeout honors went to Don Garman, flashy southpaw of Cal Poly, who finished fast with a record of four wins against one loss while fanning 42. San Jose's Ralph Romero whiffed 41.

Cy Williams, Santa Barbara's man with the bat, ran away from the pack in the hitting department with a robust .478 for the season. Nearly a hundred points behind, but still up in the higher brackets, was Earl Brucker of San Diego. Brucker, last year's CCAA batting champion, hit .379 and was the home run king with five. He also was runner-up in the runs-batted-in chase, captured by little Art Shahzade, Fresno's left fielder. Shahzade drove in 18. Stolen base title fell to Joe Blake, swift-footed centerfielder from Santa Barbara, with 12.

In figures, Cal Poly's Mustangs came from nowhere to win the batting crown with a .278 average. Fresno, buried in last place with a .195 average at the half-way mark, finished in a whirl to place second at .268. San Jose's last-place Spartans emerged the top defensive club with a fielding average of .923, just a shade above the Mustangs.

Proof that COP's secret to success lay in their pitching was borne out in the fact that they finished last in team-batting and fourth in team fielding. Cal Poly, on paper, appears to have had the best balanced team. They were first in batting, second in fielding.

Intramural Sandlot Champs

Pete Manning's All Stars were crowned intramural champs when they defeated the Faculty, 4-2. Jerry Carter was too much for the old men.

The All Stars finished off the faculty by coming from behind and scoring three runs in the fifth inning when Byron Culver knocked in three runs with a homerun into right field.

Sports Personality

FRANK ROSS . . . known for his quiet and unassuming manner—He is an even six feet off the ground—weighs 180 pounds—has dark brown hair cut in a crew style.

A member of last year's basketball squad—a Block P member—Great things are expected of Frank next season.

He is married, no children—hails from Bremerton, Washington—during the war, Frank served as a turret gunner on a B-29—managed to get a little basketball at Lake Charles, Louisiana and MacDill Field, Florida.

His pet peeves are the Veterans Administration and superstitious people—Ambition is to be a teacher of P.E. and math—coach basketball and baseball.

Block P Elects Next Year's Officers

J. T. Moroski, junior physical education major, has been elected president of the Block P, lettermen's society at Cal Poly.

Others elected were Russ Barr, vice president; Fred Adams, secretary; and Bob Babich, treasurer.

Harlem Nine Whips Blues Squad 13-1 In Exhibition Tilt

The nationally known Harlem Globe-trotters baseball club invaded San Luis Obispo last Wednesday night and swamped the Blues nine 13-1 in an exhibition game. The capacity crowd witnessed the amusing antics of Ed Hamman the baseball clown, and even though the local team lost the game a good time was had by all.

Starring for the Blues in the field was Cal Poly's "Pee Wee" Fraser who thrilled the crowd with his sensational catches in centerfield. Fraser also scored the lone San Luis run in the first inning to tie the score. During the collegiate year, Fraser was chosen as "All-Conference" centerfielder for the second successive year, and was elected team captain for 1949.

Don Garman started on the hill for the Blues, and for the first time in many weeks the little Southpaw was ineffective in a mound assignment. For three innings the little hurler held his own, but the loaded bats of the powerful Globe-trotters plus some fielding sent the game lefthander to the showers in the seventh frame.

During the school year Garman pitched the Mustangs into second place in the 2C2A conference was elected "most valuable player"; and earned a berth on the "All-Conference" team.

Another Mustang, Pinky Bebernes who cavorts at shortstop for the Blues, was not in uniform for the game. The big slugger was hokeymooing up in northern California with his bride, the former Shirley Farrar.

Bebernes captained the 1948 Mustang squad and made the second team of the "All-Conference" selections. His heavy stick-work was an important factor in many Mustang victories last season.

Summer Session Softball Loop To Be Organized

Director of Athletics, Robert A. Mott has announced his intention of starting an intra-mural softball loop for the benefit of the students attending the summer sessions. Paul Platz, senior Physical Education major has been appointed to aid in the organization of the proposed league.

All managers of prospective teams are advised to visit the athletic office or contact Platz on or before Monday, June 28. It is necessary that at least four teams enter the league.

An official meeting of all team managers will take place at 7 p.m. Tuesday, June 29 at the athletic office. At this meeting eligibility rules, schedules, rosters, and any other potential problems that might arise will be discussed. What say, get those roster lists going, and let's have a successful summer league.

MR. and MRS. VERNON L. BEHERMES... better known as Pinky and Shirley, are now at home at 586 Pacific street after a honeymoon that included a trip through the Redwood country and Los Angeles.

Their wedding was an event of Saturday afternoon, June 12 at the First Presbyterian church of San Luis Obispo.

Pinky, a junior PE major, is an outstanding athlete at Cal Poly—has lettered in football and

Severe Shortage Brings Plea For Qualified Teachers

A plea for qualified person to teach in San Luis Obispo county schools to help relieve a severe teachers shortage was made this week by the county school superintendent's office.

Mrs. J. T. Arsenio, working from the county office, is seeking persons preferably with a college degree, but no teaching credential is necessary.

In the past, she said, the department has hired emergency teachers with two years of college work, but they must have the personal qualifications and should have had some experience with children such as in a nursery or in camp leadership.

Mrs. Arsenio pointed out that six Cal Poly students wives have been very satisfactory in working for the school department.

Vacancies range throughout the county from one teacher schools to a city school of 18 or more teachers. Grades vary from the kindergarten to the six and seventh. In most cases the salaries will be above the $2400 a year level.

Teachers are wanted for the school term starting in September.

Those interested are urged to contact the county superintendent's office in the court house.

baseball. Shirley is the "smiling helpfulness" of the general office.

Permit To Withdraw Needed To Drop Class

Students will be allowed to withdraw from courses after June 23, 1948, by using a permit to withdraw from a course, which may be obtained in the Recorder's office, room 102.

This permit calls for the instructor's signature and an actual grade, which is given at the time the student leaves the course. This is a grade card and should be submitted to the Recorder's office by the instructor. Permits to withdraw carrying a W or F grade only will be accepted from the instructor.

Firearms Must Be Registered

All firearms, regardless of make, type, or condition must be registered with the security officer. These firearms will be kept in special lockers in the power house under lock and key. Students must furnish own lock.

PL 16 Vets Must Show Letter of Eligibility

Word has been received from the Veterans Administration asking that students no longer be registered with application pending for education benefits under Public Law 16. The Veterans Administration, effective immediately, will no longer back date Public Law 16 applications for veteran students who enroll in a college prior to completion of advertisement and receipt of their Public Law 16 letter of Authorization. Veterans may still enroll under Public Law 346 if they have a Certificate of Eligibility and then transfer to Public Law 16 at a later date if approved under the law when their advisement is complete.

Students may still enroll under Public Law 346 with application pending.

WHY...I smoke Chesterfield

(FROM A SERIES OF STATEMENTS BY PROMINENT TOBACCO FARMERS)

Liggett & Myers buy the ripe, sweet, mild tobacco... that's the best cigarette tobacco. They always pay the top price.

I have been a steady Chesterfield smoker ever since I started smoking 30 years ago.
