Designs for Italian town featured in exhibition

Sketches of Italy, designs for a Tuscan town, and slides and videos will be exhibited from 5 to 7 pm Monday, June 8, in the Gallery in the Architecture Building.

Sixteen architecture seniors traveled with professor Sandra Davis Lakeman to Arcidosso, Italy, for fall quarter 1997, as the first participants in the Architecture Department's Fifth-Year Overseas Design Option, a program begun by Lakeman.

The group's three-month trip included tours of Rome, Siena and Arcidosso, where the students met with city officials to learn what social and environmental design projects the town was interested in. The students chose individual sites and developed design proposals that they presented to town council members.

The students' architectural models and drawings, as well as proposals for redesigning the town's main square, Piazza Indipendenza, are scheduled to be exhibited in Arcidosso later this summer.

At the Cal Poly exhibit, the students' architectural journals will be on display, revealing their sketches of buildings, cathedrals, bridges and major monuments.

Some framed 16" by 24" photographs taken by Lakeman will also be displayed. The photographs are part of "Natural Light and the Landscape of Tuscany," an exhibit set in Arcidosso this summer with the student designs.

For more information, call the Architecture Department at ext. 6-1316, or Lakeman at 541-3223. □

Cal Poly sells VEP to Texas company

The Foundation's Visual Education Productions (VEP), which produces video instructional materials, has been sold to Creative Education Videos (CEV), a Lubbock, Texas, firm that is a leader in the same industry.

Calling the sale of VEP a difficult but necessary decision, Al Amaral, the Foundation's executive director, pointed out that the move "offsets production losses while ensuring continued availability of the high-quality VEP products and services for Cal Poly students and faculty from CEV's Lubbock headquarters."

CEV has produced video educational materials for 15 years. The company's founder and president, Gordon Davis, is a former professor of agriculture at Washington State and Texas Tech universities.

Davis said that CEV's extensive distribution will significantly increase the exposure of VEP products nationwide. □
