

A VIRTUOSO of the piano acclaimed by critics in European countries for brilliant technique and mastery, William Schwartzott, Poly music department's new staff member, will play his first local concert Sunday for faculty.

Noted Music Instructor Presents Concert Sunday

Described in Norway as "a poet at the piano," Wilhelm Schwartzott, newest member of the Cal Poly Music department teaching staff, presents his first local concert this Sunday evening, at 8:15 in the Little Theater.

The concert will be for the college staff, admission being by ticket only since seating is limited to 500, says Harold P. Davidson, Music department head. "Unfortunately there are no more tickets available and those departments which were late getting in their requests cannot be accommodated," Davidson explained.

Schwartzott wants to give another concert just for students and Davidson plans to schedule a lecture-recital type of program for them later, perhaps next month, in the Men's Gym. During the student concert the famed pianist will present the same program being offered to faculty on Sunday.

The Sunday concert will consist of a variety of numbers, including a special Chopin arrangement, one of Beethoven's most famous selections entitled Appassionata, and the famous Strauss concert waltz, Die Fledermaus.

Schwartzott is a native of Austria where he received a scholarship to study at the State Academy of Vienna. He moved to Norway during the war and continued his studies and concert-recitals in Oslo's Music Conservatory where he was educated as a conductor. He studied piano with Professor Dagmar Walle-Hansen, Dr. Josef Lechthaler and Professor Kerschbaumer, and was director of Klaverrakademiet and Wilhelm Schwartzott Piano and Art Institute in Oslo.

Critics have acclaimed him as possessing a "brilliant technique" and "delicate interpretation" in the concerts he has presented throughout Europe and the U.S. Schwartzott joined the Cal Poly staff last Fall quarter.

Bragg Says SAC 'Biased'

By ETHEL ALEXANDER
Staff Writer

Tom Bragg, Finance committee chairman, asked the Student Affairs Council Tuesday night to delete a part of the Finance committee code which, he said, "is outdated and outmoded." SAC met in LIB 114.

As presently established, the code states that no officer of a budgeted group can be on Finance committee.

SAC agreed this section was put into the code to prevent bias when budgets are being considered. "I do not think that bias enters into budget hearings at all," Bragg said. "Even if it did, one person's bias could not possibly sway a vote, because there are 12 votes on the committee."

"If you wish to discuss bias," Bragg said, "I can say that SAC is one of the most biased groups on campus. Every member represents a specific organization."

Bragg is Welcome Week Camp chairman. The Finance committee code, if not changed, could force him and three other members of the committee to resign one of their positions.

The matter was referred to Constitution and Codes committee for study.

Penny Gardner, Board of Publications chairman, asked for and received approval of Jim McLain as the Winter quarter editor of EL MUSTANG.

Club News Anyone?

All clubs and organizations on campus are urged to submit all on-campus publicity to EL MUSTANG for publication.

Publicity chairman or club presidents can leave material in EL Mustang's box in the student body office one week before the desired publication date.

Poly Hosts Top Educators

More than 45 California educators will be on campus Jan. 17, 18 and 19, when the presidents and instructional deans from the 15 State Colleges will meet with the State Board of Trustees.

Dr. Buell Gallagher, Chancellor of the California State Colleges, will address the group, and Poly students and faculty at the Chancellor's Convocation, 10 a.m., Jan. 19, in the Men's Gym.

Livestock Judges At Denver Show

Cal Poly's Intercollegiate Livestock Judging team is presently competing in the National Intercollegiate Judging contest at the National Western Stock Show in Denver, Colo.

The team, under advisor Richard F. Johnson, consists of Tom Brasili, Ray McKay, Clayton D. Ollar, Lane L. Pritchett and Carol A. Ramsey.

Classes of sheep, swine, cattle and horses, are being judged both as market animals and breeding stock.

Last month the judging team captured first place at the Great Western Livestock Exhibition in Los Angeles.

Swing Your Partner

For students interested in learning to "Twist" there will be special instruction during the College Union dance class held on Monday nights at 8:00 in the TCU. Phil Brown and Vernon Pence will be instructing. A new dance will be taught each week.

Food Processing Plant Completion Due On Jan. 15

Completion of the new million dollar Food Processing building, located west of the Agriculture Engineering shops, is due January 15. Scheduled classes will begin January 22, according to Dewey Sampson, head of the Food Processing department.

The modern plant, containing complete laboratories for meat processing, fruit and vegetable canning and processing and the creamery will allow all the dairy manufacturing, meat and food processing classes to learn under the best conditions available, Sampson said.

The south end of the building will house the new campus produce store, which will sell the milk, cream, butter, meat, vegetables, fruit and ice cream prepared completely by the students in the new plant. Sales will be restricted to Cal Poly personnel and families.

Matzner Check Mates Again Ties for 5th Place Nationally

By Wayne Cox
Staff Writer

The idea of leaving home on Christmas day wasn't a pleasant one to Cal Poly's Steve Matzner as he boarded a jet plane at Los Angeles airport, but it quickly slipped from his mind when he thought of what was ahead.

The Hungarian-born chess expert was on his way to Washington D.C. to represent "little" Cal Poly at the National Intercollegiate Chess tournament.

Twice winner of California's Intercollegiate Chess Tournament, '61-'62, he was more than surprised when he met his opposition at Howard University.

An outright meeting of intercollegiate chess experts throughout the country, and meeting face-to-face with Larry Gilden, University of Maryland's chess wizard who played for the U.S. student team that won the world's championship in 1960, and who placed second behind the Russians last year, gave Poly's Matzner a stinging taste of what to expect.

Keen and cunning competition sparked Matzner's sixth sense for chess playing, but the row he was about to face was twice as long and three times as rough. The tourney got underway the day after Christmas. Matzner met and defeated his first two opponents.

Wins Four Matches

The sophomore math major gained two more victories before meeting his first defeat. It came midway through the tourney when the tension increased with each move. Eliminated players from the 50 contestants stood about watching the judges tally the points and carefully rematching the winners of each game.

The points Matzner gathered early in the tourney were enough to put him in the all-crucial contest against Brooklyn City College's Hernado Zuckermann. The Matzner-Zuckermann match would decide whether Steve would place within the top five or be forced into a tenth place tie.

After a gruelling four-hour contest in mental gymnastics, Matzner played Zuckermann to a tie. Steve's uneasy grasp on the fifth place trophy became a bull-dog grip, and although his opponent went on to capture first place, the Cal Poly's entry tied for fifth place in the National Intercollegiate Chess tournament.

PERFECT RECORD

On the local front Matzner holds a perfect record since his arrival at Cal Poly two years ago. At last quarter's Activities Carnival, Steve won 18 consecutive games, in addition to playing five people simultaneously.

His eight years of tournament play dates back to Budapest where as a member of a four-man team, he won the national championship.

Moving with his parents, Steve went to Vienna, Austria and resumed chess. Six months later he became one of four players who won the Vienna Cup.

Matzner came to America and attended Fullerton J.C. before transferring to Cal Poly in 1960. He has won several trophies including the Orange County Championship in 1960 and the Anaheim Chess Club championship both in 1960-61.

Since his return from Washington, Matzner has been sharpening up for the California Intercollegiate tournament which will be held here on campus at the Easter vacation.

Meditate — and Act!

On Monday, exactly two years will have elapsed since coach Ed Jorgensen's Mustang hoopsters first played to an audience in the Men's Gym.

Monday is also the second day of the campus-wide Religion in Life Week observance.

At first glance, these two items do not seem to have very much in common. In this newspaper's point of view, however, they do.

The beautifully curved edifice that stands across from the cafeteria has been allowed to exist for these two years, bearing what is probably the most uninspired name of any building on campus: "Men's Physical Education Building."

It is hard to ascertain just why such a beautiful building must bear such an unattractive name. Actually, many names have been suggested but as is usually the case, nothing has been done.

During the year in which the gym was opened 17 young men lost their lives while representing Cal Poly in a football contest at Toledo, Ohio. Although much has been said about doing something that would suitably honor the memory of these men, this campus has apparently found nothing suitable, although other groups have.

Last year, the Student Affairs Council established a committee that was to make suggestions concerning the erection of something to honor those students. Various groups, including the Inter-Faith Council, a coordinating organization

2 Win - 1 Loss Record

Edged by Gauchos 64-63. Mustangs Down Diablos

Walloping the Los Angeles State Diablos 84-67 and dropping a squeaker to the Santa Barbara Gauchos 64-63, the Mustangs split a weekend twin bill to register a two win, one loss record in the CCAA conference.

It was Rally Rounsaville's shoot-and-the-rebounding of Bob Wilmot that proved the downing of the Diablos.

Rounsaville notched 33 points and Wilmot snagged 19 rebounds to set the pace for the Mustangs. Scoring help also came from Ken Anderson with 17 points and Bill Warmerdam with 13. Wilmot and Bob Horwath each tallied eight.

The Diablos led the contest an only one point in the opening minutes until Rounsaville tallied three buckets to send the Mustangs into a lead which they never relinquished. At halftime the Mustangs left the floor with a 41-30 margin. In Friday's game with the Gauchos the Mustangs continually were behind throughout the contest.

After the Mustangs held a momentary lead, the Gauchos surged forward to take a 34-33 halftime margin and early in the final half built up a 49-31 bulge over the futile Mustangs. The Mustangs retaliated mostly on the shooting of Anderson, Rounsaville and substitute Lawson Maddox. In the final minutes the Mustangs tied the score, 51-51.

In the five minute overtime, the Gauchos spurted to a four point lead and hung on to win by a 64-63 score.

Tonight the Mustangs oppose the San Diego State Aztecs and tomorrow evening they encounter the Long Beach 49ers in the second weekend of CCAA play. Both games are away from home.

Campus Not Bugged By Flying Flu Bug

The familiar flu bug has "flu" the coop again this year but isn't predicted to do much damage at Cal Poly, Dr. Earl D. Lovett Health Center medical officer, says.

Public health surveys show that a new cycle of flu and other influenza cases will be beginning soon, according to Dr. Lovett, but so far luck has been running good on campus.

"We usually expect a slight increase in illnesses after a vacation," said Dr. Lovett, "but if the flu hits here it will be mild."

He explained that all incoming students must be vaccinated to meet college health requirements and booster shots were given last quarter for old students. It was suggested that students not receiving a booster last quarter should arrange to do so soon.

Characteristics of an influenza may be inflammation of the respiratory tract, fever, muscular pain, and intestinal disorders.

El Rodeo Senior Photos Set For January 15-17

Senior pictures will be taken January 15 at 8:00 a.m. through January 17 at 3:30 p.m. for El Rodeo, the college annual, at the old Power House.

Men are requested to wear dark coats, white shirts and ties. Women should wear classic necklines and plain light colored sweaters.

Because of a close schedule, it is imperative that students be on time.

Seniors graduating in March or June who do not receive notices through the mail are requested to go to the old Power House in picture attire for scheduling.

Mercy Bowl Hailed Financial Success

The Mercy Bowl Football classic has been hailed a success with the report on receipts showing that $184,081.88 was raised for the survivors and relatives of victims of the 1960 Cal Poly plane crash.

Dr. Ferron Loses of Los Angeles State College, game director, reported gross receipts of the game on Thanksgiving Day reached $184,084.08.

Book Review Theme 'Religion-In-Life'

In coordination with Religion in Life Week, the program for Books at High Noon will be a review of Perry D. LeFevre's "The Christian Teacher: His faith and His Responsibilities in Higher Education," by Edward T. Ernatt, Education department.

LeFevre centers his discussion around two basic questions: What are the Christian teacher's concerns in higher education? What difference does it make in an individual's teaching if he takes both his teaching and his Christian faith seriously? Topics analyzed include the role of the Christian teacher and his subject matter, teaching methods, his relations with students and the college community.

of all religious groups on campus and the sponsor of Religion in Life Week, proposed the re-naming of the Men's Gym to "Memorial Gym" and dedicating it to the 17 students who died in the tragic crash. SAC referred the proposal back to the committee for further study, and nothing has been heard of it since.

The above idea has much merit and certainly deserves more consideration than it has received.

Many have said that they would not like to see something erected in memory of these men that would resemble a mausoleum. With this, we agree. The students who lost their lives were young and enjoyed athletics to the fullest. Dedicating the Men's Gym to these men would be a wonderful tribute to their memory.

In the next few days, as the campus pauses to reflect and meditate during Religion in Life Week, it would behoove the administration to start the ball rolling on this project. Let's call it "Memorial Gymnasium." Let's remember those 17 men who gave so much to the college.
