Students organize protest

The liberal side of Cal Poly staged its first sit-in Tuesday on the library lawn during the ROTC annual formal inspection. The protestors numbered about 30 and sat quietly on the edge of the library lawn assembled under a peace symbol. One member carried a cross reading, "Thou shalt not kill," and "Love one another."

The Cadre ordered the men in ROTC to move to the athletic field and prepare for inspection. After debating whether to follow or disband, the protestors gathered up their belongings and headed for the athletic field and assembled on the bleachers.

A moment of uncertainty faced the protestors as the "Star Spangled Banner" was played by the ROTC Marching Band. A loyal few immediately jumped to their feet and came to attention as others of the group debated with themselves whether or not to abandon their sit-in for the duration of the national anthem.

When asked the purpose of the protest, one of the participants answered "I don't know."

Greg Freedman, senior English major, commented "The major thing we are protesting is the national policy to train killers."

"We are against the organized tyranny of the United States," commented Rick Miller, senior Journalism major.

On the other side of the uniform, Major Waite of the ROTC Dept. said, "We welcome all spectators."

When asked if the protest would have any effect on the ROTC Dept. Major Smart and Major Rall, both Viet Nam veterans, said, "No, it won't affect us. We hope they accomplish something for their own education. We are pleased to have anyone come and watch our exercises."

The protest was orderly and quiet. Several protestors carried signs reading "LOVE-brings peace." The entire occurrence was covered by a local television station and a newspaper.

It was noticed that the protestors all disbursed after the television cameras left.

Musicians will tour San Diego County

Performances in six different Southern California cities, primarily within San Diego County, have been scheduled for the 26th annual concert tour of four college groups.

Stated to open the morning of March 27 with two performances at Westchester High School in Los Angeles, the week-long tour will close April 1 with a public concert in the Civic Theater of the San Diego Community Center.

Highlights of the traditional tour will be three public appearances planned for the evenings of March 30 and 31, and April 1. In addition to the April 1 performance in the Civic Theater, other evening concerts scheduled are at Mesa College, San Diego and San Diego State High School.

Other concerts are scheduled at high schools in the Los Angeles area: Buena Vista, San Diego, Escondido, Lakeside, and Encinitas; and at Grossmont College, El Cajon. Two or three additional concerts in the San Diego area remain to be confirmed.

Cal Poly music groups traditionally included in the tour party include the college's Men's Glee Club; the Collegians, a stage and dance band; the Majors and Minors, a 12-member vocal group; and the Collegiate Quartet.

Including some 60 members, the four organizations annually tour a different part of California performing before high school, college, and public audiences under the direction of Harold P.

Pre-scheduling

Pre-scheduling for all students planning to attend spring quarter will be held at 11 a.m. on Thursday, March 16. Failure to attend the meeting is a missed Administrative Appointment, and a $2 fee may be charged.

Location of the meeting will be posted on department bulletin boards, in the El Corral book store, campus Post Office, and the snack bar.

The spring quarter class schedule will be posted on March 13.

Davidson, head of the Music Dept. in 1941.

Audiences for the annual tours have totaled as high as the estimated 30,000 who heard the musicians perform during their tour in the Sacramento area last year.

High spot of that series was a performance before the State Senate, which unanimously passed a resolution commending Davidson.

Poly Royal to be hairy; beard contest planned

This is it: your big chance! Now you don't have to shave. The Camera Club is offering the chance to put those whiskers to good use by sponsoring a beard growing contest for Poly Royal. The contest is open to all students and faculty members who are capable of growing a beard within the next two months before Poly Royal. Those in ROTC have been given special permission by Col. Bair to enter the contest if they wish.

It has been revealed that not only do the contestants have to put up with an itchy beard for over a month, or the chance of losing a girlfriend, but that they also have the opportunity to win trophies of gift certificates in each of the four categories. The categories in which the beards will be judged are the best overall beard, the softest, the most original and the longest.

Applications will be available and accepted starting at noon on Tuesday, March 7. These applications are available from anyone in the Camera Club or in the Temporary College Union Building. The last day for entering is April 27.

Right about now you're probably thinking: This is too easy, there must be a catch to it somewhere. You're right, there is a catch. All contestants must be clean shaven when their entry is accepted and there is an entry fee of 50 cents. However, special consideration has been given in excusing residents of Santa Lucia, Trinity, Chase and Jespersen from paying the entry fee.

There will be preliminary judging on Friday, April 27, with the final judging to be held on Saturday, April 28. The place of the judgments will be announced later. The judges will consist of the queen and her court, plus three men selected by the Camera Club.

After the awards have been presented, contestants will be allowed to have their beards removed by any willing females.

Rodeo team hopes for championship

The Rodeo Team will load up their horses, saddles and ropes and head for Fresno this weekend to meet Fresno State in the first intercollegiate rodeo of the season.

Advisor Bill Gibford is looking forward to another championship this year and noted that the team is in great shape.

Events will include saddle horse riding, bareback horse riding, bull riding, bull dogging, calf roping and ribbon roping. The girls' team will participate in barrel racing and goat tying.

Team members have been practicing whenever they have a chance. Last weekend an intramural rodeo was held as a final practice session.

An art show featuring the works of three artists from San Luis Obispo Art Association will be presented the first two weeks of April in the Architecture Gallery. It is sponsored by the College Union Fine Arts Committee, and admission is free.

Pistoleers sweep sectional match

The Rifle and Pistol Club swept the National Rifle Association Intercollegiate Sectional Pistol Championships for the third successive year.

The event was held on March 4 and 5 at the campus shooting range behind the air field.

The Gold Team, ranked fifth nationally in collegiate pistol competition, won the team trophy in both the conventional and the international team matches.

Second place in the conventional target and team match went to the Green team. The Blue team took third place. All three teams are from Cal Poly.

The pistoleers were equally successful in the individual matches, winning all medals except third place in the international match which went to Douglas Webber of UCLA.

Team winners for the locals were Captain John Wilson, Charles Dickhoff, Ronald Ofdebro, Bernard Crane, John Robertson, Bill Bode, and Douglas Webster.

Aggies get recognition

Ten outstanding animal husbandry students were presented awards in two divisions at the recent Animal Husbandry banquet.

Fred Crook, Flint Freeman, Randy Linquist, Tom Irwin, and Wayne Jensen were named outstanding seniors. The Animal Husbandry Department selected them on the basis of such criteria as scholarship, character, and leadership. Crook also received the scholarship award.

The four departmental clubs also honored their outstanding members. They are Boots and Spurs, Al De Rose: Woolgrowers, Nancy Ferguson; Cutting and Reining, Leigh Howard and Kathy Schwartz; Rodeo Club, Karin McNulty.

Applications wanted

Homecoming committee is now taking applications for chairmanships on Homecoming Committee at the Temporary College Union. Applications will be accepted between April 3-14. Please deposit your application letter in Box 26 at the T.C.U. Interviews will be April 18 and 19 in BA&E 120 at 5 p.m. sharp.

Tri-weekly

'El Mustang' looks ahead

The next quarter holds many promises for El Mustang. Beginning the first week in April, El Mustang will be published three times a week.

The increase of one edition per week is a part of a program in providing a more timely news service to the student body. The new schedule calls for papers to be distributed Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

The Monday paper will cover the latest happenings in the world of sports. Wednesday's paper will contain the latest news from Student Affairs Council. Friday's paper will provide a list of upcoming events for the weekend.

The step up in production is a part of a planned step toward a daily operation. Beginning Fall Quarter of next year, El Mustang hopes to publish four times a week, with aspirations of becoming a full fledged daily operation and distributing five papers a week during Winter or Spring Quarter.

El Mustang will be under the control of Joe Hannigan, recently appointed by the Board of Publication to fulfill the last quarter of the year, due to the retirement of Sally Boss, currently Editor-in-chief.

Hannigan, a senior in journalism, is from Bishop. He entered this college in 1963, and has since been active in many clubs and campus organizations. He has been on Applied Arts Council, is currently on Poly Royal Publicity Committee, and is a member of the Press Association.

Hannigan was recently initiated into Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic society.

Regarding his appointment to the position of Editor-in-chief, Hannigan commented, "I have to thank Sally Boss for her excellent guidance in preparing me to take over this position. Also, I would like to give my thanks to John Healey (Journalism department head) for giving me the inspiration and support I need to undertake such a project."

"Although many of the things that will hopefully occur while I am Editor-in-chief will be new, the ideas behind them are not entirely of my doing. Sally Boss deserves much of the credit for helping to prepare El Mustang for a three times a week operation."

"Actually, I am merely putting into effect a combination of ideas, jointly suggested by Sally, Mr. Healey, and myself," Hannigan said.

"A big help on the production side were Bennett Derman, Gary Twitshell, and Dave Behrmann. They helped a lot in working out problems concerning the actual publication of the paper."

"I hope that El Mustang will be able to promote better communications between student government and the student body. We are going to be slightly understaffed, I'm afraid, but I'm sure that my staff will be giving me all of the support I can ask for to help make this venture successful."

Thai officials visit campus

Two of Thailand's leading educators wound up a four-day visit on this campus recently.

Their visit as representatives of the Royal Thai government was for the purpose of reviewing details of a proposed program in agricultural education to be provided in the Southeast Asian nation by this college.

Also scheduled were talks with prospective members of the teacher team which will represent the college in Thailand.

Governor names Commissioners

Gov. Ronald Reagan recently named four persons as members of the Educational Commission of the State.

Named were:

Charles Luckman, Sr., Los Angeles architect and a member of the Board of Trustees of the California State Colleges; the Most Rev. Francis Turey, Bishop of San Diego; James E. Stratten, executive director, Booker T. Washington Community Service Center, San Francisco; and Dr. Max Rafferty, State Supt. of Public Instruction.

New president?

A list of conceivable candidates for the office of the president of the school has been submitted to the Chancellor's Office, according to George Hasslein, head of the presidential selection committee.

The committee does not know if its work is done yet because the Chancellors Office has not yet approved the list. The committee is in contact with the Chancellor's Office.

The Chancellor requested a minimum of three names and a maximum of five names. The number and names of the candidates was not revealed.

The Chancellor will select two candidates after he does research and will submit the names to the Board of Trustees. They will select one. "The decision will be forthcoming by the end of the school year," added Hasslein.

Editorial

It appears as though the conservative influence on this campus has spread itself over even those "liberal" students who are moved to protest against the forces that be.

Last Tuesday on the ROTC drill field, some 30 students tried to make it known that they were against the happenings in Viet Nam. Though their motives may be under question, at least their methods were in good taste. They should be complimented for the orderly and non-violent manner in which they conducted themselves.

They were not loud or obtrusive. They came to let it be known that they were not in agreement with U. S. policy in Viet Nam. They succeeded. News media of various sorts covered the happening.

It is generally agreed that "Cal Poly students are conservative." Could it be they really aren't? Could it be the "New Left" is beginning to make itself known on this campus?

In a conservative way, yes . . .

Engineering council

This letter is intended to clarify a point mentioned in Jiu Sefton's letter criticizing SAC which appeared in El Mustang on Friday, March 3. Mr. Sefton stated, "Not one item of student business has generated from a member of SAC with the exception of Engineering Council, who proposed that the student activities fee be abolished (without having done any prior research)."

The item to which Mr. Sefton refers is Motion No. 12 of Meeting No. 16 of the SAC. It reads as follows: "Tom Nevins moved that SAC direct the Codes and By-laws Committee to consider changing Article XVI, Section A, paragraph 1, to read 'that membership be voluntary rather than mandatory.' Seconded by Amos Ngongi."

Point 1: It can be seen that this motion does not call for the abolition of fees.

Point 2: This item was not proposed by Engineering Council, indeed, only one representative from Engineering Council voted in favor of the proposal.

Point 3: The burden of research would have passed to the Codes and By-laws Committee upon passage of this motion. Regarding the matter of research, it appears that Mr. Sefton is residing in a glass house.

I would like to take this opportunity to state the case for voluntary ASI fees. ASI stands for Associated Students, Incorporated. Most corporations have products. They are athletic contests, music activities, social functions, student publications, etc. To many students, these products are worth the $17 paid for their ASI card. To some students (a minority to be sure as it was a minority who voted against the fee increase last year) the products are not worth the price they pay for them.

The law which requires them to pay is an unjust law. Let's change the law.

El Rodeo

Editor:

In reference to the letter in last week's El Mustang concerning residence hall pictures taken for El Rodeo, I must disagree with the chief photographer's view of the situation. The Editor-in-Chief of El Rodeo came through our residence hall, as he did the other South Mountain Halls, romping through the corridor announcing that group pictures were to be taken outside of the Hall immediately. This was all the prior notice that we had received. When I asked the editor the reason for this unusual (usual for El Rodeo) unorganized method, his only explanation was that he saved space in the yearbook by having smaller photos of the residence halls by not having all of the residents present.

To answer the chief photographer's statement, that they take our pictures as a favor when one buys a yearbook, he hopes that his pictures will be within and kept for posterity, that is a major reason for buying a yearbook. So if the editor of El Rodeo wishes to sell yearbooks, may I suggest that he set up a better line of communication and attempt to make it the student's yearbook, one that will be worthwhile to purchase.

Local girl given regal honors at Military Ball

A local girl was chosen queen of the Military Ball in a coronation ceremony held at the ball, March 4, in the Men's Gym.

Terry Stoner of San Luis Obispo received the queen's honors and a royal crown as 900 guests to the ball expressed their approval. Terry accepted the honors with grace. The crown, however, as is traditional in queen competition, kept slipping, to the delight of guests.

The queen was chosen by ROTC Cadets. Each of the crown's nine companies sponsored a candidate for queen.

Enjoying regal honors with the queen were eight princesses: Lisa Ann Dawson, Lafayette; Sue Dixon, Salinas; Cheryl Forrester, Sepulveda; Diane Pearl, Arroyo Grande; Tonya Schroeder, Mountain View; Carleen Silva, Hanford; Becky Cox, New Cuyama and Diane Yoder of Honolulu, Hawaii.

The new queen will reign over ROTC events for the remainder of the year and will be commissioned an honorary colonel in the Corps of Cadets. All eight princesses will be commissioned with the rank of honorary major.

Awards banquet features basketball star

By Steve Riddell

"I cried because I had no shoes until I met a man who had no feet."

John Rudometkin was a 24-year-old, 6 foot, 6 inch, 205 pound, forward on the San Francisco Warriors professional basketball team who was heading for the limelight of the sport in 1965 when stricken by a rare type of cancer which paralyzed him from the waist up.

How he struggled to stay alive and eventually begin to return to a normal life is an inspiring speaker Wed., April 5, at the Second Annual Winter Mustang Sports Award Banquet at the Madonna Inn.

The banquet, honoring athletes of basketball, wrestling, swimming and gymnastics, will get under way at 7:30 p.m. in the wine cellar at the Madonna Inn.

Sponsored jointly by the Block P Society and the Rally Committee, tickets, at $5 for the public and $3 for A.S.I. card holders, may be purchased at the A.S.I. office.

Rudometkin started out his basketball career as a center at Santa Maria High School where he once scored 60 points in one game. Following his graduation in 1958, he attended Allen Hancock College in Santa Maria for a year and then transferred to University of Southern California where he was All-American center for two of the three years that he played.

That was only the beginning, because following college he was drafted by the New York Knicks-erobackers and played for them for two and a half years. He was traded to the Warriors but was hit by cancer which infected his chest cavity and surrounded his heart and lungs.

There was no known cure for the fatal disease and he was placed in the Fresno Community Hospital where he remained for a month and a half without responding to any of the treatment. In this time, he sank from his original weight of 205 pounds, to 145 pounds.

While at Fresno, his doctor heard of a doctor in Los Angeles who had done experiments with a new drug which might cure his cancer.

Rudometkin was game for it.

The former athlete had been paralyzed for seven months and could hardly speak but he decided to try the drug. It worked.

Rudometkin is slowly returning to a normal life. With his weight back up to 185 pounds, he was in the morning for the real exam that he will be taking in a couple of weeks. During the afternoon he does odd jobs around the apartment house he and his wife run.

Plans for the future for Rudometkin include a position as a teacher in the Santa Maria area.
