Astronaut, Former International Space Station Resident and Alum
Greg Chamitoff To Give Public Talk Tomorrow, May 8, at Cal Poly

TO: Editors, Assignment Editors, Science Writers and Reporters

WHAT: Public talk by Greg Chamitoff, an astronaut and alum who lived on the International Space Station last year. The event is free.

WHERE: Christopher Cohan Performing Arts Center at Cal Poly

WHEN: Tomorrow, Friday, May 8, 10 to 11:30 a.m.

Event Information:

Chamitoff will talk about his experience living on the International Space Station for approximately six months last year. He served on the station with Russian cosmonauts Sergei Volkov and Oleg Kononenko, acting as the station's flight engineer and science officer. He returned to Earth in November on shuttle mission STS-126, having logged a total of 183 days in space.

As an undergraduate at Cal Poly, Chamitoff taught lab courses in circuit design and worked summer internships at Atari Computers and IBM. Chamitoff went on to earn master's degrees from the California Institute of Technology and the University of Houston Clear Lake, and his doctorate in aeronautics and astronautics from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

While at MIT, Chamitoff worked on the Hubble Space Telescope, flight control upgrades for the Space Shuttle autopilot and the altitude control system for the Space Station.
