CSUC will become CSU

The country's largest system of senior higher education will be designated the "California State University" under legislation signed Sep. 23 by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. and authored by Assemblywoman Teresa P. Hughes. The change, effective Jan. 1, removes the words "and Colleges" from the name the system has had for nearly a decade, the "California State University and Colleges."

Names of the 19 campuses will not be affected, as they comprise a statewide system that will continue to include college campuses in addition to the 16 institutions qualified to have "university" as part of their titles under Board of Trustees and California Postsecondary Education Commission criteria. The system name change was accomplished via Assembly Bill 600, introduced at the Board of Trustees' request by Assemblywoman Hughes.

Walch chosen for national program

David B. Walch (Director, Library) is one of 20 library professionals from throughout the nation who are assisting in a consultant program sponsored by the Association of Research Libraries. Those selected for the program are available to respond to academic libraries around the nation that need advice on problems in such areas as staff relations, management review, collection analysis, and public service.

Chosen from a pool of over 600 candidates from throughout the nation, Dr. Walch took part in a two-week seminar designed to prepare himself to serve as consultant on library matters. Other library professionals involved in the ARL consultant program are from such prestigious universities as Harvard; Vanderbilt; and University of California, Berkeley.

Funds allocated for lab conversion

Sufficient funds for conversion of five laboratories in the Science Building for Chemistry Department use were assured on Sep. 28 when Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. signed a bill authored by Sen. Alfred Alquist. The $250,000 provided by the Alquist bill will augment the original allocation of $450,000 for the conversion project, which was found to be inadequate for the project when bids were called for twice previously.

E. Douglas Gerard (Executive Dean) said the governor's action should make it possible to have the laboratories, which formerly were used by the Biological Sciences Department, ready for Chemistry Department use in mid-1983. He expects architects to complete an update of the plans in time for the project to go to bid in about five weeks and construction to begin soon after Jan. 1.

Pianist Lorenz in Poly concert

Pianist Philip Lorenz will appear at the Cal Poly Theatre on Saturday, Oct. 24, as the second event in Cal Poly's Quintessence Concert Series. Curtain time is 8 pm. Lorenz has received critical acclaim and recognition as a superb pianist throughout the world. He has toured extensively over the past twenty years.

Born in Germany, Lorenz came to the United States in 1950 to study with Claudio Arrau and Rafael deSilva. In 1954 he won several prizes in Washington D.C., which led to his debut with The National Symphony. Mr. Lorenz's first extensive tour of the U.S. was in 1957.

Presently Mr. Lorenz is professor of piano at California State University, Fresno, and guest artist at the Universidad Veracruzana in Mexico. Lorenz's concert at the Cal Poly Theatre will include works by Brahms, Beethoven, Ravel, Debussy, and the California premiere of Robert Gerster's "The Silver Palace of Night (1981)."

The free presentations, open to the public as well as Cal Poly students, faculty, and staff, will show how English skills can be utilized in such fields as technical communications, mass media, and domestic and international business.

Marguerite Stafford (Placement Office) will begin the series with tips on job searching and the services offered by the Placement Office. Stafford, who helps students in the School of Communicative Arts and Humanities with job placement, will speak at 11 am on Oct. 8 in Agriculture 223. Equipment operators' safety program

The School of Agriculture and Natural Resources will be holding its Equipment Operators' Safety Program Friday, Oct. 23, and Saturday, Oct. 24.

CAL-OSHA requires that all operators of farm equipment be instructed in its safe operation through an initial safety program session followed by a yearly update session. All persons who plan to operate equipment, including forklifts, from the Farm Shop are required to attend one of the two sessions scheduled for the Fall Quarter. The sessions will be held in agricultural engineering shop 6.

New operators can attend one of the initial program sessions on Friday (Oct. 23), 1:45 to 3 pm, or Saturday (Oct. 24), 9 to 10:15 am. Those who attended one of the initial safety program sessions last year can attend one of the yearly update sessions on Friday (Oct. 23), 1 to 1:30 pm, or Saturday (Oct. 24), 8:15 to 8:45 am.

First Farwest rep on campus

Because of increasing interest in the First Farwest Health Insurance Plan, arrangements have been made for a representative to be on campus monthly. A First Farwest representative will be in the Staff Dining Room Wednesday (Oct. 14) from 9 am to 2 pm to answer questions and claim problems. Thereafter, the representative will be available the first Wednesday of every month. Appointments are not necessary. For further information contact Barbara Melvin (Personnel) at Ext. 2236.

Information on heart disease available

Copies of "Lifeline," a newsletter containing recent information on how to avoid heart disease, were distributed this week to Cal Poly employees by the Health Center. Employees should have received copies through their departments and offices in the same way copies of Cal Poly Report are regularly distributed.

Medical technology costs to be discussed

"Human Values and the Cost of Medical Technology" will be the topic of a lecture to be given by Linda Atwood (Chemistry) on Thursday, Oct. 15, at Cal Poly. Scheduled as the second presentation of the Arts and Humanities 1981-82 Lecture Series, her lecture will begin at 11 am in University Union 220. The public is invited to attend free of charge.

Dr. Atwood will discuss the relationship between cost-effectiveness and human values in evaluating the use of medical technology. She will present a perspective developed from current statistics on heart transplants, the costs of heart surgery in general, and experience with other high-technology high-cost procedures.

The effort will be to put these areas of controversy into historical, economic, and human perspective. Dr. Atwood will also examine strategies proposed for reconciling the costs of medical technology with human values.

Dr. Atwood is a graduate of Bard College in New York and Wesleyan University in Connecticut, where she earned her master's and doctor's degrees in chemistry. In her six years at Cal Poly, Dr. Atwood has served on several study groups and committees, and as an active member of the Academic Senate. She has also presented seminars and programs on drugs and poisons, and written or co-authored three study guides.

Odyssey cancels

The Odyssey Theatre Ensemble of Los Angeles has cancelled its Oct. 15 performance at Cal Poly. Citing cast changes and scheduling conflicts, a spokesman for the theatre troupe said that its production of "Nightclub Cantata" would not be ready for the announced date.

Vintage season subscribers will be notified by mail of a new date for "Nightclub Cantata." Single ticket purchasers will be notified of a new date in the coming weeks. The Odyssey Theatre Ensemble was to have been the first engagement of the ASI Fine Arts Committee's new Vintage fine arts performance series.
