

Cal Poly Report

Vol. 33, No. 61 Thursday, March 3, 1983

Former Congressman will speak today

A former Republican congressman from Colorado will give a public lecture titled "Congress in the Contemporary Political Setting" today (March 3) at 11 am in the Cal Poly Theatre.

Frank Evans is spending a week at Cal Poly (Feb. 28 to March 4) meeting with classes and the university community. His appearance at Cal Poly is sponsored by the Association of Former Members of Congress and funded by the Mott Foundation.

Wenzl named rep for Rhodes Scholarship Trust

Michael Wenzl of the English Department faculty has been named the Cal Poly Institutional Representative to the Rhodes Scholarship Trust. Wenzl will assume this responsibility immediately.

The first selection of Rhodes Scholarship nominees from Cal Poly will occur this year. The deadline for submission of applications will be Nov. 1. Anyone seeking additional information on the application procedures or interested in participating in the selection process should contact Prof. Wenzl at ext. 2184 or ext. 2596.

Task Force update

The Task Force on University Reorganization has been meeting since October. Early discussions were devoted to definition of Task Force goals and development of an approach to a complex problem. These discussions were followed by sessions during which careful review of all of the academic programs at the University was carried out. Formal and informal comments have been received from many people.

With the review and self-education stage completed, the Task Force is now putting together an integrated reorganization plan for Cal Poly. A number of different proposals are being considered. The Task Force expects to have one or more suggestions for campus review within a month.

Heaton appointed athletics director

Richard Heaton, acting director for the past 18 months, has been selected by Cal Poly President Warren J. Baker to lead the university's intercollegiate athletics program.

In making the announcement, President Baker said that "Heaton has made a significant contribution to the intercollegiate athletics program of the university, and he enjoys wide-ranging support from students, faculty, staff, alumni, and friends of Cal Poly. In addition, he recognizes the priority of academics for today's student athlete at Cal Poly."

A seven-member review committee, composed of students, faculty and staff, screened nearly 80 applicants before suggesting a list of three finalists to Howard West, associate executive vice president, who is responsible for the intercollegiate athletics program.

Heaton will succeed Vic Buccola, who was director of intercollegiate athletics for eight years before returning to full-time teaching in the Physical Education Department in the Fall of 1981.

The permanent appointment of the 46-year-old educator is effective immediately.

A Division II sports powerhouse, Cal Poly has amassed 19 national titles, a new record for NCAA Division II schools. Cal Poly competes on the intercollegiate level in nine men's sports and eight women's sports.

Faculty exchange publication available

Faculty members interested in exchanging positions with faculty at other western campuses may be interested in a new publication.

Faculty Exchanges, published by the Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education (WICHE), lists over 200 higher education faculty members who would like to exchange positions for a semester or longer during the 1983-84 academic year or for the summer. The request for participants from Cal Poly was run in the Sept. 30 issue of Cal Poly Report.

Individual copies can be obtained at no charge by writing to: Faculty Exchanges, WICHE, P.O. Drawer P, Boulder, CO 80302.

Arts and Humanities lecture cancelled

The Arts and Humanities lecture by Bruce Burdick scheduled for 11 am today (March 3) in UU 220 has been CANCELLED.

Grant awarded for London study program

A $2,500 grant from a private foundation will make possible a Spring Quarter test of a new but unofficial overseas study program for Cal Poly architecture students. The grant was made to architecture professor Merrill C. Gaines by the L.J. Skaggs and Mary C. Skaggs Foundation of Oakland. Gaines is personally organizing the experimental program and will take leave from his university teaching post for the quarter.

Up to 12 Cal Poly fourth-year students are to attend classes in the Architecture Unit at the Polytechnic of Central London, a university-level professional school. Courses will be similar to fourth-year work at Cal Poly. The students also will have studios in the British school. They will not be registered as Cal Poly students for the quarter.

If this pilot program proves successful, Gaines said he hopes to see it established as an official university program conducted at least once every two years for about 16 to 20 students.

Dance workshop

Dancers of all ages are invited to take part in a Dance Workshop being planned for Saturday, March 5, in Crandall Gymnasium and the adjacent Dance Studio at Cal Poly. Scheduled for all day, the event will include 90-minute sessions of aerobics, beginning and intermediate ballet, country dance, gymnastics, beginning and intermediate jazz, modern dance, social dance, tap dance, and yoga.

It will begin with registration at 9 am in the Crandall Gym foyer. The $5 fee for the day's program will include the cost of refreshments. Proceeds from the event will be used for various activity programs of the Cal Poly chapter of the California Association for Health, Physical Education, Recreation, and Dance, which is its sponsor.

Reminders from the State warehouse

- All white paper may be disposed of in SORT boxes located in department offices. Call the State Warehouse at ext. 2872 for pick-up of sorted paper.
- State Stores is using a new numbering system in the catalogs recently distributed on campus. This system does NOT apply to our own Campus Supply Catalog at this time. When ordering from the Cal Poly Warehouse, please use the numbers as listed in the Campus Supply Catalog. A new catalog will be printed this summer, but until that time, the procedure for ordering supplies on-campus remains the same.

Cal Poly Band plans trip

The 60-member Cal Poly Band has been invited by the City of Geneva, Switzerland, to represent the United States at the prestigious 1983 "Fetes de Geneve" this summer. But...there's a catch. In order to make the music, the band first has to make some money—about $20,000—in order to completely finance the trip.

The total cost of the trip is estimated at $100,000 with 80 percent raised through contributions from the City of Geneva; other Swiss musical organizations; Cal Poly's Associated Students Inc.; and by the band members themselves, who will personally pay a large portion of their round-trip airfare costs from Los Angeles to Zurich.

Several fund-raising benefits have been scheduled for the spring, and band director William V. Johnson said the band is interested in booking other engagements in the community in order to raise money.

So far, three fund-raising events have been scheduled by the band in order to help raise the remaining $20,000, with one event, a Home Concert July 26, providing Central Coast residents with a preview of the works the band will play in Switzerland.

Also scheduled is a benefit performance by the famous Musashino Academia Musicae Wind Ensemble of Japan April 27, and a benefit barbecue at the Sands Motel May 1 hosted by motel owner Jesse Norris.

The invitation to perform at Fetes de Geneve (Festival of Geneva) is offered very selectively, with only one band from each of about 10 countries being invited.

Cal Poly ranks high in Thoroughbred breeding

Cal Poly has been named among the "Top Ten Breeders" of Thoroughbred horses in California of the over 100 listed breeders and breeding farms. The announcement was published in the February issue of The Thoroughbred of California magazine based upon the results of the Fall 1982 racing season.

Offspring of Cal Poly mares are trained by students participating in the Thoroughbred Enterprise Program of the Animal and Veterinary Science Department. The students prepare the yearlings for the Two-Year-Olds In-Training Sale at Hollywood Park each March. Roger Hunt, animal/veterinary science professor, is advisor for the enterprise program.

The Breeders Awards were established by state legislation in 1980 and are paid to breeders of horses finishing first, second or third in a California race in an amount equal to 10 percent of a horse's purse earnings.

Women's Lives... Women's History

National Women's History Week is being celebrated on campus this week through Monday, March 7.

This celebration "provides an opportunity for various facets of the community to focus attention on the lost heritage of women's contributions to society," President Baker said in a memo to school deans and department heads.

As the theme suggests, President Baker said, the week's activities focus attention on Women's Lives...Women's History. Faculty and staff are encouraged to attend.

Activities for the week are being coordinated by Willie Coleman of the Activities Planning Center. Further information can be obtained by calling her at ext. 2476.

Former faculty member appointed to state post

Former Cal Poly student and faculty member George Gomes has been named chief deputy director for the California Department of Food and Agriculture.

Gomes, a 1966 agricultural business management graduate, also taught in the Agricultural Management Department from 1967-71.

Gomes is a former board member of the Napa County Fair, and since 1975 he has headed up the Fairs and Expositions division of the California agricultural agency, serving under former director Richard Rominger. In his new post, Gomes will report to Clare Berryhill, named in January as director of the Department of Food and Agriculture by Gov. George Deukmejian.

Fellowship awarded to philosophy professor

A fellowship has been awarded to philosophy professor Laurence Houlgate by the National Endowment for the Humanities in support of his study of the role of the state's power over family sovereignty. Houlgate said he hopes his research will help advance a theory of family policy upon which rational decisions about the kinds of limits that the state can justifiably impose on the family can be based.

Houlgate is a family policy specialist and author of the book, "The Child and the State," published in 1980 by the John Hopkins University Press.

Noted psychiatrist at Cal Poly

Two widely different concepts in the treatment of criminals will be discussed by internationally known forensic psychiatrist Dr. Seymour Halleck in a public lecture scheduled for Thursday, March 10.

Titled "Crime: Rehabilitation Versus Retribution," his address will begin at 11 am in Chumash Auditorium under sponsorship of the Student Affairs Division and Counseling and Testing Center. Co-sponsors of Dr. Halleck's appearance are the San Luis Obispo County Psychological Association and the San Luis Obispo County Community Mental Health Centers.

Dr. Halleck, a board-certified neurologist and psychiatrist, has been on the faculty of the School of Medicine at University of North Carolina since 1972. He received the Arthur Marshall Distinguished Alumnus Award from the Menninger School of Psychiatry in 1974; the Edwin Sutherland Award from the American Society of Criminology, 1978; and the Isaac Ray Award from the American Psychiatric Association, 1980.

Don't forget. . .

...the Health Examnetics Mobile Health Testing Unit will be on campus from March 9 to 12 for the annual health screening program sponsored by the Association of California State University Professors. This testing program is available to all faculty and staff members and their families (age 13 and above). To schedule an appointment, call tollfree 800-542-6233.

Who, What, When, Where

Tomlinson Fort, Jr., Academic Affairs, presented a research paper titled "Polymerization in Monomolecular Films of Octadecyl Acrylate" at the 1982 annual meeting of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers in Los Angeles Nov. 14-19.

George Gowgani and Howard Rhoads, Crop Science, accompanied students to the 35th annual California Weed Conference Jan. 14-20 in San Jose. Rhoads, past president of the conference, presented a paper, "Weeds—What Kind of Plants Are They?" Gowgani, former director and present Collegiate Committee chairman of the conference, talked on the classification and reproduction modes of weeds and weed control implications. Rick Gambril, a senior crop science major, addressed the 1,100 membership audience on the "Educational Agricultural Programs as Viewed by a Student." Gambril placed second in a statewide student poster competition. Peter Bowman, OH, placed third.

Charles M. Burt, Agricultural Engineering, has been appointed to the Advisory Committee of the Office of Water Conservation. The OWC directs and funds major research and farming efforts for water conservation in California.
