Underdog takes bite

by JOHN FITZRANDOLPH
Staff Writer

There is in California today a rising river of discord, discourtesy, disappointment. There is, on this campus, a professor who wants to slow that river and make its waters peaceful.

Clearly an underdog, unbound by deals, uncomfortable with platitudes, Raymond Haight runs a quiet Don Quixote campaign for Ronald Reagan's job with "A few friends and a few ideas."

He would like to see a political campaign where "not much money is spent. I'm down on billboards nailed on trees. If students are for me, they should put a picture of Don Quixote in the window—or my name."

Both sides, reactionaries and revolutionaries, "attack, attack, attack," he says, in a patient, professor's voice. "My big theme is polarization. Everybody, the right and the left, has got to work together and stop polarizing."

Haight came to this college last year to teach political science and history after 20 years of high school and elementary and adult education experience in Redlands. He is 48.

He is in the campaign because of his associations with students—"I see young people asking beautiful questions"—and because he fears further social polarization if either of his Democrat opponents—Jesse Unruh, Sam Yorty—are elected.

"I have never seen so many pressures on students. Vietnam threatens students. This new thing (the draft lottery) is maybe worse than the old thing."

"Students notice that Standard Oil continues to drill for oil and pollute. Students begin to think about their value system. Along comes the lawyer for the 'Chicago 7' and the next thing—students get caught up and down the street."

"It's difficult to justify the burning of banks," he says, but adds, "young people have the principles, they know where they want to go."

"You don't blame Governor Reagan" for the disruptions on colleges, "you blame the society that supports his stand against change. I don't think Reagan understands the young," he says, referring to Reagan's inability to relate to students.

"My age group was brought up under the philosophy that you spank the child. You have to have some compassion."

Ideas, not individuals, are the subjects of Haight's political criticisms. He paid $682 in filing fees. He and his attractive wife

Mary Ellen work up to eighteen hours daily in their Garfield Arms apartment "peppering newspapers with news releases."

People, not broadcasted chicken political fund raisers or oily computerized machinery, will support his efforts.

"I'm going to have a platform based on ideas suggested to me by little people. We've got to use all of our people."

Haight is also relying heavily upon "the excellent news media coverage we have today" to question him and report his views to the public.

Greying hair, soft eyes, careful language, Haight looks and sounds like an understanding father. He speaks quietly but quickly when spoken to. He listens more to his Afro-American History students than he lectures. He says he learns "a great deal" that way.

Black students are particularly enlightening to him, he says, though he makes no special appeal to groups—cultural, ethnic, or racial—because polarization comes from special deals and appeals, he asserts.

He alludes frequently to books and essays and student opinions which support his feeling that "education must get back into society the way it was in primitive societies. A five year old should have a feeling that he is contributing something valuable."

His decision to challenge Unruh and Yorty came after consultation with his closest political allies—his family. "I have four sons—three in college. My sons know that I care. I feel much freer than other politicians."

"I am the most frightening kind of guy to the politicians. I am free. I am a teacher. If I get into office, I'm not bound by deals or promises to lobbyists or bankers."

If he were in office today, he would "stop every freeway being built until we find out what we're doing." Oil pollution, he believes "very strongly," effects "all life forms along the coast. You simply have to stop drilling in Santa Barbara."

When Haight's candidacy was made public last quarter, students responded in a "Fan-

Site picketed

A Pacific Gas and Electric Co. proposal to put a rock quarry four miles up See Canyon was met by a dozen picketing Cal Poly students last Friday.

The students, members of the campus Ecology Action Committee, quietly toted signs in front of PG&E's downtown office that ranged from appeals to "Save Our See" to proclamations that "PG&E Is Living In the Stone Age."

PG&E has been searching for a possible quarry site for the last several months. The quarry would serve to provide material for construction of a breakwater at the company's Diablo Canyon nuclear power plant.

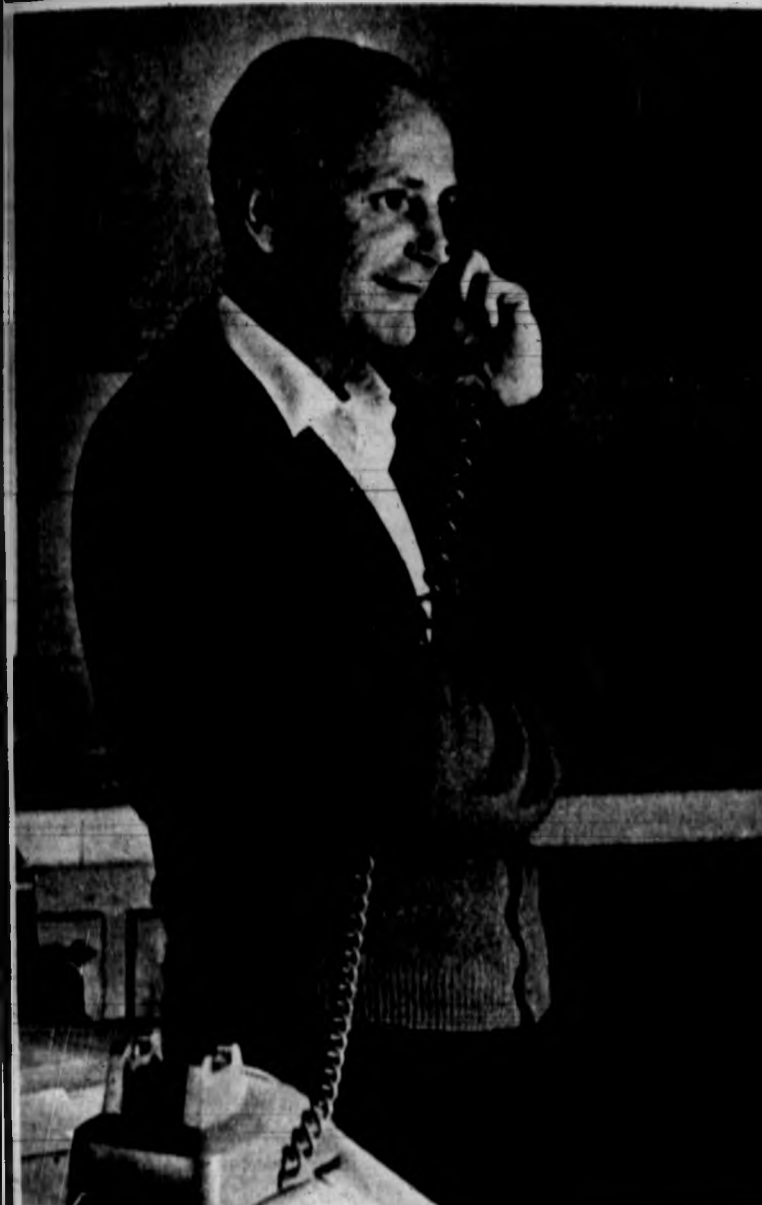

On Friday, PG&E spokesman said that there were still several sites under consideration and that the See Canyon site was just a proposal.

On Monday, PG&E announced that the See Canyon site would be abandoned. All rock for the construction of the breakwater would come from the Diablo Canyon power plant site.

Any additional rock, according to a PG&E official, will be quarried from the Kaiser quarry in Santa Margarita.

PICKETS...take a stand in front of PG&E office.

CASUAL CAMPAIGN . . . typical of the move that Raymond Haight, instructor at this school, is carrying in his fight for governor is the phone conversations that he uses to get much of his platform out to his voters. Haight is vying for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Academic change

A new academic organization for this college has been revealed by Pres. Robert E. Kennedy.

The new structure, which will take effect by the Fall Quarter, 1970, increases the number of academic schools here from five to seven and creates five new academic departments.

Kennedy said faculty members of the newly established schools and departments will be involved in consultative procedures for the selection of two academic deans and five department heads.

The new structure provides for a new School of Business and Social Sciences and a new School of Communicative Arts and Humanities.

New instructional departments to be formed are: Economics, Foreign Language and Linguistics, Philosophy, Transportation Engineering, and Women's Physical Education. Under the new academic plan of organization the academic schools will be: School of Agriculture and Natural Resources, administered by Dean J. Cordner Gibson; School of Architecture and Environmental Design, Dean George Hasslein; School of Engineering and Technology, Dean Archie Higdon; School of Human Development and Education, Dean Carl Cummins; School of Science and Mathematics, Dean Clyde P. Fisher; and the two new schools with deans to be appointed.

Kennedy said the new organizational structure "appears to be acceptable to a very substantial majority of all faculty members" and includes adjustments made to the original proposal as a result of faculty input from all departments.

The new organization will be reflected in the 1970-71 catalog which will be published in June.

Marines recruit here

Multiple opportunities for officer commissions in the United States Marine Corps will be outlined here for interested students on 31 March—2 April 1970 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Snack Bar.

Tile talk tonight

The newly chartered student chapter of the Construction Specifications Institute will sponsor a "Talk on Tile" tonight at 7:30.

Mr. George Lavenberg, from the Ceramic and Tile Institute will be the guest speaker. "He'll be discussing the different types of tile, and tiles application in architecture," explained Willy Mautner, CSI president.

The talk begins at 7:30 p.m. tonight in the Architecture Gallery.

The Agricultural Business, Home Economics and Agricultural Engineering Club is sponsoring a book drive to provide college level books for the further education of college youth in Asian countries.

The drive will go on until April 4. Many spots on campus have boxes for the collection.

Both aviation and line officer programs will be explained by Major E. O. LeRoy and Captain R. R. Bowen. Officer Training Programs available to women students will be explained by Captain D. G. Aberlin, Woman Officer Selection Officer.

Training for qualified freshmen, sophomores and juniors is available under the Platoon Leaders Class Program. Training, with pay, is conducted during summer vacations at two separate six-week instruction periods. No military classes or drills during the school year are required by the PLC or PLC (Aviation) programs. The candidate is commissioned at graduation and proceeds to advanced training as either a ground or aviation officer.

College seniors and graduates may apply for a commission under either the Officer Candidate Course or the Aviation Officer Candidate Course.

The Marine Corps also offers commissions through the Officer Candidate (Scholarship) Programs to qualified Junior College graduates or to persons who have completed at least two years of college.

Worthy notation

Due to the tremendous volume of campus news events that have taken place over the past few weeks, we feel compelled to list them briefly in this regular editorial space:

Completion of the new College Union has again been rescheduled. The new date is sometime in the fall of 1972.

Faculty members have been instructed to bar from their classroom any student who arrives with bare feet.

The Student Judiciary recently completed an investigation into reports of cribbing among this school's physical education majors.

The El Corral Bookstore was recently busted for the sale of pornographic material.

The Administration Building was abuzz recently when it was learned that President Kennedy's secretary's cactus flowered.

The school cafeteria is being considered for the second filming of "True Grit."

Paul Kresge has been appointed by Gov. Reagan to a position of Chief Advisor on campus disorders.

All narcotics informers on this campus have been asked to report to the Little Theater on Tuesday, April 7, at 10 a.m. for yearbook pictures.

It is hoped that this brief summary has helped to inform any student who has been out of contact with campus news in recent weeks. Have a nice April, fools.

Poetry reading

Next time you squeeze a tube of toothpaste, think about how that tube is like your own life. "When it is new it's full and smooth; nice. When it grows old, the tube is flattened and crumpled and then unceremoniously thrown away." These are the sentiments of Tobie Lurie, psychedelic Santa Barbara poet, who will present poetic readings on Thursday, April 2 at 11 a.m. on the library lawn.

Lurie likens his verse to the sculptured sounds of musical score. It is a blend of all the elements of music, except for actual melody. Among the characteristics are tempo, form, rhythm, pitch, repetition and dynamics.

The avant-garde poet advocates that poetry should be spoken and not read. "I fuse words with music but I keep it in the spoken form," he says. By the use of "One Word Poems", Lurie leads a listener into a very complete meaning of a word through the use of syllables. His poetry is built with syllables repeated and rearranged until the work is not only experienced but understood.

Like most poets Lurie spreads his philosophy of life throughout his speech and work. Lurie contends that "when a person lives in unawareness and becomes the pot belly of the intellect, he should ask himself—when did I die". He believes that there must be contact between the poet and the audience, achieves this through audience participation in chant poems.

Lurie, a native of Seattle, author of the book, "Meaning Space", published last year and has recorded his first LP record, "Word Trips."

tastic!" manner. He entered classroom to administer a final exam and received a "standing ovation" from his anthropology students.

He also received $50.12 in passed hat from these students which left him "a bit worried about what Sam Yorty or John Unruh might think of the conflict of interest charge."

"I'll be perfectly happy to receive any donations from anybody," he says, adding that no strings will be attached to using 10 per cent of his income to finance his efforts.

Excitement, for Lurie, is to receive memos, notes, phone calls, letters, any form of communication from those who are "disenfranchised, disadvantaged in any way concerned about problems we face."

One-to-One tutors gain new experience, friends

By DORTHEA MILLER
Staff Writer

A young girl waits at the door of the junior high school for the appearance of her special friend. She smiles as her friend drives up. She slides into the front seat of the car and they start chatting about where to go. The place is not important as long as it is quiet for the friend is tutoring the young girl.

The friend is a member of One-to-One Tutorial, an organization of approximately 50 college students. Each member volunteers to help a youngster in his difficult subject each week and to be his friend. And the friendship is as important to the youngster as the tutoring is, because it shows that someone cares. Helping the children improve and achieve is a source of satisfaction to the tutor as well as the pupil. When the youngster succeeds, the tutor also succeeds. Tutoring provides invaluable experience for those planning to work with children.

Students do their tutoring during school hours or immediately afterward, usually one hour a week, and in both elementary and junior high schools. The main subject requiring tutoring is math, but help is also given in reading if necessary. One-to-One Tutorial reaches children in Atascadero, Grover City, Shell Beach, and Mirro Bay as well as San Luis Obispo, and includes handicapped children. Students form car pools to serve the south county areas.

To avoid the "all work and no play" adage, the group schedules a social activity or field trips for their members once each quarter. Past activities have included a train trip to Santa Margarita and a tour of the Ag units on campus. The trips are financed by fund-raising projects of the organization and by assistance from ASI.

The idea of One-to-One Tutorial was brought to this campus in 1965 by Chris Bunn, a transfer student from Lake Forrest College near Chicago. Chris received his degree in 1967, spent two years in Colombia in the Peace Corps, and is now back on campus earning his teaching credential.

UMAS moves to help

The United Mexican-American Students (UMAS) are promoting proposals for a vestibule program for Incoming Economic Opportunity Program students.

Alejandro Reynoso, Social Science major and UMAS representative to the Ethnic Studies Advisory Committee says, many EOP students are lacking basic skills, "but not because they don't have the intelligence."

He proposed expansion and improvement of the existing tutorial program, including classes in the basic skills. Eventually he wants to see an entire curriculum for EOP students during the Summer Quarter.

SPEAKER'S BUREAU FORMED UMAS promotes cause

A speaker's bureau has been formed by the United Mexican-American Students (UMAS). Students and college personnel will be available to all on and off campus groups and organizations interested in learning about "la causa," the Mexican-American cause.

UMAS President Oscar Quesada, an Agricultural Business Management major, hopes that establishment and use of the bureau will help promote understanding of "la causa."

The club, which is committed to the improvement of the undesirable and detrimental status of the Mexican-American people, does not restrict its membership to Chicano students only. Quesada pointed out that "any student sympathetic with the objectives of the club are welcome to join."

Special concerns of UMAS include tutoring Mexican-American children through the One-to-One Tutorial Program. Members have also lent their hands to the Head Start Programs in Paso Robles, Atascadero, and San Luis Obispo, repairing building, making toys, and improving a playground in the Hawthorne area of San Luis Obispo.

For more information about the bureau, phone Quesada, 543-2199, or Mollie Delgado, 546-3874.

Bill proposed for new parks

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblyman Alan Sieroty, D-Beverly Hills, today proposed a bill to require land developers to set aside a part of a subdivision for park or recreational purposes.

"Every day thousands of acres of open spaces are being developed for residential use. Too often developers ignore totally the need for parks and recreational land," Sieroty said.

Present law allows cities and counties to require parks, he said, but "too few" local governments have imposed the requirement on developers.

Sterile fruit fly back on scene

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department reported today the first known infestation in four years of California citrus by the Mexican fruit fly.

One of the destructive pests was found in San Diego, department scientists said.

The Mexican fruit fly was thought to have been wiped out by 1969 after 22 million male flies were reared, sterilized and released in California, Arizona and northern Mexico.

The sterilized flies prevented any reproduction of the species because eggs from their matings could not hatch.

Interviews here

Peace Corps representatives will be on campus through Friday for recruitment of teachers for Peace Corps service overseas.

Abdul Matin, a native of Afghanistan, serves the Peace Corps as a program supervisor. He received his M.A. in Educational Administration from Colorado State University and his B.A. in Teaching English as a Foreign Language from Kabul University. He is on leave from the Institute for Education at Kabul University as National English Supervisor.

Constance Swonger finished a two-year assignment as a Peace Corps Volunteer in Turkey in June of 1968. She came directly back to the United States and spent last year telling other Americans about the Peace Corps. This year the Peace Corps has assigned Miss Swonger to the Western Region, where she is concentrating her efforts on college and university campuses in California and Arizona.

Matin and Swonger, both enthusiastic and experienced Peace Corps representatives, will be in BA & E 101 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The Peace Corps has a great need for teachers to begin two years of service overseas this summer, according to campus Peace Corps representatives.

Rally postponed

The car rally scheduled by the Rallymasters has been postponed due to technical difficulties. It was originally scheduled for Friday, April 3, and a new date will be announced by the club later.

'No budget' solution found

Providing a broad range of industrial arts courses has become a major problem for the small rural and private high schools. Most of these schools do not have the funds to provide the needed instructors and equipment. Industrial technology has provided one possible solution to this problem.

Joe Felardo, senior Industrial Technology major has spent the last 10 months in formulating and executing a program that will allow many secondary schools to start industrial arts courses that could not before have had them.

Started as his senior project during the past summer "A No Budget Method for Establishing a High School Electronics Program" has occupied almost all of Felardo's time, in work with the Mission High School authorities in San Luis Obispo.

"I first came in contact with the students of Mission High School through the Newman Center. Many of the students come to Mass here on Sundays, and attend several of the other functions. It was through them that I learned that Mission had no industrial arts program, and I began thinking about this project," said Felardo.

Equipment for the program was donated by several local and national companies. Explained Felardo, "Actually we needed only a limited amount of extra equipment, soldering irons and so forth. A great deal of the necessary equipment can be found in the schools physics and chemistry labs. We wrote to several large companies across the country for donations of additional materials."

The experimental course was offered twice a week for the first semester of the 1969-70 school year. "Response at the high school was very good," said Felardo. "For our first class we had 10 students, nine boys and a girl."

Since the close of the semester said Felardo, "Sixty people have inquired about taking the course and when it will be offered again. That constitutes about 25 per cent of the student body at Mission."

Only 12% of campus protests war-related, study discovers

CHICAGO (UPI)—Only 12 per cent of the nation's one-a-day student protests are war-related.

That is the conclusion of John Naisbitt, president of the Urban Research Corporation, a Chicago-based research firm which says it has monitored student protests for the last two years.

Naisbitt said Sunday college campuses are now erupting in protest at the rate of more than one a day this year. While only a few are publicized, major incidences of student protest have occurred on 65 campuses in 29 states from mid-January to March during a seven-week period, he said.

Although violence was uncommon, Naisbitt said, "on occasion student actions and administrative responses were extreme."

He said the most prevalent of student demands was for a voice at all levels of the school's decision making process and for recognition of minority students. Only 12 per cent of student protests were about the war, he said.

Urban Research corp.'s study of campus protests during 1969 will be published by Bantam Books in April as "Right On! A Documentary of Student Protest."

Tracksters no. 1 in Easter meet

Setting meet records Mohinder Gill and Aaron Weber led the Mustang track team to victory in the college division of the 32nd annual Easter Relays in Santa Barbara last Saturday.

Gill was named the outstanding athlete of the college division for his record setting 52 feet, 7 1/4 inches effort in the triple jump. Weber soared 15 feet, 6 1/4 inches in the pole vault, breaking the old record by five inches. Gill's and Weber's efforts were also new Mustang records.

All totaled the Mustangs, coached by Dick Purcell, captured four first, five seconds, one third and four fourths which garnered them 54 points and the meet. The team's closest competition came from Cal State Hayward which finished second with 25 points. Third and fourth went to San Fernando Valley State, 24 points and Northern Arizona, 23 points.

The Mustangs other two first came in the shot and the two-mile relay.

In the University division the University of California, Berkeley displayed its tremendous strength as it beat such notables as Washington and power house San Jose State.

Rodeo team wins in Fresno

Continuing its winning way the rodeo team galloped past the University of Arizona 646 to 274 to win the Fresno State College Rodeo March 14-15.

The Mustangs were led to their third victory of the season by rough stock rider Melvin Dick. Dick grabbed a first place in both saddle bronc and bareback to win his second All-round Championship with 174 points.

The girls team fell to the University of Arizona 367 to 319. The All-round Championship went to Linda Browning of the University of Arizona with 130 points. Poly's rugged cowgirl Sharon Meffan tied Cinda Goodman from the University of Arizona for second place in the all-round standings with 127 points.

In the saddle bronc event the Mustangs had a clean sweep with Dick first, Dennis Pleasant second and Greg Riedel third.

Dick once again led in the bareback competition with Pleasant taking third place for the locals.

Poly dominated the timed events with Jerry Kolle taking a first in calf roping and Larry Ferguson capturing the honors in ribbon roping.

The Mustangs failed to capture top spots in the bull riding and bull dogging.

Donna Carter had the best average in the goat tying to take first place followed by Sharon Meffan in second. Miss Meffan also tied up a third place in break-away roping, with Robin Duncanson close behind in fourth place.

In barrel racing Miss Duncanson's tow-go-round average was good enough for a second place.

The team's next competition will be April 11-12, at Hartnell J.C.

Treanor no-hits Pomona

by PAUL SIMON
Sports Writer

A rejuvenated Mustang baseball team rose from the depths of the league cellar last week by sweeping a three-game series from Cal Poly Pomona.

Headed by Dean Treanor's no-hit shut out in the opening game of a Thursday doubleheader here, the Mustangs upped their California Collegiate Athletic Association record to 4-3 and ran its winning streak to four games. "We're a completely different team," explained coach Augie Garrido. "We're together." The Mustang mentor said each player is contributing to the winning and are learning to work with each other.

Returning to the form that brought him all-conference laurels, last year Treanor struck out five and yielded two walks in gaining his third win of the season Thursday. He cut down the Broncos in order six times, and at one point mowed down 17 enemy batters in order.

He faced serious trouble only once; Pomona advanced runners to second and third with two out in the seventh, but, a pop fly to center ended the brief rally.

Lee Smith, Mustang first baseman, powered his second round-tripper of the season in the seventh inning after Rick Pence's single had driven in Robin Baggett, with Poly's first run in the fifth. The two runs were all Treanor needed for the 2-0 gem.

Baggett, Mustang catcher, drove in the winning run in the final inning of the second game as his team completed the doubleheader on top of a 3-2 thriller.

Pomona had taken an early 2-0 lead, and held a 2-1 margin going into the bottom of the seventh inning. The Mustangs managed two base hits and a walk to load the bases, and a ground out tied the game at 2-2. Baggett then lashed out his hit that brought in Lathan Marsh with the decisive tally.

The win went to Tim Harden, the third Mustang hurler to make an appearance in the contest.

Garrido's nine pounded out 12 hits in route to a 9-4 smash of Pomona in the series opener on Wednesday. Allen Noble picked up his first CCAA victory, and also drove in a pair of runs in the game.

A four-run sixth inning won it for the Mustangs, although the Broncos produced a two-run homer by second baseman Dan Blood in the eighth.

Poly's slugging center fielder, Dave Yeasell, hit a two-run homer in the first and also delivered a run-producing double to increase his .444 league batting average. Glenn Egusa, Mike Nichols, and Rick Pence each had a pair of hits in the game, with Egusa and Nichols each swatting a double.

Pomona invaded San Luis in a virtual tie for first place with San Fernando Valley State and left filling the void in the cellar vacated by the Mustangs.

Garrido's diamondmen had their win streak snapped at four when they lost a heart breaker to the University of California, Berkeley two days later 3-2. The bears pushed across a run in the top of the ninth inning for the victory.

The Mustang Fencing team felled their competitors, and emerged best in the west.

March 8, the fencing team, coached by Melva Irvin, travelled to San Fernando Valley State College for the Western Intercollegiate Fencing Championships.

Gold medals were won by four members of the Men's Foll team. Doug Skilling had a record of 16-2, Andy Perhach, 13-5, Bernie Guzenko, 12-6 and Brad Stewart, an alternate was the fourth victor.

Skilling's 16-2 record qualified him for the individual championships that same day. He took a sixth place, which qualified him for the nationals, at Notre Dame.
