RELATIONS CONFAB

Bias in S L O

by PAUL TOKUNAGA
Staff Writer

San Luis Obispo may finally be losing its reputation as "the little town with a mission."

More than 75 interested citizens, students and administrators greeted Garnett Hopkins, Jr., and his Human Relations Commission with their grievances, and for two hours Wednesday night the City Hall chambers literally shook, flinched and gasped as certain minority groups lashed the Establishment.

The meeting was planned by the Commission as an attempt to hear and perhaps resolve some of the complaints of the people regarding discrimination. The grievances centered around those regarding housing, employment, education and abortion.

Connie Whitney, a married student at the college complained of the high rent charged by the city landlords, which she described as "outrageous." She felt that the married students were especially being hurt by this. "I think the landlords are taking advantage of us. We have to have a place to stay. They know we are going to pay it."

Another married student, Starr Davis, found herself in the same predicament, "I feel we have been discriminated against and I think the 1700 married students here feel the same way." She explained that she and her husband searched for a reasonably-priced place for months and all they faced were signs that said: 'No Students.' Mrs. Davis continued: "All my income goes back into San Luis Obispo—it's not fair and I don't feel we can afford it."

Darryl Bandy, another student, told about three white coeds living in a house on Johnson Avenue who were harassed by the neighbors because they dated blacks, and eventually were forced to move out. Bandy, a senior, is the coordinator of the Free Breakfast program that has aroused the interests of concerned citizens of San Luis Obispo. The program—regarded by some people as "a communistic plot," or a movement sponsored by the Black Panthers—is a free-will, non-profit project designed to give the children of this community an opportunity to eat a hearty meal and to participate in various activities, such as trips to the parks, field trips and Easter egg hunts.

Hopkins expressed his feelings about this program by stating, "It's so good to see kids get together—forgetting race, creed and color and getting along like we should."

J. Norman Stone, was another who voiced his opinions about housing. Stone said he felt that "housing is tight all around, but especially tight for special individuals. Not just blacks and Mexican-Americans, but long-hairs and hippie-types. "We have a definite need for more housing."

The Rev. Ernest Smith of the St. Luke Missionary Baptist Church felt that blacks were being discriminated against in respect to job opportunities and housing. He claimed that there is a definite lack of blacks in the school system in San Luis Obispo, while there isn't in neighboring cities "like Paso Robles and Santa Maria." In regard to the housing problem, Mr. Smith believed that "if a man doesn't want me to rent his house, that's his privilege—but not because I'm black."

Mrs. Carol Callaway enlightened the commission and the citizens about the abortion practices in San Luis Obispo. She explained how easy it is for a pregnant, unwed "girl" to obtain an abortion in this city.

Her husband, Harold Callaway, joined his wife in their complaint about the practice, that he termed as "murder." Callaway claimed that "a child has as much right to live as anyone."

The general feeling of the people attending the meeting was perhaps best summed up by the words of a Mexican-American woman "have lived here for 20 years and I'm not going to leave—I'm going to fight it."

Is Vietnam legal?

BOSTON (UPI)—Republican Gov. Francis W. Sargent signed into law today unprecedented legislation challenging the constitutionality of the Vietnam War.

The governor added an emergency preamble making the law effective immediately.

The historic statute authorizes Massachusetts servicemen to refuse combat duty in the absence of a congressional declaration of war. It marks the first time a state has challenged the federal government's authority to conduct the Vietnam War.

The ultimate purpose of the legislation is to force the U.S. Supreme Court to rule on the constitutionality of the war.

Sargent could have vetoed the bill, returned it to the legislature with recommended changes, seek a court ruling on its constitutionality or let it become law without his signature.

Ski-good to bad

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The 10 a.m. ski report from the California State Automobile Association:

Highway 99: Squaw Valley 13-102 inches, spring, good; Alpine Meadows 68-108 inches spring, good.

Highway 395: June Mountain 2-6 feet, hard pack and spring, good; Mammoth Mountain 5 1-3 feet, packed and loose powder, very good.

Highway 108: Dodge Ridge 23-48 inches, spring, fair-good, closed after Sunday.

Nominations: teachers in line for awards

Nominations are now being accepted for the Distinguished Teacher Awards for 1969-70.

In considering the qualities that mark an outstanding teacher, the committee used the following criteria:

Evident student improvement in critical and analytical ability. Student ability to apply learning to future problems.

High degree of personal interaction between students and instructor.

Depth and breadth of instructor competency.

High personal standards of professional integrity.

Subject matter consistently accurate and fundamental.

Lectures interesting and well organized.

Impact of own knowledge and experience in teaching.

Teaching procedures contribute to student enthusiasm and high performance level.

Applications may be picked up in the General Office of the Administration Building or in the Temporary College Union. They must be returned to the chairman of the committee in the General Office by Tuesday, April 7.

A statement in support of the nomination is also requested.

Only the music will smoke

The Men's Gyn will rock to the sounds of Moody Blues and Cold Blood tonight, at 8 p.m.

This is the first concert since early last quarter. The cost is $3.50 per student.

A large problem at the last concert was smoking. Smoking is now prohibited because of the holes that were burned into the gym floor. Hard rock concerts have been outlawed due to the damage that resulted from smoking at the Steve Miller and Taj Mahal concert. Students are urged to help inform the audience of the no smoking rule.

"We expect a large turn out," said Assemblies Committee Chairman, Jeff Tonkin.

If you like weird things this may be your big chance. Even if you don't win a prize you'll get to display your "weird thing." (Details on page two.)

Poly Royal strange: weird contest started

Next to your roommate, or your favorite teacher, what is the weirdest thing you can think of?

Whatever it may be, design and construct your weird thing and have it ready to enter the Recreation and Tournaments Committee's Weird Thing Contest, April 20-25.

"There's no restriction on the subject matter, size, or building material used for the 'weird thing,'" explained RAT Committee Chairman Randy Dettmer.

The "things" will be on display on the lawn between B and E wing in the Science Building from April 20 through Poly Royal until April 25. "Everyone is eligible for the Weird Thing Contest, and there will be prizes awarded. Sign-ups will be held in the T.C.U.," Randy added.

RAT Committee also plans to sponsor a series of Rat Races, a Turkey Egg Toss, and a Gunny Sack Race during College Hour in the near future. On May 3, there will be a Kite Flying Contest, complete with a band at the Tree House, in Poly Canyon.

She never knew

Something every girl should know is... how to be feminine, non-aggressive and still be able to ward off an attacker. The Women's Recreation Association (WRA) of the Women's Physical Education Department hopes to show that self-defense can be fun, easy and requires little strength.

The WRA announces that Mr. Ken Ota, a black belt instructor in Aikido and Judo at the Cultural School in Santa Barbara, will be in Crandall Gym at 2:00 p.m. this Saturday for what promises to be an interesting demonstration on self-defense.

If enough interest is shown, sign-ups will be taken for self-defense classes on a weekly basis.

Nixon: from life to death

Two years ago Martin Luther King was murdered. Just before his death the Kerner report made official what King had known all along: the nation is ruled by a racist majority.

Appointed by and responsible to Lyndon Johnson, the Kerner Commission concluded that "there can be no higher priority for national action and no higher claim on the nation's conscience... than to mount a 'compassionate, massive and sustained...' attack on the root causes of racial misery and disorder.

Further, the Kerner report asserted that "only a commitment to national action on an unprecedented scale can shape a future compatible with the historic ideals of American society."

Time magazine (April 6, 1970) has put together an excellent report called "Black America 1970." The editors have devoted the entire issue to black views, black progress, black misery, black militancy.

For those Americans who are afraid of black people or do not feel comfortable around black people, Time offers beautiful medicine: information.

For those Americans who are not afraid of or uncomfortable with black people, Time offers readable, cogent, credible reporting.

Rev. Jesse Jackson, a close associate to King, is portrayed as "an intense, passionate advocate of using black economic power to force white-run businesses to provide more and better jobs for blacks."

Julian Bond, Bobby Seale, Whitney Young, Dick Gregory, to name a few black leaders, appear in the magazine.

But all the reporting in the universe cannot cover the fact that this country—and I mean Richard Nixon and his Administration—is not willing to accept the Kerner report's position that "There can be no higher priority" than domestic peace and racial justice.

Clearly, Nixon does not believe in racial justice. He has appointed two judges to the Supreme Court who reflect bland attitudes with reference to civil rights.

He (Nixon) has attempted to slow school integration. He has been advised by Daniel Patrick Moynihan—White House intellectual-in-residence—to begin a period of "benign neglect" in matters of race.

The Vietnam debacle drags on and black bodies are weekly shipped home to battered communities of neglect and despair.

Now, Laos and Cambodia are also a part of the war.

Instead of the priorities suggested by the Kerner report, Nixon wants more ABM's, an SST fleet, a bigger White House.

Nixon sends Spiro Agnew out to further polarize a society which is already shooting each other at a rate unprecedented in the world.

The Silent Majority should be given a voice, Nixon suggests, and the radicals who ask for social equity and constitutional reform should lower their voices.

It's easy to criticize Richard Nixon. His fascination with mud and rocks will burn up millions of dollars needed to reshape disfigured cities, revitalize disenchanted citizens.

Millions in dollars and helicopters have been given to Mexico to police the border and keep marijuana out. The U.S. Forest Service in James, New Mexico, has launched a "hippie patrol" designed to arrest those who cavort in the nude in forests—or "engage in mystic activities."

But there are other things Nixon should be doing. Let reading Time, for one.

Join the force, help needed

Optimistic architects will continue to work on their projects for Poly Royal, expanding their activities, as a plea goes out for more help from major and non-major students.

A work force will assemble this Saturday, at 9 a.m. in the Architecture Patio, and everyone is welcome to lend a hand, according to Steve Peterson, Publicity Chairman.

One of the work parties is needed to construct reinforcement bar cubes for various uses around campus during Poly Royal. Cubes are going to give a graphic unity to Poly Royal, as they will be seen all over campus as directional aids, concession stands, and displays.

The road to Poly Canyon is still being worked on, and there is still clean-up work to be done before any building can take place. The road is to be used to shuttle people in and out of the canyon, instead of the visitors driving or walking out by themselves.

Work will begin on the eight foot cube that will rest, on end, in front of the library on the lawn.

"Whether the work is for hours or involvement, or both, the architects need some help," concluded Steve.

Garrido for the defense

by PAUL SIMON
Sports Writer

A trial is to begin today. But, unlike most trials, there will be no judge or jury. And in place of a courtroom, the trial will be conducted on a baseball field.

The defendants are the members of the Mustang baseball team, and their lawyer is the renowned Augie Garrido. The charges are knocking off an opposing California Collegiate Athletic Association team three straight times.

The prosecution consists of the University of California Riverside Highlanders, who have travelled from afar. After emerging second best in four previous hearings in combat with other CCAA foes, they are intent upon a reversal of their fortunes.

Star witness for the defense is Dean Treanor, strong-armed pitcher with a 2-2 league mark who threw a no-hitter in last week's three game sweep of Cal Poly, Pomona. Treanor has instructions from Garrido to lead another series sweep, thus proving the alleged crimes were justifiable.

The intended victims are the Highlanders themselves, who have found rough going, and have an 0-4 CCAA record. But the Mustangs, perched precariously in the rarified air of second place in the conference, are "not going to take them too lightly," according to Garrido.

That clever field general is leery of the potential ability of the Highlanders, and is taking no chances. "We've got to keep winning," he avowed, while cautioning that his team would "play each game one at a time." Aware of Poly's lack of hitting in previous games, he will rely on hustle, defense, and strong pitching to win his case.

The pitching end is up to Treanor, Allen Noble, and either Bill Hall or Tim Hayden. Noble, with a 2.12 earned run average, will take the mound at 2:00 this afternoon. Treanor opens a doubleheader Saturday, and either Hall or Hyden will conclude the series.

The defendants in the trial, the Mustangs, know to lose the verdict would practically eliminate them from catching front-running San Fernando Valley State College, which is 4-0. It is up to them, and Lawyer Garrido, to vanquish UC Riverside and repeat, or at least substantiate, their recent success.

Wrestlers fall; big finals

Terry Hall is a black athlete, and a damn good wrestler—when he tries.

After taking first place in the College Division Nationals in mid-March, at 118 pounds and also capturing "best wrestler" honors, he fizzled out for the University Division Nationals.

He was infrequent in showing up for practice the week preceding the University Nationals and according to wrestling coach Vaughn Hitchcock, he was, "not in condition mentally or physically."

The Mustangs qualified five wrestlers for the nationals, only four of them made the trip. John Finch was unable to participate because of a separated shoulder.

Of the four wrestlers who did travel to Northwestern University in Illinois, only one had seen previous competition like they would encounter. Terry Hall was this person. In 1969, Hall placed third in this level of competition. This year he didn't even come close to placing.

The three other wrestlers that went to Northwestern, consisted of one freshman and two juniors. They were Glenn Anderson, 126, Lee Torres, 150, and Rich Simmons, 177.

Simmons was the only one to even win a match. It was his first match, but then he followed that victory by losing a close decision in overtime. He never had another chance.

Anderson, Hall and Torres all lost their first matches, they were never bothered with having to make weight again, as the guys who beat them met the end soon after.

Hitchcock attributed the losses to, "low team morale through the whole training for the meet. The team captain did not work out with the team as they prepared here at home for the event. The guys didn't really care for the idea of having to practice during Spring Quarter break while their friends were at the beach or home with their families."

All indications show that it was a very dispirited group that went to the nationals.

Before going, Cal Poly was rated number six in the nation. The Mustang matmen are certainly not candidates for that distinction now.

Anderson, Torres and Simmons will be back, in again next season. They will definitely add a great deal of power to next year's team.

'stangs hot to trot

by RICHARD BOSCHETTI
Sports Editor

Coach Dick Purcell and the Mustang track team will be going after their third straight California Collegiate Athletic Association dual meet championship this Saturday, when they open league competition against San Fernando Valley State at 2 p.m. on the old Mustang oval.

The Mustangs coming off a fine victory at the Easter Relays should be ready to make it two wins in a row as they are strong in all but one event, the high jump. The Mustangs who do well in this event will be without the services of their top high jumper, Mike Stone, who will miss the meet due to the fact he is getting married.

Reynaldo Brown who high jumped 7'3" as a member of the 1968 United States Olympic team is considered by many as the world's number one high jumper, will compete at the meet unattached. Brown has just transferred from Los Angeles J.C. and is ineligible to compete in league meets.

Asked if he thought any of the teams in the CCAA could come close to beating his team, coach Purcell replied with a chuckle, "Yes there are three teams with good chances of beating us. San Fernando has a good chance and so does Cal State Fullerton. It seems as if Cal Poly Pomona has recruited half of Los Angeles and they should be real tough."

Some questions that should loom in everybody's minds are if Mohinder Gill can better his triple jump record of 52'7 1/4" which he set last week at the Easter Relays and if Aaron Web will be the Mustang's first ever 16 foot vaulter. These are possibilities.
