ASI funds in jeopardy?

A proposal to withhold student body fees and transfer a portion to support traditional activities such as athletics is under consideration by the Board of Trustees of the California State colleges, according to ASI Pres. Paul Banke.

The trustees have set up an ad hoc committee, known as Task Force, to study the possibilities and the areas into which this money may move. Banke indicated that the trustees were considering the Materials and Service fund. Banke said that he is against an action by the trustees to take student fees that students voted to pay.

Banke went on to say, "This is unilateral control to take a portion of the students money and put it into another organization that will be ultimately under the control of the trustees."

He added that, "Though some ASI's have been irresponsible in the use of their funds, I think that an action of this kind is totally wrong simply on the principle of the thing." Banke cited San Francisco State College as one which had irresponsibly administrated its funds.

Banke said the trustees have an alternate plan to the withholding of student fees. This is to leave the ASI fees as they are and to further assess students under the heading of Materials and Service to guarantee the support of traditional activities. Banke felt that though this was not as bad as the first recommendation, the trustees were still taking student money out of student control.

Dr. Max Rafferty, state superintendent of public instruction, reportedly expressed his desire to see the students support the traditional activities such as athletics. During the meeting he said it was a shame that some student governments didn't wish to support the activities and he felt that something should be done about it. Banke said that if the trustees are so worried about the traditional programs then the state should see that they are funded and not take student money out of the student's hands to see it done. He also said the trustees shouldn't promote an additional materials and service fee to see the activities financed.

Banke said: "An action such as this is the inevitable bureaucratic tendency. However, the inherent danger would be that a fund comprised of student fees under the control of, say the administration, might possibly be used in times such as these when money is tight, to finance other areas deemed more important than athletics."

Banke said that the trustees are trying to institute a blanket proposal to deal with only a few student organizations that have acted irresponsibly. He said, "The State Colleges were established on an individual level and should therefore be treated by the trustees as such."

Banke testified before the trustees and stated this college's position. He also communicated with the members of the Task Force. He said that all appearances indicate that the proposal will not pass the trustees. He went on to say, "No matter what the appearances are,

Grass fire on campus

Tuesday afternoon at approximately one o'clock campus Fire Department responded to a small grass fire at the Poultry Unit. Chief George Cockriel took the Department's newest International fire truck to the Northwest side of the campus immediately followed by the Firehouse crew in another unit.

The warm afternoon winds were blowing the flames toward the neighboring corn fields, but the grass fire was contained and extinguished within 15 minutes before fields or structures were damaged.

Not more than three-fourths of an acre was burned by the fire, that unofficial sources say was started by flying sparks from a rotary mower in the field.

Potential fire hazard, especially in the dry rural sections of the campus, is high on these hot summer days when the temperatures, humidity, and winds combine to make a good environment for a fire.

Exam schedule

Due to certain discrepancies a revised final examination schedule has been released and will appear in the next issue.

Ecology blank

Editor:

Congratulations on your stand for ecological considerations and against visual pollution. I think it would be wrong to presume that because we have not destroyed our computer or burned our Bank of America branch that we are not reasonably cognizant about and compassionate for our many disturbing and deep-rooted problems. A call for reasonable, positive, and local action as you made must be commended.

If a concern for ecology is not to be replaced by a new kick next year we must face up to our problems. Aside from removing the 'P' and the other pagan symbols it would be interesting to see beer cans removed from Stenner Creek for the last time, to develop coordinated poster regulations for the campus, to clean our tables as we leave the "Cellar," to have other than scrubby Mustang newspaper boxes, to have some respect for those who do not like to sit in dog turds on the library lawn, and ———. The blank to be filled with the community wide—wide ecological problem which troubles you most.

AIPE choose national head

The University Liaison Committee of the American Institute of Plant Engineers has appointed Laurence F. Talbott its chairman for 1970-71.

Talbott is an instructor in the Industrial Technology Department. He will coordinate the efforts of the AIPE within universities and colleges throughout the nation. The organization comprises 3,000 members in 200 chapters in the U.S. and Canada.

This college's chapter of AIPE became the first campus chapter of the institute earlier this year.

Independence

Independence in the United States means a special kind of freedom. It means we take pride in reading the Declaration of Independence; and we have learned how important it is to be free from the bonds of depending on other nations for support and help.

America, as a country, is independent. As a people, we have learned to become independent and to respect the independent man as a brave hero who can make his way by himself. We have come to believe that dependence is bad and at an early age we begin our search for a way to be free from parents, to be free from parents, school, anything that is restrictive. Perhaps we have been searching for our independence for so long that we have forgotten the feeling of needing one another.

The United States needs help from within to abolish racism, to feed hungry people and to remove the binding forces of power that have grown in the government. We cannot do this as a nation of people.

We have failed to see that we are spouting freedom and equality but have overlooked the matter of putting it to use. Is this the independence that we have fought to keep? If so, then it is time to change the rhetoric and start feeling dependent—dependent on unity, freedom, and the rights of individuals.

Rodeo team corrals first

by BARNEY GUZENSKE

For local rodeo fans a 10-year-old dream became reality as the Mustang Rodeo Team corralled the National Championship last weekend in Bozeman, Montana.

The local riders and ropers, coached by Mr. Bill Gibford, piled up 477.5 points to squeak past the cowboys from Tarleton State College, Stephenville, Texas, by only 27.5 points.

Two members of the team brought home National titles. Melvin Dick, from Lakeview, Oregon, took the top honors in middle bronc and bareback. Sam Martin roper, Tom Ferguson, won the National Ribbon Roping crown and the All-Round Championship for the five day contest.

The only bright spot for the girls team was the fast piggin' string work of goat tyer Sharon Meffan, as she won the National Championship in that event. She finished the first two go-rounds in second place, tied her finals goat in 12.7 which put her in second for the third go and the three go average.

In the first go-round the Mustangs took a 22.5 point lead over Tarleton. In that go, Melvin Dick took second place in the bareback, but bucked off his saddle bronc. Dennis Pleasant bucked off his saddle bronc and missed his bareback horse coming out of the chute. George Brown rode both his bareback and bull but did not place.

At the other end of the arena Larry Ferguson won the calf roping, dogged his steer in 5.2 but took a 10 second penalty at the barrier and missed his ribbon roping steer. Then Tom Ferguson tied down a third in the calf roping, split third and fourth in the ribbon roping and failed to place in the bull doggin'. Jerry Koile had a fast time going in the calf roping until his calf got up and failed to place in the ribbon roping.

When the second go-round ended the Mustangs still held a 15 point lead with 217.5 points.

Second place Sam Houston had 202.5 points and third place Tarleton had 195.5 points.

Only two Mustangs placed in the go-round. Jerry Koile tied his calf in 10.7 for fourth place and Dennis Pleasant marked a 61 on his saddle bronc for a second place.

Going into the finals with only a 15 point lead did not insure the Mustangs of anything, because a total of 1800 points were up for grabs.

In order to gain the finals a cowboy must have finished in the top 10 in the first two go-rounds.

Poly sent only three cowboys to the finals, Melvin Dick, Tom and brother Larry Ferguson.

In the bareback bronc riding, Melvin marked a 74 to win the go-round and the three-go average.

In the calf roping, Larry misstrung his calf, which cost him time and a possible placing.

At this point in the finals the Mustang's lead over second place Tarleton had slimmed down to 7.5 points. Each school still had two chances to pick up valuable points.

In the bull doggin', Tom Ferguson threw his steer faster than Tarleton's Kent Youngblood to turn back that threat.

Tom next won the three-go average in the ribbon roping, adding another 40 points to the Mustang score. These last few points put the Mustangs out of reach, even though Tarleton's Robert Anderson, tenth best bull rider at the finals, was the only bull rider able to ride his bull to the buzzer.

Anderson's bull ride won both the go-round and the three-go average, but still Tarleton fell 27.5 points short.

This was the Mustangs second championship in the 21-year history of the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association.

Music to blow its own horn

The college Music Department will be represented in the Peter Britt Music Festival to be held in Jacksonville, Ore., Aug. 15-29.

Ronald Ratcliffe will perform as double bassist and Clifton E. Swanson as a harpichord soloist with the festival orchestra. Their performances with the orchestra are scheduled on Aug. 26 and 27. Ratcliffe will also appear in chamber concerts on Aug. 18 and 19.

The festive music event will draw professional musicians from throughout the nation to appear in the many programs.

WEEKEND ACTIVITIES

Area cities fire the works

Things are going to be popping around San Luis Obispo County this weekend. Several communities have scheduled special events to celebrate the Fourth of July weekend and Independence Day for the United States.

According to Jim Porter of the Atascadero News, Atascadero has set up day-long activities beginning at 7 a.m.

The Kiwanis Club will kick off the fireworks holiday of America with an outdoor pancake breakfast at Atascadero Lake and park. Hotcakes, sausage, coffee and milk for one dollar will be served from 7 to 10 a.m.

The Children's Zoo located at Atascadero Park, opens at 9 a.m. Also located at the lake and opening at 11 a.m. will be a carnival-type midway of games, food and other "fun things." It will stay open until dusk.

For those who don't get enough hotcakes in the morning, they can fill up on barbecued chicken in the afternoon. The Lions Club is sponsoring a Chicken Barbecue from noon until 5 p.m. at the Atascadero Park. It will cost $1.50 and include bread, beans, coffee and salad.

Porter reports that the skies will be popping with fireworks at sundown. The aerial show will be given at Atascadero Lake Park for approximately one hour. An assortment of aero bombs and skyrockets are ready for blast-off. Ground displays will also be visible.

The day-long activities will conclude with a rock band dance from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m. Saturday evening. It is set for the National Guard Armory at Olmeda and Traffic Way.

South County Junior Chambers of Commerce and area merchants are sponsoring fireworks displays, according to Henry Myers of Pismo Beach. Members of the Pismo Beach, Grover City, Arroyo Grande and Oxnard fire departments will present the controlled fireworks display at the Pismo Beach pier. Myers estimated that the sky should be filled with several multi-colored shapes for approximately 45 minutes beginning promptly at 9 p.m. A special grand display of the American flag and a assortment of three to six inch skyrockets will highlight approximately $1600 worth of fireworks.

Harold Wurtz, President of the Cayucos Chamber of Commerce outlined three days of activity for that ocean front community.

A carnival will open festivities Friday from 4-9 p.m. It will have a three-day run and be located on Ocean Front St. next to the Veterans Hall. The Veterans Hall will house a teenage rock band dance from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

That same hall will also be the site of the crowning of Miss Cayucos 1970-71. She will be crowned Friday just before the dance. Screen star Marc Lawrence will moderate the ceremony and perform the coronation. Lawrence has starred in Humphrey Bogart pictures and has appeared in Bonanza, Maverick and other television series.

The annual Cayucos Independence Day Parade will begin at 11 a.m. Saturday. Prejudging of entries is scheduled for 10 a.m. The parade route will proceed from 23rd St. to Ocean Ave., and end at the Veterans Hall. The Morro Bay Kiwanis Club and Cayucos PTA are two of 102 entries. Twenty-seven floats, three bands, several horse groups, horseless carriages and antique cars will be featured.

A beef pit barbecue will be sizzling at the Veterans Hall immediately following the parade. Corn on the cob, french bread, salad, beans, coffee and punch will also be included for $2.50 and $1.50.

An Indian group will perform authentic tribal dances and ceremonies inside the Veterans Hall beginning about 1:30. Three performances, each lasting about 90 minutes, will cost $1 for adults and 25 cents for children. The group has performed at Disneyland special events and various parts of the entire U.S.

At dusk, skyrockets, sky bombs and ground displays will be popping for one hour and forty minutes at the Cayucos pier. A second teenage rock band dance is scheduled for the Veterans Hall at 9 p.m. Saturday evening.

The Cayucos midway will be set up next to the Veterans Hall from 4 to 9 p.m. Friday and 8 to 9 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

A chicken and beef pit barbecue will be served from noon to 6 p.m. Sunday. The cost will be $2 and $1. Al's Sporting Goods of Cayucos will be sponsoring competitive games on Cayucos Beach Sunday afternoon. Sack racing, fishing, hoop rolling, three-legged races, relay races and wheelbarrow racing are part of the fun.

"This is going to be another old-fashioned Fourth of July celebration, which we are so famous for," Wurtz said.

Ecology aid planned

Saving the natural beauty of Central Coast beaches, halting the loss of fish life in the creek at San Luis Bay, and preventing the pollution of Price Canyon Creek are a few of the projects currently being surveyed by the campus Ecology Action Committee.

A group of students interested in ecological aid for the Central Coast area meet every Wednesday evening at 7:30 in Room E-27 of the Science building to discuss their plans and ideas. The weekly meetings are open to the general public.

The biggest obstacle that the Ecology Action Committee faces at the present time has nothing to do with ecology. The fact that the club will not be recognized by the ASI is hindering the club's operations. A charter was submitted prior to Poly Royal last April, but as of now, ASI has not taken any action on the request. However, club members are hopeful that official ASI recognition is forthcoming.

Foreign tuition

BY RALPH ALLEN

Foreign students—much in the public eye this spring—appear to be the target of a resolution published early last month by the San Luis Obispo Chamber of Commerce.

The resolution, adopted by the Chamber's board of directors during the quarter break on June 10 received scant attention locally. Its publication by the Telegram-Tribune produced only one letter—from Prof. Richard Krejsa of this college's Biological Science Department.

The Chamber's resolution read: "Today, at its monthly meeting, the Board of Directors of the San Luis Obispo Chamber of Commerce expressed concern over the many students who applied at California State Polytechnic College and were not accepted due to over-crowded classroom facilities. The Board also questioned the financial inequities (tuition) between foreign students and out-of-state American-born natives.

Cal Poly received approximately 9,000 applications and will admit about one-third, or 3,000 new students. In the Fall Quarter of '69 there were 508 foreign students enrolled, in the Winter Quarter of '69-'70, 490, and 491 in the Spring Quarter just completed. Sixty-six were attending on government contracts with Cal Poly. Four thousand five hundred foreign students were enrolled in the California State College System in the Fall of '69. In reviewing the tuition structure, the Chamber of Commerce Board found the tuition for a foreign student to be approximately $600 per year, and that of an out-of-state student to be $1,100. Several questions were raised re the $600 foreign student tuition fee when it is public information that the F.T.E. (full-time equivalent) cost per student is approximately $1800 annually. The $1800 cost per student does not include any portion of the capital outlay for land, buildings and equipment. It is estimated the total investment at Cal Poly is $1100 million. This includes buildings, equipment and land.

The Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors is of the opinion the Federal Government should maintain amount of the tuition for foreign students and make funds available for construction of facilities to accommodate the above.

Secondly, the Federal Government might consider the establishment of a foreign students' college or university if this type of educational facility would help our image throughout the world and assist others to live a better life.

After considerable discussion, it was agreed the United States does not have many friends in foreign countries and the question was raised as to whether or not the expenditure of additional millions for such a facility would be advisable. The Board voted against recommending such a facility and again expressed its concern over the inability of Californians to attend the colleges and universities while thousands of foreign students are enrolled in our tax-supported educational facilities.

In conclusion the Chamber of Commerce Board stated California students should receive first consideration, and out-of-state and foreign students should pay the full F.T.E. cost of $1800 per year."

There is not a student at this college who is not concerned with the tight admissions situation at Cal Poly, and at the other state colleges too; but for the Chamber of Commerce to single out the tuition paid by foreign students as a major financial inequity seems to me to be highly unfair.

During the 1969-70 school year, the tuition for a foreign student attending Cal Poly was $365. Next year, a foreign student's tuition will be $600. If this amount were to be increased to the $1800 suggested by the Chamber of Commerce, very few of the foreign students presently attending Cal Poly would be able to continue their studies.

A recent study has shown that 37 percent of all foreign students are totally self supporting. A raise in the tuition would tend to make attendance of a U.S. college a political toy in the hands of foreign governments since many students would be forced to look to their own government for support.

In the letter to the Telegram-Tribune, published June 18 of this year, Dr. Krejsa wrote, "Certainly, foreign students cost the state money. Perhaps their tuition should be raised. But is tuition advantage a one-way street only in favor of the foreign student? The Chamber of Commerce recently budgeted some $35,000 for favorable publicity around the country in the next year. I feel certain that, if they had a mind to do it, the Chamber board could calculate value of 800 Cal Poly foreign students returning to their respective home countries with a favorable (or unfavorable) impression of San Luis Obispo. Remember too, for many that also means the United States!

In conclusion, we must remember that there are over 25,000 U.S. students enrolled as full-students in foreign institutes of higher learning. To deny the right of academically qualified foreign students to attend colleges in the U.S. by imposing high tuitions would be unfair."

A YEAR IN ONE QUARTER

It's Superstudent

by WOODY GOULART

Somewhere in the midst of several thousand students on campus last quarter a being known as 'Superstudent' emerged from the multitude.

Homer W. Jones, a senior Industrial Technology major, received credit for 36 units while qualifying for the "Dean's Honor List" with a 3.06 GPA. Thirty-six units are usually considered a full load for three quarters or one academic year. Jones, however, managed to squeeze virtually a full year's work into Spring Quarter.

Jones signed up for 22 units and challenged 13. He needed special permission from his advisor, the IT department head, the Dean of Engineering, and all instructors of his classes. Having made his way through a substantial amount of red tape, Jones entered 15 classes in the Psychology, Printing Technology, Mathematics, Business, Agricultural Engineering, and Industrial Relations Departments.

Graduation at the end of Summer Quarter was Jones' goal in taking this unusually heavy work load. Upon graduation he will attend Chico State College where he will work on his master's degree. He will also be a part-time auto mechanics instructor at the college.

Attempting such a large amount of units is a record achievement in itself, but Jones also had the responsibilities of a wife and three children on his shoulders at the same time. He estimates that he spent 34 hours per week in class time alone, with an even larger amount of time spent on studying. All the while he was taking care of his three children, aged 10, 8, and 3, cooking meals for them, and watching over them while his wife worked evenings.

In this case of an academic hyperactive superstudent, several uniquely interesting factors became evident. Most surprising of all is the fact that Jones started attending this college in 1960 whereupon he flunked out after a few quarters. He went to work as a Psychiatric Technician at both Camarillo and Atascadero State Hospitals. He then returned to this college several years later to complete his education.

Another interesting circumstance in Jones' academic endeavors last quarter is the fact that despite his heavy load of units and good grades, he failed to qualify for the "President's Honor List." A student must have a least a 3.0 GPA for three consecutive quarters to be listed on the "President's Honor List."

Even though Jones completed more units during Spring Quarter than normally required for the "President's List" and ended up with a GPA of 3.01 at the conclusion of the academic year, Jones' name does not appear on the "President's Honor List."

When asked how he felt about completing Spring Quarter with all his brain intact, Homer Jones replied, "I'm glad it's over!" He also said he'd like to express his appreciation to faculty and staff for their help and understanding in helping him achieve his goal. Jones said he would do it again if he had to. But being a superstudent, aside from being one sure way to a speedy education, is a lot of work.

SUMMER FITZ

Friends and music

by JOHN FITZRANDOLPH

One foggy morning, in the dense grass and bending trees of Blessed Assurance (a land of no fixed boundaries), there chanced a boy and a dog.

These two, enchanted by the mystery fog and hymn singing all around them, stopped by the damp path to listen.

"Onward Christian Soldiers . . ." came the phantom voices, "Marching off to war . . . With the Cross of Jesus . . . Going There . . ."

The summer heat matted the dog's hair to his hide. He shrugged. He rubbed gently against the boy, his tail bobbing slowly, touching the earth and then raising up to the boy's face and then down again, to the earth.

The boy, his hair shaggy and uncombed, rubbed his dog friend and discovered several burrs and spiny pricklers in the wet fur.

He removed the briars from the dog; his small hands plucked quickly, as a hen plucks thorns from her chick.

The eerie chorus continued. "A Mighty Fortress is Our God . . . Our Hope for Years to Come . . . Our Shelter from the Stormy Sea . . . And Our Eternal Home . . ."

The boy's face glistened as the sun peeked through the fog in tiny trickles. His eyes scanned the small cracks in the grey atmosphere; he smiled, for he knew the azure openings would shortly spread wider and wider to dry his body and his dog friend's damp fur.

The boy stood suddenly and surveyed the heavy vegetation through which the slippery path led. He reached and tugged the dog's mane. Down the path they continued.

All around the path cypress trees held flocks of silent birds. But now, as the sun was peeping through, the birds began to make music, a little at a time, blending oddly with the choral sounds.

Between the cypress trees there hung willows. Rattled with numerous vines and cobwebs, the willows were dotted with more birds, of many colors, of many tunes.

It was a wild sound that morning in Blessed Assurance. The boy and dog continued moving down the winding path, into the deeps of foliage and musical air.

"Teep Teep Crrr Crrr Crrr" came the bird's song from the forest. "Ree Ree Ree" came the call of another. And the hymn singing continued.

"Silent Night, Holy Night, All is Calm, All is Bright," the unseen chorus sang.

A tawny buck bounded across the path where the boy and dog walked. A snake slithered quickly into the brush, arousing the dog's curiosity for an instant, then disappearing.

The two travelers continued into the denseness, bewitched by the birds and the hymn singing, until they reached what the boy believed to be the thickest part of the forest.

His first motion was to sit among the wildflowers, and his first thought was of the sun; the sun's light was spilling down through the wet branches now, and the dog sniffed the dainty petals and leaves near the soft path.

"Trust and Obey," came the hymn music again, "Trust and Obey . . . To be Happy With Jesus . . . Trust and Obey . . ."

The sky was sunlit and full above the thick trees of green and brown. The ghostly fog was burned away from Blessed Assurance and the mystery choir joined the singing birds.

"Eeep tweeep eeep tweeep," the birds sang. In Ages Past," the choir echoed, "Our Hope for Years to Come . . ."

The choir and birds, together with a soft breath of wind, soothed the boy and dog. Into a fast sleep they fell, while the music played.

"Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow," rang the distant singers, "Praise Him All Creatures Here Below . . ."

Delighted with the flooding sun, the many colored birds flew above the forest's nest and dried their wings while they soared. "Rrrreep rrrreep rrrreep," they rang.

Somewhere that same sleepy morning somewhere far, far removed from Blessed Assurance, a small animal swam inside a spinning plastic shell.

The boy would be summoned, called by the bark of the drum. But he would not hear, for the Blessed Assurance music of birds and hymns would continue—and he would have his friend, the dog.

Dean to retire

Dr. Arthur Q. Butzbach, associate dean of graduate studies and education at this college, will retire this month after a 20-year career as a member of the college faculty and administrative staff.

Should we take the 'P' off our hill?

Louise Crane History: I think people should be using biodegradable soap, and stop throwing garbage that won't return to its natural state, a thing like a "P" on the hill is so minor it's ridiculous. . . the "P" on the hill will take care of itself.

Rich Shorrock Arch: I don't see any reason why they should take it off. It's not causing pollution or anything up there. Maybe they could take it off and put flowers up there in the sign of a P.

Jeff Conrad Arch: Oh, you mean that! I could see if God put it there; then we'd leave it. That's my constructive thought.

Barbara Crader: I have to think about it. I think that there's a lot of things we should do before we get the P off the hill. Like, maybe solving some of the bigger, more pressing environmental problems."

Noni Brown Home Ec: Yes. Or write "ot" after it. But, you know, it seems kind of uh, well, it's sort of like obnoxious, and it represents like ra, ra, Rudy Vallee, racoon coats, let's go eat goldfish.

Jerry Urbach Arch Eng: No. I think we should keep it because it's become a tradition that when people first come to the school, they just walk up there, and whilst walking up there, they also get a better view of the campus.

Mike Worth Staff: They can probably do more damage having a lot of people walk up the hill to take it down, than if they leave it alone. Get the OH people plant it in flowers.

Lea Shapiro: It makes it more interesting. I don't think it spoils anything. If it wasn't there, you wouldn't be looking there, you see. The "P" says this is Cal Poly.

Faculty pay hike doubtful

College Pres. Robert E. Kennedy and Dr. S.I. Hayakawa played prominent role this week in the attempt to restore the 5 percent cost of living pay increase to the faculty members of the California State Colleges and Universities.

Hayakawa's letter drive to restore the pay increase was joined by Kennedy early last week when he sent a telegram to State Assemblyman Frank Lanterman, chairman of the conference committee. Kennedy pointed out that this college's faculty members "have brought honor to the college. They served the students and the citizens of the state well." He asked that the conference committee grant the faculty members the same "cost-of-living pay adjustment which in your judgement the state can afford for other state employees."

Kennedy also pointed out failure to restore the salary increase would hamper faculty recruitment efforts, which in turn affects the ability of this college to serve more students.

Lanterman told the Legislature, "The state employees were the ones who had a higher priority." He went on to say that, "The professors have been doing very well even up to this time. Under this (the proposed budget), they don't get any less. They don't get any more."

The California State Legislature failed to approve the budget last Tuesday by midnight and as a result the budget has been put back to a new conference committee who will act upon it as soon as possible. Until the committee acts, the fate of the 5 percent increase will remain uncertain.

SCUBA class

This summer the hidden grottoes of the Santa Barbara Islands, the crystal-clear waters of Santa Catalina Island, and the warm Pacific waters of Mexico beckon members of the Cal Poly Skindivers Club. During Summer Quarter those interested in learning the art of SCUBA (Self Contained Underwater Breathing Apparatus) diving can take a special class being offered by the Skindivers Club. The SCUBA lessons are sanctioned by the National Association of Underwater Instructors (NAUI).

Anyone showing a general knowledge of water and swimming can participate in and enjoy the sport of SCUBA diving. The ability to swim 200 yards (8 laps), tread water for five minutes, and swim underwater are the requirements for the class. A fee of $35 is also required.

Those interested in joining the Skindivers Club, or signing up for the SCUBA lessons must attend the SCUBA class this Monday night at 7:30 in Science North, Room 210. Further information may be acquired by calling Skindiver instructor John Gard at 595-2168.

The SCUBA lessons will enable participants to take part in future underwater photography dives, underwater salvage operations, spearfishing, and sightseeing beneath the waters of central and southern California. The class provides good exercise for all involved. Upon completion of the course, the student will receive a NAUI certified air card, providing the diver with worldwide recognition and clearance for diving tank air fill-ups.

ASI funds

I will not rest until this problem is settled," Banke expects the Task Force to report to the trustees on the matter at the July 13 regular meeting.

Banke also said that possibly a new student body presidents' organization will be formed in the near future. He said the purpose will be to provide for student representation in matters concerning the trustees and the State Legislature. Banke said that the state college student presidents have met and set up a committee to study the possibilities of an organization of this kind. He expects the committee report back when the presidents meet again July 12. At this meeting Banke hopes that upon evaluation of the committee's findings, a temporary organization may be set up. Banke said, "The organization will first operate on a trial and error basis, but I hope that it will turn into something worthwhile and meaningful."

Banke said that whether or not the organization comes into being, either he or the ASI Vice-President, Tony Turcovich, will attend all of the meetings of the trustees.
