

Welfare solution isn't magic

by Craig Hines

These days it seems that talk is abundant on ending the so-called "welfare crisis," but there are usually only words and very few solutions to the problem.

This may be the case most of the time, but it seems that there have been attempts made on this campus to help end problems for both the state and the frustrated Welfare recipients who could find no gainful employment. In 1966 the San Luis Obispo County Welfare Department contacted the Foundation on campus to discuss initiating a training program for Welfare recipients.

At the time, the reason was simple—San Luis Obispo was lacking in people to work in the dining halls, and a group of people needed jobs but had little or no training. In many cases these people lacked the desire to learn, and as Lloyd Bertram, Food Services Director, summed it up, "The first group was really afraid, both of the job and being around other people."

Results—the name of the game—were "excellent, I think, and we still have some of the original trainees on our regular staff," according to Bertram. Some 57 men and women obtained employment either during the Cafeteria Training Program or soon thereafter.

The plan of training involved working with different supervisors and co-workers in the various departments in the cafeteria. Most of the trainees had no job experience and weren't sure of what was expected of them. According to a report from the Welfare Department regarding the typical trainee,

"After the first two weeks on the job, a definite change is noted. He has picked up a sense of responsibility and dependability toward his assigned duties."

The trainees comments were almost always the way one person expressed it: "Everyone here has been so nice to me. Before I came here I never knew how to work with people because I was so shy."

After the two month training period in various departments in the facility, one month was spent in a specialized area. When completed, the trainees have been awarded a certificate, which for many has been, "an excellent letter of reference," as Bertram stated.

As for the program today, it has been cut back. The number of Welfare recipients working in the Foundation-Welfare Department program is at a minimum and the reason is best explained by Bertram: "More students need jobs today due to a tightening of finances and we are supported by students here in the Cafeteria, so they have to come first."

Asked if the Program has merit enough to return, Bertram expressed a strong hope that it would. "We have really been pleased with their work and it is rewarding to know that something is really being done to solve a problem when a program like this can go on," he stated.

"The only reason we have cut back the number on the training program is because of the number of students desiring to work and when there is room, the program will go back to full strength," Bertram said.

Dumke proposes reform for improved education

In a report presented to the College Board of Trustees, State College Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke proposed a series of academic reforms to improve the quality of education in the state college system. Included in the report was a request by Dumke to toughen faculty tenure regulations, but the request was turned down.

The academic reforms suggested by Dumke included the streamlining of schedules to allow students to complete their undergraduate education in three to three and a-half years instead of the conventional four. His recommendations were contained in an 18 page report to the educational policy committee on Tuesday.

Dumke's report on academic reform said that current procedures were on the edge of failure "and that mounting enrollment pressures in the face of economic cutbacks" make it very clear that we will either have to limit our services or thin out operational quality."

He also suggested charging full tuition to students not making satisfactory progress toward a degree who tarry through school taking the minimum number of courses.

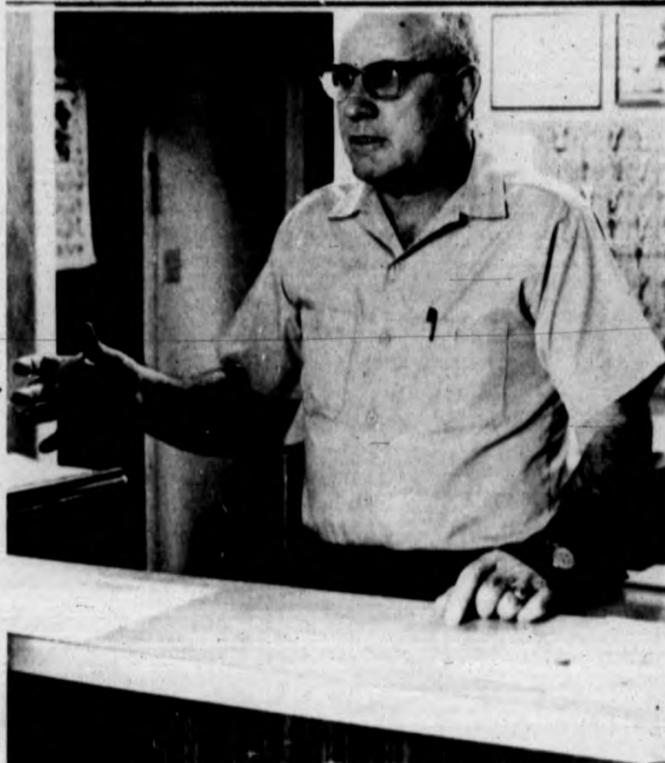

The unanimous vote of the trustee committee on the tenure proposals was not, however, viewed by Dumke as a defeat. He said he had not decided whether to attempt to win approval of the proposals in a full board meeting or not.

The tenure regulations proposed by Dumke were—lengthening tenure requirements from four to seven years, restriction of tenure to only professors and associate professors, and limiting membership on committees which award tenure to professors who have tenure.

The decision capped a struggle between Dumke and the faculty which began last fall.

Earlier in the meeting approval was given to architectural plans for a student union at San Francisco State College.

Linguistics professor due

Poetry, literature, linguistics, and the humanities will be treated by Dr. Archibald A. Hill, who will be visiting lecturer here Feb. 1-5.

Lectures, special events, and an exhibition of literary criticism are planned in connection with the week-long visit by Dr. Hill, who is a professor of English and linguistics at the University of Texas at Austin. His visit is being co-sponsored by the college English Department and Foreign Language and Linguistics Department.

Dr. Gloria Jameson, head of the Foreign Language and Linguistics Department, is general chairman of the series of events which will begin with a poetry workshop to be held in the Staff Dining Room from 2 to 6 p.m. on Monday.

Mrs. Glenna Luschei is chairman of the poetry workshop. A poet, editor and the wife of English instructor Martin Luschei, she was chairman of a very successful poetry reading which recently was presented to a standing-room-only crowd. Area poets interested in the poetry workshop to be conducted by Dr. Hill may obtain further information from Mrs. Luschei by telephoning 544-5074.

Various aspects of Dr. Hill's visit are being presented in cooperation with the College Fine Arts Committee, the college Library, and the college Art Department.

Hill is recognized as one of the leaders in the development of linguistics in the United States. As an English professor at the Universities of Michigan, Virginia, and Texas, he has been the linguist who has done most to explore the intriguing field of linguistic-stylistic-literary research.

He is noted as a scholar of Medieval English language and literature, the American Indian and Eskimo languages, and a specialist in the teaching of English as a second language. He is a graduate of Pomona College, Stanford University, and Yale University, where he earned his doctor's degree.

During World War II, Hill aided in breaking the secret codes of enemy communications. Since that time, in addition to his full schedule of university teaching, he has been a representative of the U. S. Department of State for two terms each in Japan and Taiwan as organizer of programs in the teaching of English as a second language, and a special lecturer in Yugoslavia and Poland. In 1969, Hill was president of the Linguistic Society of America; and a lecturer to be presented by Hill in the college Theater next Tuesday evening at 8 p.m., entitled "Sunflowers Over Two Centuries." The title does not indicate a horticultural subject, according to Dr. Jameson. Dr. Hill will provide some literary and linguistic insights into Allen Ginsberg's "Sunflower Sutra", William Blake's "Sunflower," and a linguistic approach which he has used in pointing out similarities between the linguistics of songs by the Beatles and the everyday language of poetry by Robert Frost.

No deposit rent policy

"By eliminating the deposit we eliminated one big beef the student has with the landlord."

L.R. Shaddix, Manager of Mustang Village and President of the Owner's and Manager's Association said he hopes to

"stress the adult concept of student living and move toward establishing a reasonable rapport between tenants and management."

"For two years," said Shaddix, "I've been trying to get rid of the deposit. But, the owners felt they needed that extra security. This reluctant attitude toward the student can be eliminated, thinks Shaddix, if he is demonstrated to be a responsible adult, like anyone else. "Students can help their cause by demonstrating this," he said, "and the companies will invest more money for student housing."

Shaddix suggested that students follow the example of the University of California at Davis. A questionnaire is used to gather critical information about housing conditions for the student body. By answering questions about the rent, the plumbing, how cooperative the manager is, and so on, the student will establish a norm that will serve as a basis for improving substandard conditions. This information would be published in a student publication, and "you can bet the owners will see it, too!" said Shaddix.

Ex-student a president

Thomas H. McGrath, a former student editor of this paper and the college yearbook back in the middle 1930's, was appointed as President of Sonoma State College by the State College Board of Trustees, meeting in Los Angeles, yesterday.

The former Technical Arts (now Industrial technology) student has been the Assistant Executive Vice-Chancellor of the State Colleges since 1967. Previous to that he had been a Dean of Students at the Kellogg campus after serving as an advisor to the Navy in World War II and the Korean war on psychological effects of war on men.

Ex-convict Neil Collins comes down on drugs

Neil Collins, a drug addict for 38 years, revealed his story Tuesday night in the Project Number 9 drug abuse series. Collins was first put in jail in 1934 when he was 20 years old. He has been in and out of prisons ever since then. As he put it, there is no medical cure for the drug addict. "I was in Ft. Leavenworth for fifteen months. After that I was transferred to Lexington, where I stayed for two years and three days. As far as the prison was concerned I was medically and physically cured. Within three hours after my release I was 'fixed' again. "Collins explained that one forgets the pain of withdrawal after he is released. "While I laid in jail, the police would stomp my toes, and kick my ribs. I wanted to get even with them so I got a fix. After the horrible agony, I wanted to feel good, to get a 'glow' on again." Collins, now 57, has used all the hard drugs. He started with gum opium, then went to morphine, then to heroin. "The only drug I haven't tried, and don't want to is LSD. Acid doesn't hold the 'kick' that a 'hype' is looking for. Besides, I've seen too many people permanently damaged after taking LSD." "The main reason there's drug problem today is because of publicity. Publicity of drugs and pills is one of the greatest mistakes ever made. Kids get curious about these things and then start taking them. I can't stress this enough." Also speaking in Tuesday's lecture was Hal Tune, a registered nurse at the Community Mental Health Center. He explained that a 'crash-pad' was being formed for the users of hard drugs and pills. The 'pad' will be located in the old tuberculosis ward behind the General Hospital in San Luis Obispo. Tune also explained the "Kick Clinic" now in operation in Santa Barbara. This clinic helps addicts kick their habits by substituting Dolphine, a derivative of Methadone, for the harder drugs such as heroin. The whole idea is that Dolphine stops the high that is associated with Heroin, but there is no withdrawal involved.

Faculty hit by Trustees

by Claudia Galloway
Los Angeles-Acting upon a recommendation of the President of Cal State Los Angeles the State College Board of Trustees yesterday dismissed Ernest J. Eckert from his position as associate professor at that college.

Eckert was recommended for dismissal by Pres. John A. Greenlee after it was discovered he was teaching a class at the University of Southern California at the same time that he was scheduled to teach a class at Cal State LA. Eckert was an associate professor in the Mathematics Department.

Final decision by the board was postponed from Tuesday's session at the urging of Trustee William A. Norris of Los Angeles. Norris was concerned over the difference in opinion between Greenlee and a panel of senior faculty members that reviewed Eckert's case. That Freeman admitted that he had, on occasion, filled out forms saying he had visited the classrooms of junior faculty members to evaluate their teaching skills when in fact he had not.

He said he did so only because time was short and such classroom evaluations carry little weight anyhow.

The trustees also postponed action on a revision of tenure rules and procedures. The proposal would allow only tenured faculty members to serve on the various committees or otherwise participate in the formal recommendation regarding promotion, retention and tenure. It would also have extended the maximum probationary period prior to the granting of tenure to four full years. It will be discussed at the Faculty and Staff Affairs Committee meeting in Long Beach on February 23.

panel had recommended that Eckert only be given a letter of reprimand because the members felt he had shown "Poor judgement and mismanagement, rather than dishonesty or any lack of concern for the welfare of the mathematics department or the college community."

The board declined to take action on a recommendation to dismiss James Freeman, a Cal State San Bernardino Psychology professor, after discovering that the hearing officer in the case had gone beyond proper boundaries in making his recommendation. The trustees agreed to set the matter back to the campus faculty panel for reconsideration.

The college president at Cal State San Bernardino and a faculty panel there made the recommendation after reviewing charges that he had falsified forms he used to evaluate junior faculty members.

Why free?

Editor:
Why try to free Angela Davis with mass rallies? Let her free herself. A person is still innocent until proven guilty by our courts. If people want equality then why don't they face up to the fact that just because Miss Davis is female and black, she too must stand up and let the court prove her innocence or guilt. If she wins or loses, she alone is responsible for her previous actions.

Extension — Student survey on creek — extended

This college's extension program for the 1971 Spring Quarter will start on March 25 and will offer 20-25 classes, according to Dr. Don Morris, associate dean for continuing education.

Courses offered through the extension service will be given in San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara and Monterey counties and will possibly be held in the cities of San Luis Obispo, Santa Maria, Vandenberg Air Force Base, Arroyo Grande, Morro Bay, Paso Robles, Atascadero, Soledad, Santa Barbara, Orcutt, Pismo Beach, King City and Lompoc.

In its first year, the extension program is steadily growing into a far-reaching and well attended program, according to Morris. "The program," said Morris, "is very successful and is exceeding expectations."

Six of the seven college schools are participating in the program and they are offering general courses given in each specific field.

The extension program is a self-supporting program and tuition is set at $12.75 per unit for lecture courses, a slightly higher fee for activity and lab courses is required.

The main reason for having the extension program, according to Morris, is to extend the services of the college to other areas of the central coast.

Classes taught during the Spring and Fall Quarters include Bonsai culture, engineering exam review, foods for children, human ecology, the middle

86 courses for summer

Summer session for the 1970-71 school term will include a one week pre-session and two four week sessions, according to Dr. Don Morris, associate dean of continuing education. The dates for the three summer session programs are; pre-session, June 14-18 first session, June 21-July 17; and second session, July 19-August 13. Consisting of 11 workshops (a workshop is defined by Morris as a concentrated course offered in a specialized area), three of them give academic credit, seven professional credit and one in public service. Workshops will be offered in biology, education, art and math. A total of 86 first session courses are going to be offered. The classes are from 24 different departments. 46 second session courses are planned that will involve 11 departments.

"All of these courses are self supporting," said Morris. This means that the summer session is dependent on a per unit fee for financial survival. "The cost is $16.00 per unit," said Morris. All of the courses will be taught by current college instructors or guest faculty. "Last summers' summer session was 33 per cent larger than the year before," said Morris, "and I think this is a good measure of its popularity."

Morris went on to stress that admittance to the summer session does not mean automatic enrollment for the regular Fall Quarter.

school product evaluation, social psychology, abnormal psychology, Mexican American pre-school child, ornamental gardening, product quality control and seminar in supervision of student teachers. Similar classes will be offered during spring session.

An extension brochure will be available during the first week of March and will be distributed at Spring Quarter registration and in Administration 309, according to Morris. Further information may be obtained by writing Continuing Education, Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo, 93401, or by calling 846-2053.

Yell leader clinic starts

Want to learn to yell? Come to the yell leader's clinic starting this Sunday Jan. 31, in Crandall Gym. The clinic is open to all persons interested in becoming a yell leader for next year. The clinic will run for five weeks from 7 to 9 p.m. every Sunday.

Those participating will be expected to attend every Sunday for the five week period. For more information call Rob at 844-3478.

Chinese plan yearly festivity

Traditional Chinese entertainment and an eight course dinner will be featured at the annual Chinese New Year party to be held Saturday, Feb. 13, at 7:30 pm in the Veretan's Memorial Building.

The public is invited to attend the festivities. Tickets are $9.50 and can be purchased at the Ah Louis Store, the Gabby Bookstore, or from Joseph Pai at 846-3808.

Is now the time to develop the Stenner Creek area? A poll to determine initial student interest for the idea will be conducted on campus today and tomorrow.

Students of the Natural Resources Department will be seeking student opinion regarding the little used area of Stenner Creek and Stenner Lake as potential recreational and environmental regions. The department feels that developing this area along the lines of personal involvement would insure that a corridor of natural and beautiful spaces can survive the eventual expansion of the college into this area.

Five teams of seven members apiece will be circulating questionnaires in places as the Snack Bar and the Administration Building. The research teams hope to have at least 300 random replies which will serve as a basis for future land-user and faculty surveys of a similar nature. The results will be turned over to the land managers of this campus.

Brando greats

On the Water Front" and "The Wild One", two Marlo Brando films will highlight this weekend. Both films will be shown Saturday Jan. 30 in the Engineering Auditorium.

"On the Water Front" was the winner of eight academy awards and stars Brando, Lee J. Cobb, Rod Steiger and Eva Marie Saint. It is a story of corruption in the water front unions, and is distinguished by fine directing and acting.

Showtimes are 8:00, 8:00 and 9:20 pm, Saturday Jan. 30 Admission is 50c for students.

Biola College tonight

Matmen see home action

by Paul Simon
Sports Editor

Biola College meets the Mustang wrestling team in the Men's Gym at 7:30 tonight in a brief respite before Vaughn Hitchcock's defending national college division champions resume their drive for national university division ranking.

Hitchcock is expected to present a lineup of reserves tonight, insuring hard-fought contest against Biola. Tomorrow night everything goes as the Mustangs meet the Ducks.

The match tomorrow will be the second half of a basketball-wrestling doubleheader and will begin at 9:30. It will follow the Mustang basketball game against Cal State Fullerton.

The Mustangs will feature a new face in the lineup. Brent Noon, a former 168-pounder injured earlier in the season, breaks into the lineup against Oregon at 177 pounds. The rest of the lineup remains the same: Gary McBride, 118; Gary Anderson, 126; Larry Morgan, 134; Steve Gardner, 142; Allyn Cooke, 150; John Finch, 158; Frank Oakes, 166; Gary Maiolfi, 190; and Tim Kopitar, heavyweight.

Oregon has captured only one of its first five dual meets but are always tough against the Mustangs. Last year the Ducks claimed a 25-9 rout over the Green and Gold, and leads in the series between the two schools 5-3-1.

"Oregon is particularly strong in the lightweights and I'm anticipating some stiff competition," said Hitchcock. The Mustang coach cited 118-pounder Dave Luck, 12-2, as the toughest threat to the Mustangs.

The Mustangs enter competition this week with a 7-2 record, including victories over UCLA, the University of Oklahoma, and a sound triumph in the University of Arizona tournament.

Former Angel speaks tonight

Albie Pearson, former star centerfielder for the Washington Senators and the California Angels, will be speaking at the open meeting Thursday night at 8 p.m.

Once known as one of the smallest men in baseball, Pearson rose to stardom by gaining a reputation as a dangerous clutch hitter as well as a dependable fielder.

After his retirement, he formed an organization called Youth, Inc., a group of people who work with today's youth in an attempt to relate to them a concrete alternative to other "bags."

Pearson will be talking in the First Assembly of God Church Sanctuary, 525 Cerro Romauldo, in San Luis Obispo. Admission is free. Interested people are urged to bring a guest.

CCAA leading Titans invade Gym tomorrow

by Richard Boschetti

It will be a battle for the top rung this Friday night when Coach Neale Stoner's basketball team plays host to the first place Cal State Fullerton Titans in the Men's Gym at 7:30. The fracas will be the opening event of a basketball-wrestling double header.

The Titans, currently coming off a stinging victory over Sonoma State last weekend 91-49, have yet to lose a contest on their own hardwoods and sport a 3-0 home court advantage. The Mustangs league record currently stands at 2-1 and a victory would vault them into a tie for first with the Titans.

"Fullerton's playing the best basketball in the conference right now," stated Stoner. "The Titans utilize a tough 2-2-1 zone press and a 1-2-2 zone defense which we must penetrate if we are to be successful."

The Mustang defenders will have their hands full with Fullerton's all-league returnee Tony Rodriques. The Titan guard is the author of a 23.5 league scoring average which leads the conference. Teaming with Rodriques in the backcourt will be 5'8" Art Jones. The mini guard is the second leading scorer for the Titans and ranks sixth in the league with a 17.5 average.

Billy Jackson is the leading scorer for the Mustangs with a 18.7 league mark.
