FARM-CITY WEEK

- San Luis Obispo area residents will obtain a glimpse of how food, fiber, and flowers are produced, and even have an opportunity to lend their own hand to the process, during the annual Farm-City Week observance sponsored by the student council of the School of Agriculture and Natural Resources beginning Friday (Nov. 21). Farm-City Week, a national observance coordinated by Kiwanis International, is designed to create a better understanding between the farmer and the urban dweller.

Focal point of the local Farm-City Week observance will be displays and demonstrations at the Madonna Plaza Shopping Center in San Luis Obispo from 10 am to 3 pm on Saturday (Nov. 22). Visitors to the shopping center will have an opportunity to pet farm animals, try their hand at log sawing, have an ailing plant diagnosed, and view sheep shearing, wool spinning, cow milking, hay bucking, mechanical bull riding, and a host of educational exhibits on modern agriculture.

Ornamental horticulture students are inviting gardeners to bring plants to their display for a diagnosis of ills. In addition there will be exhibits of tropical plants, demonstrations on selecting plants from nurseries, and an exhibit on diseases and pests of home gardens. Collegiate Future Farmers of America Chapter members, Cal Poly students planning careers in vocational agricultural education, will conduct a small animal farm display, an annual exhibit which has been so popular it is repeated separately during the winter and spring quarters. Visiting youngsters will have an opportunity to pet the small farm animals on display.

The log sawing activity will be the focal point of an agricultural engineering display covering electricity, irrigation, mechanics, power machinery, and surveying. Visitors also will get a view through a surveyor's transit while stopping at the exhibit. Rice production will be featured in one exhibit, and fermenting foods and their containers in another. Various breeds of poultry and wild game birds will be displayed as part of the Farm-City Week observance also.

Rodeo Club members will exhibit a Brahma bull and a horse and will demonstrate the use of a mechanical bucking bull designed for practice purposes in their exhibit entitled "The Easy Life of Rodeo Stock." Representatives of Cal Poly fraternities will be meeting a challenge extended by Alpha Gamma Rho in a hay bucking competition at the site of the Farm-City Week Observance. Other activities of Farm-City Week in San Luis Obispo include appearances of agricultural students at service club meetings and on radio.

● ● BROADWOOD PIANO TO BE HEARD IN CONCERT

The first Central Coast area performance on a newly acquired 1816 Broadwood piano is planned as the highlight of a concert of Baroque, Classical, and 20th Century Romantic period music on Friday (Nov. 21). The Cal Poly Chamber Orchestra, with Clifton E. Swanson (Music) conducting, will present the program at 8:15 pm in the Cal Poly Theatre. Admission will be free and the public is invited to attend.

Swanson expects the concert to be unique, not only for the variety of music presented, but because of the opportunity to hear a Mozart piano concerto performed on an instrument much closer to the kind of piano Mozart wrote for. Ronald V. Ratcliffe (Music) will use the Broadwood piano for his solo performance of the first movement of Mozart's Piano Concerto No. 11 in F major, K. 413.

Other numbers programmed for the concert are Haydn's Symphony No. 13 in D major; Vaughan Williams' "Fantasia on Greensleeves"; Handel's Suite from "The Water Music"; and a modern piano rendition of Mozart's complete Piano Concerto No. 11 in F major, K. 413. The concert is being sponsored by the university's Music Department.

● ● DUMKE COMMENTS ON AID DRIVE

Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke recently commented as follows:

"As you are aware, it is the time of year when combined charitable fund drives are being conducted in the communities where our campuses are located.

Economic conditions continue to be a problem to us all. Those dependent on the assistance of charitable organizations are having even more difficulty coping with the effects of inflation than those of us who are fortunate enough to be employed. In times such as this, it becomes increasingly difficult to decide to give, yet the need of those dependent on our giving is greater than ever.

Giving is a voluntary decision we must each make. Institutions of higher education have typically been in the forefront of those asking for a better life for our nation's people. These drives need our support, which I hope will be forthcoming."

The current AID/United Givers drive at Cal Poly has officially concluded, but contributions can still be made by contacting the Personnel Office, Ext. 2236.

● ● PARKING/STOPPING PROBLEMS AIRED

James R. Landreth (Director, Business Affairs) has reported that some individuals working in the Administration building are being let off and picked up in front of the building. This means that vehicles are stopping or parking in a red zone and a bicycle lane, which is both illegal and hazardous. A near accident took place recently when a bicycle had to move into the traffic lane. Areas for loading and unloading of passengers are the yellow curbed areas provided in the Visitor's lot adjacent to the Administration building. Assistance is asked in eliminating this problem. In addition the visitor's parking lot is not open to staff members on academic holidays when these are workdays for staff members.

● ● BEHMAN APPOINTED TO STATE POST

An associate dean at Cal Poly has been named chairwoman of a state board that will help set minimum wage and work standards for those who work in personal service industries. Sara A. Behman (Associate Dean, Business and Social Sciences), a specialist in industrial relations and labor economics, will head California's new Personal Service Industry Wage Board. Her appointment was announced on Friday (Nov. 7) by the state's Industrial Welfare Commission.

The board is one of 14 that will recommend standards for minimum wages, hours of work and overtime pay, and working conditions for the employees of the industries and occupations represented. Wage board members are split between labor and management backgrounds. The chairpersons, who represent the Industrial Welfare Commission, are considered impartial. After studying the wage board's recommendations, the commission will propose new orders, hold public hearings and issue final regulations that will become effective by mid-1976.

Dr. Behman, a member of the faculty since 1971, formerly taught at University of California at Berkeley and at San Jose State University. She became associate dean of the School of Business and Social Sciences in September, 1974. A nationally recognized authority in the field of labor economics, Dr. Behman is the author of an innovative report on measurements of labor productivity in certain building trade crafts which was issued in 1974. Dr. Behman will remain on campus as Associate Dean. Her state appointment will be in addition to her duties as Assoc. Dean.
