Nixon may face ouster

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Rep. Ronald V. Dellums, D-Calif., said today he was considering introducing a resolution to impeach President Nixon because of his Vietnam War policies.

The freshman congressman said because of the seriousness of such a step, he would confer with colleagues before making a decision. But asked at a news conference if he would be hesitant to vote for impeachment, Dellums replied, "Not at all." "Would you vote to impeach the President?" A newsman asked.

"Yes," replied Dellums, squinting in brilliant sunshine on the steps of the U.S. Capitol where he received a petition from two Harvard University students urging the House to impeach the President.

The petition bearing signatures of 405 members of the Harvard Law School were presented to Dellums by John Gorwin, 24, of Long Island, N.Y. and Robert Gippin, 23, of Akron, Ohio, now living in Cambridge, Mass. Both are freshmen at the Law school.

Dellums' statement about Nixon's conduct of the war came as three Republican critics laid plans for a meeting in Washington May 16 to plan a national "dump Nixon" campaign.

The three are Reps. Paul N. McCloskey Jr., Calif., who has said he will oppose Nixon for the GOP nomination next year if the war is still going on; Rep. Donald W. Riegle Jr., Mich., and former Sen. Charles E. Goodell, N.Y.

Dellums, asked about grounds for impeachment of the President, cited the petition of the students which claimed that Nixon is without constitutional sanction to conduct the Indochina war.

EOP is at the crossroads

by Paul Tokunaga

A letter written by Paul Banke to the chairman of the Agriculture Council has embroiled the ASI President in a behind-the-scenes controversy with the Educational Opportunity Program and some college administrators.

Banke wrote the letter Feb. 11 to Randy McLaughlin, the council chairman and a personal friend of Banke's. In it was the ASI president's attitude towards EOP on this campus.

Banke had met with Reagan on January 15 of this year concerning the needs of the upcoming budget for the state colleges. Going up to Sacramento for another meeting with Assemblyman William Ketchum, Banke found himself with an appointment with the governor. After being rushed into Reagan's office, he was asked, "What areas of the budget are you concerned with?"

Previously he was handed a book dealing with budgets, and flipping open to a section that he had marked by a paperclip, and combined with the awe of being with the state governor, he mentioned EOP. He was then asked if he felt EOP was more effective at the junior college level than the state college level, and he answered yes.

Reagan then asked him if he felt EOP was effective at this school and he again answered in the affirmative, though he felt it would work a lot better at the vocational level. Banke also felt that ASI should not give money to back the program.

The governor then asked Banke if he would put his feelings in writing, and to this Banke answered that he didn't think it was advisable because he wouldn't be speaking for the student body but for only himself. To this Reagan asked, "Weren't you voted in by a majority of the student body?"

The next scene took place in the first of February. McLaughlin initiated a petition that urged negative action to be taken against the ASI funding of the EOP program on this campus. Five hundred signatures were needed; approximately 800 signed it.

The next step was for petition to be made into a referendum sent to the Elections Committee. It was never taken. Banke informed, "I didn't want to see a blow-up on this campus and I saw this as something highly controversial." He then asked McLaughlin not to submit the petition and McLaughlin obliged.

Former ASI President Rush Hill, now an education advisor to the governor asked Banke to follow-up his statement to Reagan with a written statement. Banke, realizing how strong McLaughlin had felt about EOP, asked him to write Reagan as a "Cal Poly student," and let him know how he felt regarding EOP. In this February 11 letter, Banke's stand on EOP was revealed.

"The EOP program, under its current directorship tends to polarize the minority students rather than promote interracial co-existence," begins the letter.

The next point Banke expounds deals with vocations: "...it is much more practical to help these educationally deprived

John and Jennifer join in 'Strange Love Rite'

There's going to be another concert in the Men's Gym this Friday. However, don't let that stop you from going.

In spite of any drawbacks due to location, the 8 p.m. concert looks to be a pretty good one. Billed as a "Strange Love Rite," Friday's performance will feature the music of John Stewart and Jennifer.

Stewart, veteran of the Kingston Trio in the 60's, is in the process of building a reputation as a accomplished singer and performer. With two albums behind him, "California Bloodlines," and "Willard," both of which received excellent reviews from such diverse sources as Variety magazine and Rolling Stone.

Combining elements of folk, blues and country western in a style that is free of gimmickery and pseudo-freak theatrics, Stewart's past concerts have been highly competent and enjoyable affairs.

"You don't need gimmicks when you write and sing as well as John," says friend James Taylor. "His gimmick is talent."

The other half of the entertainment will be provided by Jennifer Warren, known professionally simply as Jennifer.

A star for six months in the Los Angeles production of "Hair,"

Tickets are available at the CU at $1.50 for students and $2.50 for the general public.

Mideast - The Israeli government shelved plans for a parliamentary debate on the visit by U.S. Secretary of State Rogers, amid waning hopes in Israel of an imminent interim agreement on reopening the Suez Canal.

Indochina - President Nixon's troop withdrawal program cut into the remaining complete U.S. division in Vietnam. Troop strength is down to 287,000

Alexandria, Va. - Retired Major General Carl C. Turner, once the Army's top law enforcement officer and chief U.S. Marshal, was sentenced to three years in prison on charges of illegally obtaining 136 guns from Chicago Police Department.

Cape Kennedy - The Apollo moon rocket and substitute Mariner Mars probe go to their launch pads today.

Jennifer, ex-ster of "Hair", will appear Friday in concert with John Stewart in "Strange Love Rite".

Mother nature brother's day

Editor

Many mother's will receive flowers of thanks today, Mother's Day, from their children. I wonder how many moments of appreciation were given to Mother Nature today.

I admire those who are appreciative enough of our common Mother to stick their neck out trying to defend her. But one often has his head or livelihood chopped off if the extended neck creates waves. Ralph Vrana dared to defend the environment. He confronted P.G.&E. and their monstrous proposal at Diablo Canyon with some of his very interesting studies (see Geological Society of America Bulletin, March '71). Three weeks later he lost his job. Purely "incidental" however! Incidental.

A small group of students attempted to negotiate with President Kennedy to get Vrana reinstated due to the implications. Frustrating failure resulted. A rally was held to air both sides of the issue. Kennedy, using his notoriously clever words, stated that Mr. Vrana had been given a "written guarantee" of reemployment but failed to elaborate on the many "if's".

Ah, success for Big Brother Bob. Many students were appeased by his soothing tactics meanwhile he silently eliminated Ralph Vrana from his institution.

Thankfully, there is a loving trust that arises in people who enjoy Mother Nature and work to defend Her.

Unfortunately, there is a hating disgust that arises when people lose the value to Nature and honesty.

Happy Mother's Day!
Happy Brother's Day!

Violence is desperation

Editor

Here are some thoughts to all people.

In these recent times of demonstrations in respect to Indo-China, sexism, colonialism, etc., we should devote enormous blocks of time devoted to rapping and thinking rationally, emotionalism has no place. Some people will rationalize violence. Violence only shows a persons or groups desperate frustration. It was violence and the coercion of ideas that got this country into its present state. More violence will just force new ideas onto someone else. The pressure and intimidation must be constantly maintained to keep the idea in power. This should show any demonstrator that if he has to resort to violence, his ideas weren't good enough. We don't need coercion of thoughts, we need better ideas which will be accepted by the majority.

The other thought is that even the enemy is your brother. As soon as you accept Dr. Kennedy, The Man and other "establishment types" as your brothers and they reciprocate, then rational honest ideas and dialogue can occur.

The Man and the "aggies" aren't against peace. They are reacting to the violence. If they are accepted as our brothers then we can all really pull together with such force that the revolution would happen overnight. Don't limit brotherhood only to those who are on your side. God help us all. We can change the world.

More miasma

In biology there exists an experiment where a frog is placed in water that is slowly warmed until the point is reached when without a whimper, the frog dies.

At Cal Poly there seems to be an experiment to see what level of apathy student government can withstand and still function usefully.

In an idealistic sense, "government" is a legal body that can and may employ methods of coercion, including physical force, to enforce its rules. To say that the current ASI is a "government" would be ludicrous. Outside of apportioning funds, the only power that the ASI has is declaring a motion out of order. Even the apportioning of funds is limited, as the college president has to affirm the allocation of funds.

So what is left, is for the ASI to reflect the wants and needs of the students.

This year's ASI election has brought forth one individual that is making a desperate move to reinstate some credibility to student-run government. To bring it from a miasma of slovenly acceptance to a pulsating, vibrant, effective and meaningful voice. In doing so he has been branded a "radical." More than once there have been physical threats to drop out of the race—or else.

Pete Evans is not satisfied with status quo student government. Judging by the turnout in the past few years elections, not many other people are either. He wants it to become student government, not college government, not play government.

If wanting to make the system work as it is designed is radical, then something is wrong with the system.

But if someone wants to take the system, imperfect as it may be, and make it work, then he should at least be given that chance.

Pete Evans.

Let him make it work.

The Presidents

ASI candidates final statements

Ideas our ammunition

We have received anonymous threats to 'get out' and 'stop running'. We are not frightened. Our ammunition in this campaign has been ideas, ideas which are truthful and timely and which relate to where Cal Poly is right now. We would gladly debate publicly anyone who disagrees with us. Our force is not in violence but in truth of what we say.

Some of our opponents have labeled us as 'radicals' in an attempt to scare supporters away. If favoring a legal service available free to all students is radical—we're radical. If declaring a moratorium on teacher rip-offs by this administration; if condemning foreign student tuition hikes; if favoring a recycling center for this campus; if proposing the establishment of a student-run housing office to coordinate and effectively reduce the housing problems presently facing students is radical—then we're radical. If, in summary, being active in support of a better deal for Cal Poly students is radical—we're radical.

Mike Jones

Step out and make contribution

Students of Cal Poly, it's time to step out and make your contribution towards what can be a change in direction of the ASI. Are you satisfied with the status quo, that is, general apathy, mistrust, and lack of confidence in the current trend of student government? Cal Poly needs a mature responsible leader who can give the students someone who believes in the equality of all students and is only concerned with the best interests of the entire school. I propose:

Talk program on KCPR, one hour per week, to hear students speak out about problems, opinions, and attitudes to the Pres.

State of the college weekly article by the ASI President on relevant issues, status of programs, and pertinent problems.

I stand in favor of campus and city bike lanes.

I believe Annexation will benefit the student body.

I will work to establish a legal aid counseling service.

I'm in favor of closed doors in the dorms.

I strongly support student evaluation of faculty.

I'm opposed to increases in Foreign Student tuition, and I support the Educational Op-

All of us at Cal Poly know of things that need improvement. Up to now, we have struggled alone or in small groups without the help or coordination that our student leadership could have provided. It doesn't have to be this way. This election can be the beginning of a New Way. Some of the candidates running have already had the opportunity as student officers to help us. What have they done? Marianne Doshi and I have been working with you on these problems for over a year now. We feel that the election of ourselves and those SAC candidates equally dedicated to improving the students' fare is of major importance if we are to regain a decent deal for the students.

Anyone who sees that much needs to be changed here at Cal Poly and who continues to advocate the status quo is not a conservative—he is a fool. Choose a leadership that understands the changes that are coming. Choose a leadership that has already shown itself dedicated to those changes. Dedicate yourself to action—

Joe Martinez

Employer and employee

My basic philosophy in seeking the office of ASI President is that students; when they buy an ASI membership card at registration, become my employer and I become their employee. The needs of the students of Cal Poly will shape my schedule. During the campaign each candidate has presented his views and opinions on the issues at hand. Each of us has presented his or her platform and by now I hope that the students here at Cal Poly are familiar with what each candidate proposes to do. However, no matter who is elected will be successful unless the students here become involved. Student government can do many things. More than just that, student government must provide an outlet for the creative abilities that each student has. Student government can solve many problems that we as students face. Many programs can be set up through the ASI, but these programs require the aid of you the student body. I favor faculty evaluation by the students and no matter how the final program is set up it will fail unless the students accept the responsibility for conducting the evaluations. Students are concerned about the ecology and yet I believe that ecology begins with each one of us as person. This viewpoint can be applied to student government also. I believe that students must work to make their student government meaningful. I do not have all the answers to all the problems, but I would work with all students to find the solutions. This election is an important one. At stake is not only the positions of student government but also which direction Poly will go in. This election will allow students to speak out. Ask that you please do not remain silent, that you go out and vote as your convictions dictate. I stand for the philosophy of progress through orderly change that respects the integrity of the individual. Together we can reach this goal. The final decision rests with you.

Joe Martinez

Skip Kelley bows out of ASI races

Skip Kelley, a City and Regional Planning major, announced late yesterday that he would withdraw from the race for the position of ASI President.

Kelley said that he was withdrawing so that he could actively support another candidate, Pete Evans. He urged that students vote to make the election viable.

Working in harmony

Most people have realized already that election speeches sound alike and the platforms repeat the proposals and remedies time and again. Parts of my platform are common to any election campaign, but it is essential to understand that many of these promises are of extreme importance.

I don't think telling you about the brilliance of my ideas, or how effective I will be when I am elected, or how I am going to do this or that will serve any purpose.

Mike Bohl

For the last week I have heard the same promises that you have, and have made my own as well. And, just like you, I am getting tired of hearing the "If I am elected I will" syndrome. Platforms, campaign promises, and glittering generalities are worthless without your ideas and my ideas working together in harmony. This will require your support, suggestions and criticisms. This is exactly where I stand. My merits are exposed, my goals are yours. The decisions remain with you.

Kahlil Gibran, in his book The Prophet, says exactly what I mean and how I feel when he talks about reason and passion:

"Your soul is oftentimes a battlefield, upon which your reason and your judgement wage war against your passion and appetite.

Would that I could be, the peacemaker in your soul, that I might turn the discord and the rivalry of your elements into oneness and melody.

But how shall I, unless you yourselves be also the peacemakers, nay, the lovers of all your elements?"

Need action and not slogans

Pete Evans and I are not "playing at student government" as some candidates indicate. The student body is a large and powerful group. To represent them is a job which demands much responsibility and understanding: responsibility to see that the students are enjoying their rights and understanding gained from experience with the problems that face us all as students. To be qualified a student leader must not only know what problems we face but have developed feasible and appropriate programs which would promote positive change.

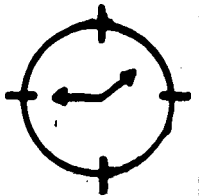

To state "we must work together to overcome the forces of suppression" or "your needs will fit my schedule" or "I want to let you represent your own point of view is all fine and dandy — elegant phrases so general that they have lost all meaning. These statements are typical candidates tricks. Everyone fills in his own ideas on what they really mean. What do these candidates specify are the "forces of suppression"? What do they think "your needs" are? Do they say we need a total revision of the way the dorms are run, that the students who live there should have the right to decide what the conditions they should live under? Do they say we students have too long been forced to pay high rents, live in overcrowded conditions, sign exploitative leases and tolerate arbitrary discrimination without any recourse? Do they speak of establishing student control over the quality and price of food in the cafeteria and bookstore? What about the necessity of a certified attorney available for all students so we can learn our rights and retrieve them? What of the necessity of enlarging our Ethnic Studies program so we can gain a fuller understanding of each others cultures? What about demanding a voice in faculty evaluations? What about the war?

When have these candidates ever committed themselves on anything? Besides their desire to attain an office. And remember, once elected they will be only as responsible to you as they want to be. Examine their record, and ours.

Confrontation: Banke and EOP

minorities by training them for vocational occupations in which they can feel a sense of pride and accomplishment." He adds, "With the current employment situation so bleak for college graduates, it seems a shame to train these truly needy people in areas where there exists such dismal employment opportunities."

The third point of the letter reads, "It also seems very difficult to compensate in four years for a lifetime of educational deficiency. This is a tremendous strain on both the educational institution and the individual. In practice it does not work."

"Not fair to turn away qualified individuals and let in unqualified," reads the fourth and final point of the Banke-to-McLaughlin letter.

As it stands, McLaughlin never wrote the letter to Reagan.

Banke's letter was a 20-minute on-the-spot-rush-job.

Scene three took place in President Robert Kennedy's conference room of the fourth floor of the administration building. Present were: Banke, Kennedy, Dr. Dan Lawson, Dean Everett Chandler, Alejandro Reynoso, James Edmundson, Don Colvin, Pete Vandeneysde, Oscar Quezada, Ernie Vasquez, Ricardo Martinez and Carl Wallace. And the letter.

Martinez is a co-director of EOP on this campus. Wallace is a co-director. Reynoso was the past director of MECHA. Edmondson is an assistant in the EOP program.

During the 120-minute confrontation, much was drawn out of the room. Many hot words. A lot of information. And some remarks made by the ASI President that amounted to Banke admitting that what he had done wasn't very smart and that it was a mistake and if he had to do it all over again, he wouldn't have mentioned it to Reagan.

A week later Banke represented this school at a special Assembly Ways and Means Committee meeting in Hayward. It was there that Banke reversed gears and made a statement to restore the EOP program on this campus.

Later, EOP asked for a budget of $25,000 from ASI for their 1971-72 program, an increase from last year's $18,000. The hike was needed because of Reagan's proposed 50-plus percent cut on the state-supported program: from last year's 3.3 million to 1.6 million. The proposal was for 4.1 million. Last year, EOP on this campus received $41,500 from the state.

When brought before the finance committee, the budget took a cut from the proposed $25,000 to $21,750. This was due to a $18,000 imbalance with the proposed and the required budget, said Banke. However, he added, the increase was the highest given to any campus group. After its meeting with the finance committee, the proposal will go to SEC then to SAC for final approval.

If Reagan's cut does go through, Senator Donald Grunsky, chairman of a Senate sub-committee dealing with the school budget, said at an April 12 meeting that "the EOP program will be reinstated." He added that he feels the program is "dedicated and well-motivated."

Grunsky's alternative program is an additional fee added to the present materials and supplies fee of around $50 per quarter. The addition will amount to approximately $70 for the school year. The proposed breakdown looks like this: $25 for faculty restoration; $3 for educational television; $3 for the Dean of Students; $13 for Admissions and Records; $1 for school relations; $13 for general financial aid, and the $12 for EOP.

Banke said, "There is no way until July 1 to know, but I will bet everything I have that it (the budget) will be reinstated."

In a statement prepared by Banke, for Mustang Daily publication, he states, "I believe that the EOP program at the California State Colleges has improved greatly in the past few years and is now making a significant contribution to the educational processes. The legislature realizes this and hopefully will restore the EOP budget to the level requested by the Trustees. All indications are that this will be done."

Election needs voters

Students have often been criticized for being apathetic toward student government. Is this a just criticism or are there other factors that come into play which have been over looked?

The enrollement on campus is quite large and we support many activities, programs and other events along with getting an education. Doing all of these things requires large amounts of time that students spend to make the activities and programs a success.

These are also students which are married and work to support their families and education. These people are concerned with the problems at hand and they are very seldom exposed to other activities on campus except going to class.

Every student has his or her priorities whether it be sports outings, work experience, student government or even getting an education. These different activities are important to each and everyone of us on an individual basis, they may not even be associated with the school, and only involving a few people.

One activity which affects all of the students is student government, a representative body for the students. One way to keep it representative of all students, if you are not directly involved with student government, is to vote this Wednesday and Thursday for ASI Student Body Officers.

Gill flies to lifetime best in triple jump at Fresno

Mohinder Singh Gill fell short of the American Record in the triple jump in the West Coast Relays by sailing to a lifetime best of 55 feet 1 1/4 inches. Gill's was only one of the many excellent performances turned in by Mustang trackmen.

Gill's performance earned him the meet's outstanding athlete award as he fell just a half inch short of the American record set by Art Walker. His meet record jump was less than two feet shy of the world record but was well over his previous best of 53-10 set in the Asian Games last December. In his series of jumps Gill had three over 53 feet.

The Mustangs proved to be tougher in the open division than they were in the college division. BYU won the open and intercollegiate division with 69 points while the Mustangs had 36. The Mustangs garnered 27 points in the college division, good enough for a third place finish behind L.A. State and Sacramento State.

Reynaldo added another record to his collection as he leaped 7-1 to break the existing mark of 6-10 in the college division competition. His luck was not as good in the open division as he failed twice at 6-10 and once at 7-0 to go unplaced.

Bobby Turner turned into a machine as he went in seven races in one day. In the open 100-yard dash Turner was nipped by Jim Kemp of the Southern California Striders as both ad 9.4 clockings. Earlier Turner had captured the college division 100 with a 9.7.

Turner later helped the 440-yard relay team run its best time of the year with a 41.1. The time enabled Lowell Henry, Swanson Bennett, John Haley and Turner to take second place in the open division of that race but finished in 41.6 in the college division also good for a second.

The same foursome battled Cal

State Los Angeles in the 880-relay but lost out at the tape as the Diablos won in 1:25.8 while the Mustangs finished in 1:25.9.

Bob Chance, Tony Mitchell, Dale Horton and Wally McConnell combined efforts to take third in the open two-mile relay with a time of 7:55.7 Brigham Young won the race with a 7:41.3 and San Jose State finished second in 7:52.1.

Three blanked by netters for near perfect weekend

Compiling an outstanding 35-1 record in four matches, the Mustang netters swept through the CCAA round robin tennis tournament at Fullerton unscathed.

It was sweet revenge as the only loss was to nemesis San Fernando Valley State. The Matadors had twice beaten the Mustangs in match play but this time the courts belonged to the Mustangs in match play but shut out three teams 9-0 and upended Valley State, 8-1.

The only loss suffered was by John Ross to Steve Messmer of the Matadors. But Messmer is ranked highly in the nation as two years ago he won the national singles title. It was the only loss by Ross as he won his other three matches.

Other Mustangs sweeping their matches were Tom Martin, Dan Lambert Paul Summers, Greg Piers and Kent Coble. Coach Ed Jorgenson commented that all netters played outstandingly and that it was a "real good team effort."

The Mustangs ended the season with 19 wins and five losses while ten of the wins came in league play as did two of the losses.

Though the dual season was completed Saturday, the netters will participate in the Santa Barbara Invitational tournament on May 21 and 22. Jorgenson hopefully plans to take the netters to the nationals during June in Indiana.

Cal Poly Pomona, UC Riverside, and Cal State Fullerton all fell to the Mustangs by 9-0 scores.
