Evans-Doshi team takes office

Record turnout for ASI election

With a raised fist next years Vice-President signals victory. Marriane Doshi took the office of Vice-President and Pete Evans the ASI President slot in last week's election. They were elected on the largest turnout in ASI history.

"Congratulations," yelled a supporter as Pete Evans finished his first sign of success—a TV interview—"We didn't win", Evans yelled back, "you did."

Pete Evans called more votes in his victory Friday than any ASI candidate in history. He needed 2,967 votes to win. He got 2868 on the first ballot and took it going away with 3037 on the second.

And Marianne Doshi. She almost took it on the first ballot also—she came close to having more votes than her opposition had combined. On the second ballot she had 2804 votes, her closest opposition had 1825.

There were 5973 total votes cast—53 per cent of the student body—in the largest election turnout in the history of the campus. "It means that the students are interested in a change," Miss Doshi said, "I hope it means that it is the end of apathy at Cal Poly."

Pete Evans said that he "wasn't going to wait until June," before he started going to the students. "I am going to have an 'open forum' beginning tomorrow and also on Thursday, for the rest of the year." Evans said that the forums will be held in the college union plaza and begin at 11 p.m. on both days.

Evans went on to say that he wants to avoid the inevitable polarization that occurs after some of the ASI elections. He plans to meet with students and discuss how student government can be made more effective, more meaningful, for the students at Cal Poly. "we don't want some students to give up" Evans said. "We want them all to participate."

Evans and Miss Doshi plan to spend the summer in San Luis Obispo in order that they don't lose contact with ASI activities. This is the first political office that Evans, a Mechanical Engineering student, and Miss Doshi, who is studying Ornamental Horticulture, has ever held.

College EOP receives boost from IBM grant

Educational Opportunity Programs will receive an additional $220,000 generated by a grant from International Business Machines Corp. Chancellor Glenn Dumke announced Friday.

The funds will provide tutorial assistance at 10 State Colleges which next year expect approximately 3,700 new minority and low income EOP students requiring special help.

No funds were awarded to this college.

IBM initiated the tutorial assistance plan with a previous grant last year. The corporation's new grant, for $44,000, will generate $176,000 in additional funds during 1971-72 under a 4-1 matching provision of the federal government's College Work-Study Program.

"We appreciate the opportunity to work with you in this important program, and hope it will continue to meet the needs of minority and low income students," C. E. Frizzell, General Manager of IBM's San Jose office stated in a letter to Chancellor Dumke.

Dr. Kenneth S. Washington, EOP Coordinator for the State Colleges, said the grant is in accord with Legislative authorization to the Board of Trustees to obtain funds from non-state sources for EOP assistance.

"We are pleased that IBM has taken the initiative in this area, by noting the success of our campus EOP programs and recognizing that lack of money is the greatest restriction in meeting needs for these programs," Dr. Washington said.

Each of the 10 participating colleges, chosen because of their location in areas of sizeable minority concentrations, will be allocated $2,000 from the IBM grant to provide summer orientation programs for EOP students.

Additional amounts, ranging from $1,920 to $2,640, will go to the campuses during the regular academic year beginning in September to continue the employment of tutors for students in the programs.

VD victims reaching uncontrollable number

Sacramento (UPI)—

Nearly 10 per cent of California's teen-agers have venereal disease and the incidence could rise to one out of two by 1980 barring a "major break-through," the state Board of Education was told Thursday.

California had 100,000 cases last year, one out of every six in the United States, said Dr. Geoffrey Simmons, 27, who treats 250 VD cases a week. "If this were measles or chicken pox the community would be in an uproar," Simmons stated. He said that nearly 10 per cent of teenage students in the states have VD.

"The Public Health Service is predicting it will be one out of two by 1980 barring any major breakthrough," Simmons said. "If this epidemic continues unchecked, it will become nature's way of controlling overpopulation." Gonorrhoea can cause sterilization, he said.

His calls for VD instruction in the schools won support from board member Dr. John Ford, a San Diego physician, who said "a child should not be allowed to finish junior high school without some evidence he has had such instruction."

Governor Reagan's personal minister, the Rev. Donn Moomaw of Bel Air said the situation showed the state was facing an "epidemic of immorality." He supported Ford's recommendation and said he hoped that board would take formal action soon on the proposal.

Senators clash on war

Washington—(UPI) Secretary of State William P. Rogers in a bristling confrontation with Sen. J. William Fulbright, Friday, described as unconstitutional and unnecessary proposals to restrict a President's authority to commit troops abroad.

Rogers testified before a Senate Foreign Relations Committee, headed by Fulbright, that such action would limit the President's constitutional powers and seriously limit his ability to carry out foreign policy.

During a subsequent exchange, both Rogers and Fulbright displayed uncooled irritation and anger with each other. Fulbright said the administration was doing "double talk" to justify continuation of the Vietnam war and expected members of Congress to follow its edicts like "good boys."

At another point, Fulbright remarked, "The more I observe this administration, the more it appears that you are following exactly the same course as your predecessors." "You," he said to Rogers, "have gone almost as far as Mr. Katzenbach."

Evans plans for forums

Pete Evans, newly elected ASI President for next year, announced that he will be promoting a twice-weekly 'open forum' beginning tomorrow.

The forums will be held in the college union plaza and will begin at 11 a.m. both days. Evans said that he is hoping that students will help make student government effective by supporting it.

As yet, there is no formal structure to the forums, but problems confronting students and the college will be aired.

Letters to the Editor

Refuse responsibility?

Editor:

Just a comment for our readers. During elections, I observed a very interesting situation. A fellow student approached the voting table and asked, "which ones are the radicals, I know I don't want to vote for them."

The young lady behind the table pointed them out and proceeded to instruct the voter the proper manner in which to mark his ballot. The student, still in doubt, asked another question, "which candidates would you select, I don't know any of the candidates listed here." The young lady replied, "you must make your own decision." The gentleman answered, "I don't care who wins as long as it isn't a hippie."

I pray to God this is not the typical, apathetic, misinformed, voter at Cal Poly. If it is, no wonder our campuses are being destroyed by radical dissent. It isn't the "establishment" that carries all the blame, but it is our brothers and sisters who refused to accept the responsibility of informing themselves on issues and dedicating themselves to a cause fit to work for and a self fit to live.

Roger Katona

Previous story reveals rules are discriminatory

EDITOR:

It is a peculiar thing, indeed, when the rules and regulations are kept rigid and inflexible when applied to "undesirable" entities on this campus, while the "desirable" are allowed to slip by.

The recent statements addressed to the EOP program by the alleged student representative of this campus that it is "not fair to turn away qualified individuals and let in the unqualified" can be seen as a purely racist statement when it is discovered that there is a 2 per cent allowance at this school for admitting unqualified agriculture students which is supported by the influential farmers in this area.

In addition, the hanky-panky in college athletics in retaining flunking star athletes is never questioned. Owing to these obvious political inconsistencies, it would be advisable for the officials of this college not to try to justify their actions by such ridiculous statements nor try to pose such highly moral judgments on what is "fair" when this school, state, and nation have been anything but fair to minorities.

Linda Fishman

Mustang's style has yellow tint

Editor:

Once again the Mustang Daily, in an Editorial, has shown that yellow journalism is not confined to profit-making newspapers. The Editorial in last Thursday's paper took one of Governors statements out of context. He never said that it was good for taxes to hurt. His statement was to the effect that withholding taxes make it less obvious that one is paying through the nose. For example, at the end of the year, a person would unconsciously thank the Government for his check for, say, $200, instead of cursing them for taking $800.

Regardless about how you feel about withholding, or the Governor's other actions, you cannot in all fairness fault him for that statement. It is the mass media which changes the meaning of his statement.

Budget strain—Kiosk lives on

In attempt to refurbish the overspent Poly Royal budget, the Architecture Department is planning to keep the Kiosk open until the end of the quarter.

Located in the Architecture Patio, the Kiosk will be selling the usual fresh donuts and coffee for 10 cents. It will be open weekdays, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

About time

Cal Poly might see some change in the future.

For the first time in the history of the school, students have had the opportunity to vote for a concept and not just another individual. No one can mumble about it being a fluke takeover either. Pete Evans pulled in more votes by himself than have been cast in past elections--and that is TOTAL votes in past elections.

In voting in Evans, students passed a mandate for action. They are tired of fundamental issues of education being swallowed up by the quagmire of Parliamentary procedure. They want to be represented. They are pressing for their opinions to be expressed on what is happening to their world and their education.

But not all people think the same. After the election, I had placed on my typewriter a terse comment of how one individual felt about the election results:

"May 14, 1971 will be remembered as a Black Day for old Cal Poly."

It is pathetic indeed when individuals can't face the decision of their peers. I wonder if they can sustain their life in this country, where the government and judicial system is based on the same concepts.

Better method?

During the election, there was a lot of criticism flying around on the method in which the voting was handled. The most glaring criticism was the fact that the election system wasn't set up to handle an election of any proportion. They were geared for the standard 25 per cent of the student body to turn out for the vote. They were more than a little surprised when that many turned out on the first day alone.

In something as important as the student elections, there should be no room for confusion. Students should not have to fumble their way through a ballot that they don't understand. They should not have to truck from poll to poll just to find a ballot.

Let us hope next year that the voting is based on a system of efficiency and effectiveness.

Soviets for troop pullout

WASHINGTON UPI—The White House welcomed a suggestion by Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev that the Kremlin is interested in reducing troop levels in Europe by proposing a move in the Senate to cut U.S. forces by half.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, sponsor of the troop reduction proposal, also welcomed a speech by Brezhnev urging the Western Powers to initiate negotiations with Iron Curtain countries on cuts in arms and troops in Central Europe.

But Mansfield insisted that his Senate amendment "must stand on its own merits." His proposal to cut U.S. troops from 300,000 to 150,000 is set for a vote Wednesday.

At the White House, Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said of Brezhnev's remarks: "We welcome this. This development does underline and reinforce what we've been saying in the last few days—that now is not the time to unilaterally dismantle our forces in Europe, particularly because of the prospects of negotiations."

Secretary of State William P. Rogers, who will consult with NATO allies in June on disarmament tactics, told senators that adoption of the Mansfield amendment would be a "mistake of historic proportions."

He testified before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee with reference to Brezhnev's speech: "The reason they indicate a willingness to negotiate is that they know we won't do it unilaterally. If we do it unilaterally, Brezhnev doesn't have any reason at all to hesitate."

Royal bummer

by Ken Hyland

The 39th annual Poly Royal was a success. Or was it? Campus grumblers claim that it wasn't, while Dave Wright, chairman of the Poly Royal Board, claims that it was.

Wright estimates that, despite the cold weather, the first day's crowd was larger than last year's and Saturday's turn out only matched last years. The estimated total number of visitors this year was between 65,000 and 85,000.

As always, a few people claim that the commercialism of the event is getting worse. Wright contends that commercialism has been on the decline in the past few years. He claims there is a continuing effort to "weed out" commercial displays.

Displays were more professional than ever Wright argues. They were all carefully planned, not just thrown together, he said. The statistics indicated that the number of booths and displays remained about the same.

Many people seem dissatisfied with the two-day festival. One student commented "Poly Royal has steadily been going downhill, and this year it reached the bottom."

Wright counters by saying that for every student who tires of the event, there is at least one student who will be getting involved for the first time. This makes for a continuous flow of new blood and Poly Royal carries on and on.

Visitors are always interested, Wright claims. There are many parents and friends who have never seen a Poly Royal, Wright claims, even though the student may be advanced in his college career and near graduation.

One student's mother commented that, "Each year there is more to see; it cannot be seen in two days. So there is always something left to see the next time."

The coordination of the annual "country fair on a college campus" is in the hands of the Poly Royal Board. This year the board was given a budget of a little over $25,000 and they spent it all. According to Wright, about $17,000 was spent on publicity. The rest was used as operating capital for the general events on campus: stock for the rodeo, bands for the dances, prizes for the carnival and food for the barbeque, to mention a few.

This money is usually all returned to the Associated Students, Inc., and Wright is confident that it happened again this year. The board receives proceeds from a 40 per cent tax on all profits made from the concession stands and general events. The sponsoring groups receive a fee and sometimes a percentage of the gate receipts, according to Wright, and the rest goes to the board.

Poly Royal is over for this year and its success is a matter of personal opinion, but is what the statistics said: Last year Poly Royal was appropriated $23,564 and all but $567.66 was spent. Poly Royal activities were expected to clear $24,140 but actually made $3,575 over that.

According to Randy Dettmer, this year's director of finance Poly Royal was budgeted for $25,485 with an expected income of $25,650. All the budget was spent, but according to Dettmer, only $2,250 income has been received as yet. It seems that close to $25,000 will be coming in and the board may meet its budget, but there is no indication that there will be the profit that there was last year.

Next year's budget is in the last stages of being finalized and it has been raised from this year's. There is a recommended expense of $26,315 and a recommended income of $27,300.

Auditorium acoustics to complement Symphonic Band's superior sounds

The College Union will vibrate with music this Saturday night, May 22 as the Symphonic Band presents the fifth annual Spring Band Concert beginning at 8 p.m.

The concert is scheduled to take place in the multipurpose room of the C.U. because of the large number of people that were turned away from the Winter Band Concert held in the Little Theater in February.

The excellent acoustics of the auditorium plus the outstanding musical progress of the Symphonic Band in recent months should provide concert goers with an evening of high quality entertainment.

Every effort has been made to provide this year's Spring Concert audience with a wide variety of musical styles, including a major symphony for band, an overture, a collection of religious music of old Russia, fiesta music of Mexico, Dixieland music and a Sousa march.

The 63 strong Symphonic Band has recently returned from a one week tour of Southern California. According to Band Conductor William V. Johnson, the tour experience plus many long hours of practice and rehearsal have enabled the band members to obtain a very high level of musicianship. They will be performing some of the finest music for bands.

Three specialty groups will perform at the Spring Concert: the Dixieland Band, the Studio Band and the Woodwind Quintet. The latter is a newly formed organization led by Pat Harrower, part-time woodwind instructor in the Music Department.

This group consists of the traditional instrumentation for woodwind quintet: flute, clarinet, oboe, bassoon and French horn. The quintet will perform "Pastoral," a peice by Vincent Persichetti.

Jane Swanson, wife of orchestra conductor Clifton Swanson, will be the band's guest soloist for the evening. Mrs. Swanson will play Gardner Reed's "Poem", a work for French horn and woodwinds. A graduate of U.C.L.A. School of Music, Mrs. Swanson is the recipient of both the Atwater-Kent and the Colemon Competition Awards.

Bruce Gratland will be featured on the drums in the "Overture for Tommy," a rock opera made popular by The Who. Gratland is the drum-major of the Marching Band and has been featured with the Sumphonic Band many times.

Spring Concert tickets are on sale at the ASI office, at the door and at other downtown outlets. Tickets are also available from band members.

Forum views Vietnam

A speaker's forum entitled "Viewpoints, Vietnam" will be presented by the Speech Department today and tomorrow, at 11 a.m. in the C.U. Plaza.

Four different viewpoints representative of those held by the American public will be investigated by students, Neil Summerhays, Jack Strauch, Steve Doyle, and Glen McCollough.

The positions under discussion include: Nixon's Vietnamization Program; the Democratic-leftist position for ending American involvement; the position that America is wrong, should admit defeat and withdraw immediately; and the stand that the war shall be viewed on a solely economic and political basis, and that in those terms it is justifiable.

The program's purpose is to explore the issues behind the various viewpoints and the basis of their support.

TROUBLE WITH A CAPITAL "T"

Broadway's notorious Professor Hill, chief character of the long running play "The Music Man" would have probably felt right at home with today's pool scene.

Or, would he? In his day pocket billiards were played down the alley-behind closed doors. And never by "respectable people." Today not only do respectable men play the game, but so do "respectable women." Not only that—on a college campus!
