Over-population crowds land life

by STEPHANIE HINES

Over-population is a bigger threat to terrestrial life than any geological event possible. San Luis Obispo is getting its share of the problem as was discussed by city councilman Keith Gurnee at last Thursday's Zero Population Growth (ZPG) meeting.

Councilman Gurnee listed six basic problems resulting from our increased population growth: water, energy, transportation, land speculation, and over-population and promotional schemes. Of these six, water represents the major cause of population growth.

Energy, meaning industrial growth, causes San Luis Obispo residents to suffer the impact of developments and reap little benefits.

Transportation, dealing mostly with the Highway 1 project, will bring more people to San Luis Obispo than are already migrating into this city, not to mention the automobile pollution that will result from this project.

Land speculation, over-planning and promotional schemes find out-of-town realtors selling in-town property at their profit. These speculation pressures bring new people to San Luis. "If you plan for growth, you'll get it," says Gurnee. "Some planning must be done, but it is better if it occurs naturally."

Some of the recommendations brought up by Gurnee would include transferring the costs of capital improvements on the developer. Also included in this transfer would be damages and environmental impact.

TAXES

Cost restraint

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Besides creating new boards to control wages and prices, President Nixon has started machinery designed to restrain interest charges and dividend payments, soaring medical costs and rising state and local taxes.

In his nationwide televised address, Nixon concentrated on the two boards to regulate paychecks and prices during his post-freeze economic policy. He also announced an all-government commission to bring about voluntary restraint in interest charges and dividend payments to stockholders.

But, in a series of background briefings, administration officials also revealed Nixon's plans to appoint new boards to zero in on "dramatically rising medical costs" and climbing state and local taxes.

A fact sheet on the new "committee on the health services" explained that the application of the overall program to reduce prices "presents special difficulties in the health field because of the lack of standardization of the product and for other reasons."

The health panel, it was explained, would advise the Cost of Living Council "on ways to apply the standards of the price control program in this area and to enlist the full voluntary cooperation of the industry in restraining cost and price increases."

Members of the medical cost board would include representatives of the medical profession, consumer interests and the public generally, officials said.

Another commission to be called the "committee on state and local government cooperation," will be formed to find ways of holding down state and municipal government payrolls and taxes.

As with the creation of the wage and price boards, the government shed few details and gave only a broad outline of objectives for the other committees.

Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, was named by Nixon to head the "committee on interest and dividends."

Highway route Hearing tonight

A public hearing of the proposed rerouting of Highway 1—an action opposed by local environmentalist groups—will be held by the San Luis Obispo City Council tonight.

The matter is scheduled to be aired by the County Board of Supervisors at a later date.

The meeting tonight is not a regular City Council meeting. The council meets regularly on the first and third Monday of every month. Meetings are held at 7 p.m. in the City Council Chambers, City Hall.

UAW leader has demanded full autonomy

by DAVID W. CHUTE

Detroit (UPI)—United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock said Friday he will refuse to sit on President Nixon's Phase II Pay Board unless the board is given complete autonomy.

Woodcock also told a news conference at the UAW's Solidarity House that the giant union will not cooperate with the administration at all until "conflicting interpretations" of the workings of the Pay Board (Continued on page 4)

Soviets expel Britons In expected retaliation

by DAVID NAGY

Moscow (UPI) - The Soviet Union Friday ordered 18 British diplomats and businessmen expelled or banned from returning to Soviet soil in retaliation for the ouster of 106 Soviet officials from Britain.

The action, announced by a British Embassy spokesman here, came two weeks to the day after Britain expelled the Russians on grounds of spying.

The Soviet Union based the expulsion order on the charge that the Britons had been "engaged in activity incompatible with their official status"—a diplomatic euphemism for spying - and British Ambassador Sir John Killick immediately rejected those grounds.

"This I know not to be true, and I said so," Sir John told newsmen at the British Embassy after he had returned from the Soviet Foreign Office about 9 p.m.

Sir John had been summoned to the foreign office, where he was handed the written notice of retaliation that Britain has been awaiting since its action of Sept. 24.

The Russians have denied the charges of spying in Britain. They accused Britain of trum-

Project 9 raps on drugs

"If we are going to say something is right or something is wrong the next logical step is — who says?" In these few words Rev. Bruce Tjaden, campus pastor, summed up the main topic for discussion at the Project 9 meeting held Thursday evening.

A small and varied group of people heard the pastor give a short, informal talk on "Ethics and Morality." Tjaden said one of the main problems in making a value judgement, such as whether to use drugs or not, is what authority is used as a basis for the judgement.

The authority may stem from God, church, school, family or ourselves, depending on what biases are present. Tjaden pointed out that although using yourself as the authority for your own morality sounds handy, it is impossible to separate yourself from your environment completely.

Tjaden explained that the so-called "new morality" includes situation and content ethics. To explain the difference between these two Tjaden told the story of an elderly hospital patient with a terminal disease of some sort.

The situation ethicist would examine the entire situation and would decide that it was unnecessary to tell the old person of the seriousness of his disease. It would be for the patient's own good not to cause him worry in his last few days. The content ethicist, on the other hand, would tell the elderly patient the complete truth because anything less than that would not be telling the truth as the commandments dictate.

This situation leads back to the problem of values and determining the point of reference in the decision making. In discussing these reference points Tjaden said, "probably the most important of all is — what is going to be the consequence of my actions?"

Anyone interested in finding out more about any of the facets of the drug problem might attend at least one of these meetings.

Richard Hirschler, co-ordinator of Project 9, announced that there will be guest speakers at each Thursday evening meeting at Ag. 231 at 8 p.m., unless otherwise announced.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Get dorm facts straight

Editor:

On the night of October 8, 1971, a meeting with Mr. Bostrom was scheduled for the lounge in Fremont Hall. We were invited to this meeting by a resident of Fremont Hall in order that we might learn Mr. Bostrom's side of the story about dorm reform. We were denied entrance to this meeting because it suddenly became closed to all students but Fremont Hall residents.

The reasons we were given were totally inadequate and went against the very rules that "The Team" makes. The rule states that all meetings held by on-campus organizations must be open to all students. Fremont Hall is a chartered on-campus organization. Why were we denied entrance?

As for Mr. John Young, we found out from the records office that he lives at Palm Royal and that sure isn't on the Cal Poly campus. His entire argument was based on the past. That's past. We don't like the conditions

NOW! Mr. Young can't possibly know the conditions now because he doesn't live here now. Nostalgia ain't gonna help the future.

We all live in Sequoia Hall. We all attend the dorm meetings. We weren't led to believe those things from any "grape-yard" (I think the term he wants is "grapevine") informers. We got the information from experience, the Housing Office, the Sequoia desk, and the resident managers in Sequoia. Finally, we would like to know the point of John Young's letter because he didn't say anything.

Since we were denied entrance to the Fremont meeting, we have scheduled a meeting in the Free Speech Arena for Thursday, October 14, 1971 during College Hour. We have invited Mr. Bostrom and Dr. Kennedy to the rally and we invite Mr. Young and the entire campus also. Bostrom, Kennedy, and Chandler have made their point that they won't change. Come to the rally and hear how they're going to have to change!

regarding the accident. It is my wish to clarify some of the facts.

The picture, as well as the article gave the impression that the bicycle rider was run down and badly injured by the car. To begin with, it was a gross exaggeration to say that Miss Lehman "was struck from her bike and hurled to the ground suffering head and back injuries." Both Janet and I concur that we collided and she fell from her bike. When we collided we were travelling at an approximate speed of 2-5 mph. Due to a previous back injury, Miss Lehman threw herself in such a manner as to protect her back and therefore hit her head. After x-rays were taken it was discovered she had nothing more than a bruise and some sore muscles.

I immediately reported the accident "myself" to the campus security and am an "alumnus" of Cal Poly rather than a student as the article stated. I hope these facts will clarify the incorrect article. It is my further hope that the Mustang Daily reporters will be careful in the future to get their information from the parties involved.

Vets for peace gain advisor

Veterans for Peace may soon become a full-fledged club on this campus. The group formed Spring Quarter, but was unable to get school recognition when it couldn't find a faculty advisor.

Baldrige said the group has an advisor, Dr. Ronald Ritichard of the Biological-Sciences department, and is waiting for administration approval.

Vets for Peace prime goal is seeking the immediate withdrawal of the United States from Vietnam. In keeping with this goal, the group is supporting and participating in the "teach-in" set for Oct. 13 on this campus. Future plans include club members marching in the Veterans Day parade in Santa Barbara on Oct. 25 as a protest of the war.

Baldrige requests that any veterans interested in joining the club attend a meeting tonight at 7 p.m. at 866 Santa Rosa.

Wrong picture

Editor:

On the front page of the Wednesday, October 6th edition of the Mustang Daily there appeared a picture and an article entitled, "The inevitable: bike, car crash." Neither Janet Lehman, the bicycle rider, nor myself, the driver of the car, were questioned by a reporter

EDITORIAL

Campus traffic sense a must

The traffic accident that occurred in front of Yosemite Hall Tuesday is characteristic of the new bicycle system initiated at this college—not because of the system itself, but as a result of misunderstanding of how it operates.

Since the opening of Fall Quarter numerous instances of near-collisions between cars and bicycles have been reported to our office. Twice, students witnessed bicyclists ride directly into permanent structures. Who knows what else could happen if the proper precautions are not taken.

From the viewpoint of the bicyclists, car drivers must exercise extreme caution, especially when moving out from stop signs. And cyclists must learn they are not special and must also follow the rules of the road.

Potentially, the greatest danger areas are at the light in front of Yosemite Hall and the four-way intersection at California and Foothill Boulevards. At the latter car drivers, anxious to move out after a lengthy wait for a green light, are apt to time the light and jump the gun a little. By the same token, cyclists come speeding through the intersection despite the ever present danger of a light change.

Once on campus, cyclists are "safe" within the confines of the new bike lanes. They hope. Because until more people start using the lanes, they will not be taken seriously. And until the lanes are taken seriously, those cyclists who race down through campus pose an additional threat of danger to themselves and to pedestrians.

The new bicycle system undoubtedly must have time to be accepted before it will be totally functional. But at the same time, it is imperative that all students or staff, bicycles in cars or even on foot, take the utmost care to protect themselves and others on the roads. Let's see that Tuesday's accident will be the last.

Soviets retaliate. . .

ping them up to destroy the momentum toward East-West detente and a relaxing of political tensions.

The retaliation also involved canceling of planned visits by Soviet and British leaders to London and Moscow. This included the scheduled trip to Moscow in February of British Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home.

The British spokesman said only four of the diplomats and one businessman appear to be on Soviet soil at present. The others were forbidden to return.

He gave this breakdown of the list:

—Four current members of the embassy staff, none of whom were at first identified by name.

—Nine former members of the embassy staff, who may not return. The British usually return a fairly high number of qualified diplomats to Moscow for second and third tours.

—One businessman now in the Soviet Union, said to have formerly been a diplomat.

—Three businessmen not in the country but who held valid return visas.

—One man described as "an academic." It was not disclosed whether he was in the Soviet Union.

The canceled visits also included that of Julian Amery, a British housing official, to Moscow and that of Nikolai Patolichev, Soviet foreign trade minister, to Britain.

Evans to speak

The Social Sciences Club will hold its initial membership meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. in CU 303.

Dean Edward Barker, head of the School of Business and Social Sciences, will discuss the curriculum for social science majors and aspects of the political science department. ASI President Pete Evans is scheduled to speak at the meeting on campus and community involvement. Plans will be drawn up for future activities such as workshops and field trips. New club officers will be nominated.

The meeting is open to the public. For more information, call Mo Nathan, club president, at 543-5403 or the Social Science office at 545-2260.

Chinese invite every student

The Chinese Student Association will meet tonight for a general meeting at 8:00 p.m. in the College Union, Room 204.

Topics of discussion will be the formation of bowling leagues and ping pong tournaments, and the picnic with Fresno State College at Montana de Oro State Park.

All interested persons are invited to attend the meeting, and further information can be obtained by contacting Richard Yee.

Attica takeover charged as 'large scale race war'

by KENNETH CAFARELL

Providence, R.I. (UPI) - A member of a five-man observation team at the uprising at Attica state prison said the takeover which claimed 42 lives was a "large scale race war."

"Only the most naive person would believe the same thing would have happened if the prisoners were all white," Julian Tepper said Thursday at a news conference prior to a speech at Brown University.

"Six percent of the prisoners at Attica were black or brown, probably 78 per cent in Yard D. All the guards, all the state police and all the National Guardsmen were white," he said, and blamed New York's Gov. Nelson A.

Rockefeller for not going to the prison.

"If Rockefeller had met with the observation committee, which was what we asked him to do, it would have given us more time. With time non-negotiable demands became negotiable," Tepper said. He also said if the governor had been there the prisoners might have lent more credence to the negotiations.

Tepper said he thought the armed rush by prison authorities and others was "wrong."

"We found a stable situation in Yard D, akin to a town meeting. There was a police function, a governing function, a feeding function, all being carried on capably. The prisoners told us the hostages were being treated better than they were," he said.

"We all knew if the prison was retaken by force, death was inevitable," he said.

"What happened at Attica was predictable and inevitable. There was no way not to know that it would happen and will happen again in other places," he said.

and Price Commission are resolved.

"When different people of equal cabinet rank, presumably speaking for the President, say different things we want to know what the President means," said Woodcock.

He said labor secretary James D. Hodgson assured Woodcock and other labor leaders at a briefing Thursday that the Pay Board would have the final say-so and that the Cost of Living Council would not have veto power.

Then, Woodcock said, Budget Director George Shultz said that the council, headed by Treasury Secretary John B. Connally Jr., would have veto authority over the boards.

Woodcock said that on the basis of Hodgson's briefing he was prepared to accept the invitation—and in fact, told Hodgson so—to be one of five labor members on the 15-member Pay Board. He said he's changed his mind.

U.S. meat inspectors face bribery charges

by CHARLES CALLEY
Boston (UPI)—A Federal grand jury indicted 40 U.S. Department of Agriculture meat inspectors Thursday on charges of accepting bribes from meat processing companies.

Also named in the indictments were three Boston meat packing companies and six company officials whom the government charged gave bribes to the inspectors to influence their decisions on the firms' meats.

U.S. Attorney Herbert F. Travers said the grand jury returned 46 separate indictments alleging bribery, perjury, conspiracy and related charges. However, Travers said there was no charge alleging that "unwholesome meat products reached consumers."

The indictments said one inspector took between $54,000 and $70,500 in bribes.

Inspectors are charged with not grading and classifying meat by quality.

There are some 75 government meat inspectors in the Boston area serving about 98 meat processing plants.

The inspectors, employed by the Agriculture Department's Consumer and Marketing Service, were removed from their jobs and replaced by the federal agency.

Officials said an investigation of federal meat inspection in the Boston area started in 1969 with a tip from the marketing service about possible bribery.
