

Parking tickets

Where does all the money go?

by JUNE KRAFTT

In a legal game of monopoly, $40,000 collected annually from parking violations slips past this school and goes directly to the County of San Luis Obispo.

When a student gets a ticket on campus, he receives a legal citation from a security officer. The citation is then sent to the San Luis Obispo Justice Court.

Judge Paul Jackson holds court for campus tickets, and a student may go to court and plead his case. If he doesn't want to go to court, he can go down and just pay the fee for his particular offense. If a student pays a fee either way, the money all goes to the same place—the County Road Fund.

But 15 years ago, the revenue received from campus parking tickets stayed at this school. An informal arrangement was made with the local authorities. A student would pay a "penalty" for a parking offense, 50 cents for the first offense, $1 for the second, $2 for the third. If the number of offenses went too high, a student was placed on probation, and virtually could be expelled for a parking penalty.

The flaw to the perfect plan presented itself about 1960, when the Attorney General's Office discovered that this practice was illegal. Since the college was on state property, not private property, the money should have gone to the county. From then on the tickets were referred to the local justice court, and the money went to the county, where it legally belonged.

There are problems with this arrangement, too. First, it is a burden on the justice court to take care of the tickets. Second, this school would like the annual $40,000 to $50,000. But changing the present (Continued on page 2)

The parking ticket is a familiar sight to students returning from classes. For those that pay the fine, their money goes to the County Road Fund.

Food stamp cutbacks help lowest incomes

by BERNARD BRENNER

Washington (UPI)—The administration's decision to cancel cutbacks in food stamp benefits for some 3 million "higher income" poor people will restore up to $15 a month in scheduled losses to some needy families, Agriculture Department officials indicated Monday.

But explanations by department spokesmen also indicated the families involved, while avoiding cuts, would not share in the increased benefits now taking effect for the neediest of the poor.

The Agriculture Department, in new food stamp regulations which have now been partially reversed, raised stamp benefits last year for some 6 million program participants with lowest incomes, but reduced them for persons near the top of the stamp eligibility scale.

The reversal leaves intact expansions included in last year's action but eliminates the cutbacks.

For example, officials said, a family of four with an income of $360 a month previously had been paying $83 in cash monthly for stamps worth $106. This gave the family a free stamp "bonus" of $24 a month. Under the new regulations which began taking effect last December in some areas, the family was to be required to pay $99 cash for

Escape the Doris Day syndrome at CU films

Students who are faced with the dilemma of what to do on Friday and Saturday nights have the consolation that the Cal Poly Films Committee understands the problem.

Every weekend the committee presents first-rate movies inexpensively to students in the College Union. "The aim," said Randy Donant, advisor to the committee, "is to show the student as wide a variety of movies as possible, to fit his individual tastes." The committee has tried to escape the Doris Day flick syndrome of previous years by presenting recently released movies such as Mash, Boys in the Band and Woodstock, according to Donant.

The committee is given a budget each year of $10,800 for films from which they are expected to make a profit. The procedure to obtain the movies is left up to the committee. During the year, a correspondence secretary writes to the major studios such as Warner Bros and United Artists to find out what films are available for rent.

In return the studios send a list of movies available back for consideration. At that time a vote is taken by the members and another list of the selected movies is sent back to the studios with the dates the committee would like them to be shown on campus.

The committee is presently composed of fifty members with Chris Younce as its chairman. In order to become a member of the committee, a student must have a 2.0 grade point average and attend three meetings before obtaining voting rights.

Meetings are held every other Tuesday with the next scheduled for Jan. 25 in Sci. E47 at 7:30 p.m.

Men's Colony offers reform

by JOYCE LYNN WILCOXSON

Editor's Note: This is the first of a two part series on the condition of the San Luis Obispo Men's Colony.

Prison life is a world in itself; prisoners severed from the world that surrounds them.

The California Men's Colony, located a few miles outside of San Luis Obispo, is a state prison whose job it is to help reform and rehabilitate inmates so that they may return to society as useful and law abiding citizens.

Unfortunately, because of the many obstacles encountered in trying to aid inmates, prison officials find it almost impossible to reform inmates in the desired manner. Reaching those people incarcerated on an individual basis is a strongly advocated and prime objective in the rehabilitation program, according to Daniel J. McCarthy, superintendent of the men's colony.

The east facility of the men's colony provides vocational training in 13 areas of the trade industry. Along with this training, inmates not previously graduated from high school have the opportunity to do so. College night courses are taught along with classes in ethnic studies.

With the help of counselors, prisoners can choose for themselves what type of work they want to pursue while at the colony. Many inmates accept the study opportunities that are offered to them. The education and trade work learned in prison often aid the men in securing a good job after they are released.

In an effort to reach the individual and his needs, McCarthy said the men's colony will soon be increasing their psychiatric staff.

Most inmates need psychiatric aid, yet because of the shortage of psychiatrists the inmates often don't get enough psychiatric counseling within a certain time. The prison administration, however, is trying desperately to meet this need.

The east facility of the men's colony is divided into four quadrants, each with its own program administrator. In each section there are about 600 men. Because of a decrease in prison population, the west facility has been almost completely closed. The emphasis now in the men's members of the Finance Committee represent these certain interests and not overall student interest. There is little representation of general interest to all students."

Pay statements available soon

All W-3 Forms for faculty, staff, and students on the state or Foundation payroll will be available soon.

Students on the state payroll can get their W-3's between Jan. 24 and Jan. 31, in the Payroll Office, Room 109 of the Administration Building. Students on the Foundation payroll should go to Room 213 of the College Union between Jan. 17 and Jan. 27.

Faculty and staff forms will be mailed to the departments within the next few days.

Statements which have not been picked up by noon, Jan. 31, will be mailed.

Priorities affect funds

The problem of who gets what when it comes to a division of A&I funds is not only being faced by Finance Committee, now that budget requests are in. A&I Pres. Pete Evans has firm ideas about where expenditures will do the most good for the most students.

Evans expressed a desire to go through the entire budget "and make a lot of changes in the distribution of funds. I feel some of the funds can be directed to more appropriate uses. The athletic department, for example, presents a large drain on the budget. They got a $64,000 subsidy this year and they're not meeting their projected income.

"All groups budgeted for travel take a great portion of our funds," Evans said. "We should seriously reconsider whether we really need to send groups around the country. Just to send a small team anywhere off campus, for them to eat and sleep and all that can cost at least $1,000. For a football game, you send not only the team, but six coaches, the managers, sometimes the whole band, cheerleaders, the rally club. If we cut out just one out-of-state football game a year, we could save about $10,000."

Evans said he'd like to see a cutback on "all these standard, traditional, 'ivy-covered college' type activities. I'd like to get funds for more services for the students and the community. Essentials like decent housing, jobs for students, more meaningful student government. We need funds so officers of SAC can attend conferences and find out what other campuses are doing. I'd like to see a tremendous increase in the contingency fund so that the new officers will have something to play with and can avoid some of the problems we had."

Specifically, Evans mentioned the Community Services Club and the Ecology Action Committee as candidates for A&I funding.

Evans said, "I'd just like to say that I feel there is much danger this year of traditional programs remaining in supremacy because

Comment on coverage

Editor:

Without meaning to harp, I would like to comment on the report of the SAC meeting in last Friday's Mustang. Front page coverage is definitely OK with me but the report could use some corrections to improve its accuracy.

The issue concerning the complaint filed by Dresler (SAC rep. CC and Humanities) and Evans with Student Judiciary against the "Heardbook" was reported in all the emotionalism present at the meeting. The facts of the matter are this: 1) the actions of SIC concerning the Heardbook are a matter of public record in the Summer Interim Committee minutes, 2) it was not Evans and Doshi but Martinez (SAC rep. Ag) and Doshi who protested further discussion of the case. As chairperson of SAC, I closed discussion to prevent jeopardizing the impartiality of the court hearing. As in civil law, the accuser must make his accusation public so that a defense can be prepared but the defense does not have to respond until they meet in court. This is no "pretense" as your article stated, but the real basis on which my decision was made.

The detailed coverage of the Howard Sargasser appeal was good to see even though the matter is so involved that clarity is certainly not easy. Not mentioned, however, was the fact that the issue was tabled because Mr. Sargasser was not present.

I only wish you could have spent a few words on another vital subject SAC hassled with: the proposal to increase the contingency fund from $10,000 to $20,000, which is intended as a step towards changing the present situation where an outgoing student administration having any voice in the matter.

Other methods of alleviating the problem were suggested at SAC among them: having ASI elections earlier in the spring, staggering elections throughout the year, and electing to a two-year term with overlapping services. The ASI Bylaw Review Subcommittees are reviewing these regulations and changing them RIGHT NOW. Anyone with workable ideas should run, not walk, to the nearest meeting. That about covers it,

Marianna Doshi

ED NOTE: Friday's Mustang Daily story on the Student Affairs Council meeting did include the contingency fund subject.

Muskie backed by senators

by UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Three western senators today endorsed Sen. Edmund S. Muskie for the Democratic presidential nomination, and one—Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska—said he would take an active part in Muskie's campaign.

Gravel appeared at a news conference with Sens. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont., and Quentin N. Burdick, D-N.D., to announce their endorsements of the Maine Democrat, who was campaigning in the midwest.

Lawyer idea is good test

The retention of a corporate lawyer by the Associated Students, Inc. at this college could be interpreted as an excellent example of the college's unofficial "learn by doing" motto.

ASI Pres. Pete Evans and Vice Pres. Marianne Doshi have wanted to hire such a lawyer for some time, just as a growing number of other state colleges have done. We now have our lawyer and the next six months will show the effectiveness of the move.

Evans and Doshi hope the new lawyer will be able to untangle several of the legal problems that have occurred this year. Judging by the action of the latter part of the Fall Quarter to the present, it certainly couldn't hurt. Student Judiciary has already heard more cases in the past academic month than during the entire 1970-71 academic year.

Included among the areas the new lawyer is expected to advise are campus speaker regulations, consumer fraud, dormitory conditions, tenant problems off-campus and expenditure of student body funds. He will function on behalf of ASI, a non-profit corporation, in its dealings with the college administration and the business world. He will not represent individual students and their problems—an area of legal aid Evans and Doshi are also squarely behind.

The new lawyer has been hired at a figure of $100 a month for four hours of direct consultation or court work and four hours of informal consultation. Student Affairs Council has allocated $500 for the present legal services fund of the business office and $1000 from the ASI contingency fund, leaving $900 to remain as a backup reserve legal fund. Certainly, the price is acceptable.

The corporate lawyer concept is new for this college. It could, as those who have worked out the details hope, come through the initial six months with flying colors. It will be a good test.

legal arrangement would require a change in state law, a very difficult task to perform.

At least three times in the last 15 years a bill has been introduced into the California legislature trying to get these funds back into the school's hands.

The last bill, No. 338, was introduced Feb. 2, 1971, by Assemblyman Ketchum. It provided "for disposition of fines or forfeitures collected from persons who violate, or are charged with the violation of, parking violations applicable to parking on property of University of California and state colleges." It was hoped that the added weight of the university system would give the bill more power.

The bill was changed, though, and it finally read that only 50 per cent of the parking ticket revenue would go to the State College Parking Revenue Fund, not directly to the school. The remaining 50 per cent would return to the county.

The bill was referred to the Committee on Criminal Justice, who passed it onto the Ways and Means Committee—where it died. The reason for its demise may well be two very influential bodies; the County Board of Supervisors Association and the League of California Cities.

These two organizations would block a bill such as this for a familiar reason—they would miss the $40,000 to $60,000 a year, too. (If a college is within city limits, the city receives 79 per cent of the revenue and the county receives 12 per cent.

College costs rising

by JONNIE FUENTES

With the rise in living costs comes a rise in college costs and a pinch on the middle-income pocketbook.

Although this pinch so far has had small impact on the state college campus, financial studies show that next year there will be even greater cause for anxiety.

Middle-income American families who have always lived rather comfortable lives suddenly find themselves in the need category when it comes to financing a college education.

Although the slump in the economy has not fully manifested itself on this campus, there is some indication of the problem and according to Mrs. Mary Eyer, associate director of placement and financial aids, there are measures to counteract it.

"There is indication of higher costs because of our volume of financial aid services," said Mrs. Eyer. "We are assisting the low-income student more and there is also a need to assist the middle-income student."

According to Mrs. Eyer rising college costs have affected the private college more than the state college. "There has only been an estimated 45 per cent increase in costs in a seven year period from 1965 to 1972."

Mrs. Eyer, who has been in the Financial Aids Department for five years, says that this college caters to the more or less middle-income family for various reasons. One of the main ones is that it is a state college.

"In my opinion, the college pinch is not so much the rise in food, especially in this area," said Mrs. Eyer.

When asked what provisions are available to the middle-income families, Mrs. Eyer noted the Federally Insured Student Loan Program.

"The lower-income student is taken care of because of so many funds available to them. The Federally Insured Program, handled through banks, however was especially created to help the middle and high-income student."

Requirements for this loan are minimal: A student must be enrolled and in good standing or has been accepted for enrollment, be carrying at least one-half of the normal full-time workload and be a citizen or national of the United States.

According to Mrs. Eyer there is hope for the middle-income student through various scholarships, loans and grants available through the Financial Aid Services.

Mary Eyer, associate director of placement and financial aids.

cost, but the fact that many middle-income families have lost jobs. The biggest increase for this college would not be registration fees but housing and

College hour— a taste of art

"The World We Have Lost," presented by the School of Communicative Arts and Humanities, will be held during College Hour at 11:15 a.m. on Jan. 20. In the CU Student Council Chambers.

Speakers for the program, the first in a series, are Dr.'s Jon Ericson, Gordon Curzon, Stan Dundon, Dan Drieger, and Bernice Loughran.

"The School of Communicative Arts and Humanities," said Dean Ericson, "seeks to enrich the college experience of each student by helping him understand himself in the society in which he lives.

"The School of Communicative Arts and Humanities offers numerous cultural opportunities to the campus through its regularly scheduled presentations, particularly in art, music, and drama. The Arts and Humanities—1972 Series was planned to augment these opportunities in a form consistent with the objectives of the school," said Ericson.

Other programs which will be presented throughout the school year are: Feb. 3, "Is There a Counter-Culture in the Making?," Feb. 17 "The Crucible;" March 2, "The Message is the Medium;" April 12, "Italian Music from the Frank V. de Bellis Collection;" May 4, "Views of Utopia;" and May 18 "Humanities 2003?"

The programs are open to faculty, students, and the community. Admission is free.

CCAA TONIGHT

Frosh win on late shot

Guard Rick Beaston hit a 15-foot jump shot at the buzzer to give the freshman Colts a 63-61 victory over Cal Poly Pomona in Saturday's preliminary basketball game.

Beaston had 22 points in leading the Colts to their second conference victory against one loss. Dan Montalvo made 12 points while Mark Upstill added 11, as the freshmen hit on 51.8 percent of their shots.

The Colts will host Fresno State Thursday night in a non-conference battle with tipoff at 8:45 p.m.

Brown sets high jump record

High jumper Reynaldo Brown set a new American indoor record of seven feet—four inches at the National Invitational Meet held Friday night at the University of Maryland.

Brown's jump broke the old record of seven feet—three inches set by John Thomas from Boston University, John Rambo from the '49er Track Club in Long Beach, and Pat Matzdorf of Wisconsin.

Matzdorf defeated Brown at the triangular meet held in Berkeley last July, featuring participants from Russia, the United States, and World All-stars, when he set a world outdoor record of seven feet—six and one-fourth inches.

Food stamps

(Continued from page 1) stamps worth $108. This reduced the "bonus" to $9, or a loss of $15 in bonus. Now, under a decision announced Sunday, the same family of four will pay $84 cash for $108 in stamps. This restores the "bonus" to the old $24 level.

The cash required from the family is $2 above the old level—$84 instead of $82. This means, in effect, the family pays cash for the extra stamps involved in raising total benefits $2—from $106 to the new level of $108.

The net effect of the action is to preserve old "bonus" levels for families of four with incomes of $270 a month and up.

A family with $270 monthly income now will pay $74 for $108 worth of stamps instead of $72 for $106—preserving the old "bonus" of $34. The 1971 regulations, revised by Sunday's action, would have required $77 in cash, cutting the bonus to $31.

Matmen get experience

Coach Vaughan Hitchcock's Mustang wrestlers were unsuccessful as a team in Oklahoma over the weekend, but they gained valuable experience in building toward the national championships.

The grapplers were beaten by Oklahoma University on Friday night, 20-12, and were then beaten by Oklahoma State 25-9 on Saturday.

The Mustangs' Larry Morgan (142), Glenn Anderson (150), and Allyn Cooke (158) were the only victors against the fifth-ranked Sooners on Friday night. Morgan defeated Bill Beakley, a national place winner in the University division last year, by a score of 7-1. Anderson defeated Bill Spear 7-2, while Cooke defeated Mike Gilpin 14-1. The only other Poly score came from Frank Lucio (190) who drew with Warren Reid, 1-1.

Gary McBride (118), Anderson, and Cooke were victorious for the Mustangs in Saturday's match with the fourth-ranked Cowpokes. Oklahoma State is the defending University division champion. McBride defeated Ron Thrasher 7-4, while Cooke defeated Alan Albright 4-1. Anderson got a big win in defeating last year's NCAA University division second-place finisher, Jay Arneson, 8-3.

The Mustangs will host the Cal State Fullerton Titans tonight at 7:30 in the Men's Gym. The Titans are making noise according to Hitchcock.

"At this point in the season I judge Fullerton to be our chief opposition for the conference championship," he said.

The Mustangs will probably go with the same lineup they used over the weekend.

- Delicately Scented
- Design won't wash off

We've changed the Esso name to Exxon in San Luis Obispo. But there are some things we didn't want to change:

- Our stations and the fine retailers who serve you
- Exxon products are the same high quality you know under the Esso sign
- The Esso Credit Card is honored at all Exxon stations in San Luis Obispo
