Battles continue despite peace

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Pentagon said Monday the Air Force is continuing its air strikes in Laos despite the cease-fire which took effect in neighboring Vietnam Saturday.

Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim declined to give details of the Jan bombing, but other Defense Department sources said U.S. warplanes conducted between 100 and 120 raids on Sunday. This, they said, was "just about average" for the period before the cease-fire became effective. Most of the attacks, they added, were against Communist movements in northern Laos, while others were in support of Royal Laotian forces in the southern part of the country.

Kenneth Rush, President Nixon's nominee to be undersecretary of state, confirmed the bombing, saying "at the Laotian government, we are using air power and are continuing to use air power" in that area.

Rush, under questioning at confirmation hearings before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said the purpose of the bombing is to maintain "a stable situation" until the Phnom Penh government and Communist (Continued on page 2)

Loan interest is altered

Changes in the Guaranteed Student Loan Program effective March 1, make new provisions for determining student's eligibility for federal interest benefits.

Beginning March 1, students must go through a need analysis if they want the federal government to pay the interest on the loan.

"Need analysis determines whether the student pays the interest on the loan or the government does," said Mary Eyer, associate director of financial aids at this university.

Mrs. Eyer said an advantage of using the current form before the new procedure is instituted is that it won't have to go through the need analysis, "but that will hold true only till March 1, then there is no choice. Beginning March 1, the Health Education and Welfare office in San Francisco will not accept forms without the analysis," she said.

The new method is part of the education amendments of 1972, signed by President Nixon in June. The educational institution is now required to determine eligibility and to indicate to the lender the recommended amount of the loan.

Mrs. Eyer said the deadline for scholarships for the 1972-73 school year is April 1, and the deadline for National Direct Student Loans, Federal Educational Opportunity Grant, and Work-Study Programs is June 1, 1973.

Nixon blasted for budget proposals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's budget is an attempt to tear down the whole structure of "humanitarian government" built by Democratic presidents from Franklin D. Roosevelt to Lyndon B. Johnson, House Speaker Carl Albert said Monday.

Congressional reaction to Nixon's new budget request was mixed but many Democrats and some Republicans expressed concern at the whittling down of social programs.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott called the budget "reasonable," responsible, but tight," and added: "While I find it difficult to be compatible with a number of the cuts in social services programs, it is apparent that we must get hold of willy nilly spending by the Congress."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said he thought the President's call for a tight spending ceiling was "good" but that "I think there will be a difference of opinion as far as priorities are concerned." He called for Congress to set its own.

Albert said, "The President opposes nothing less than the systematic dismantling and destruction of the great social programs and the great precedents of humanitarian government inaugurated by Franklin D. Roosevelt and advanced and enlarged by every Democratic president since."

He called it "a big business budget that leaves the commonman out ... a trickle-down budget ... a vehicle to make the rich richer in the hope that they will let some of their wealth trickle down to the laborers and farmers and workers who are responsible for this nation's wealth in the first place."

Rep. Wilbur Mills (D-Ark.) takes a look at Pres. Nixon's 1974 budget that was sent to Congress Monday.

Need monitors for election

Poll attendants are still needed for the Student Affairs Council representatives election Wednesday.

Students are needed to man polls at the Business Administration and Education building, Engineering building, and the Union. Hours will be from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Anyone interested in being a poll attendant is urged to sign up in the Activities Planning Center.

SAC hopefuls give platforms

A special election will be held Wednesday to fill vacancies created by the resignation of two SAC representatives.

Three students have declared their candidacy for the position representing the Engineering and Technology department and one from Human Development and Education.

The platforms of the students running are as follows: ENGINEERING AND TECHNOLOGY

Brad Bettler: I believe in open-minded and thorough consideration of all issues involving students and student government, regardless of the degree of their apparent significance.

I have been a SAC representative for two quarters previously and I can appreciate the importance of making a fair and equitable decision which will be the most beneficial for the entire student body.

I believe I can most adequately represent my constituents and listen to their opinions and ideas. The need for being available to those students I will represent is a great one and I will make myself available to these students for their valuable input.

Mark Montross: In the past there has been a lack of communications between students and elected SAC representatives as well as an excess of apathy toward student government on campus.

With important past issues as the day care center, a black cheerleading squad, the Gay Students Union, the Baja project, and worst of all, the financial difficulties facing this campus, fewer and fewer students are taking the responsibility in making these important decisions.

To help alleviate this communication problem, I shall make myself available in the activities office to discuss student affairs.

As a concerned student who wishes to create a widespread representation, vote for me. (Continued on page 3)

Student tax aid available now

Free income tax assistance for students, faculty and staff members is available now until the end of the quarter, according to Harold Miller, a business administration instructor and coordinator of the program.

The assistance is part of the county-wide Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) program that is now in its third year. Accounting and business students were specially trained to an Internal Revenue Service representative to handle the program.

The program has been scheduled for each Monday during the quarter from 10 a.m. until noon and each Tuesday from 11 a.m. until 3 p.m. The sessions will be held in Union 218. New hours will be set for the beginning of Spring Quarter.

Undesirable landscaping causes student concern

Editor:

We have built our super-freeways to suit the travel needs of our society and we hopefully have constructed them in such a manner that they will be able to be used for many, many years with minimal upkeep.

I traveled from San Luis Obispo to Sacramento three weeks ago, and I noticed how poorly some of our highway landscaping has been chosen. Countless woody trees and shrubs have been completely killed by frost, and I seriously question the quality of landscape design we, as taxpayers, have paid for. Numerous expanses of ground-cover were also killed.

I saw countless numbers of these shrubs and trees that were completely dead in the counties of Alameda, Contra Costa, Solano and Sacramento along portions of Freeway 680 and Interstate Five. It would be much more economical, sensible and advisable to limit freeway landscape planting to horticultural varieties that will be able to survive "freak" frosts which have been historically documented to occur only once in numerous years.

Many other varieties of shrubs and trees can be utilized that meet all necessary criteria. The expensive evidence of incomplete planning cannot be hidden.

Think of all the uselessly wasted tax revenues spent in the initial designing, the original purchase cost of the shrubs and trees, and all the planting and maintenance costs up to present day. Also, much more money will have to be spent on the obvious cost of constructive redesigning, replanting and plant maintenance.

I ask that you pressure your government representatives to contract landscape design to those who are careful enough to plan and act in consideration with nature.

The information needed is well-documented and widely available, yet the freeway plantings are obvious models of the lack of constructive long-term landscape planning on the part of the landscape architects that were hired for these state projects.

ECOLOGY

Crops for health

Bruce Patrovsky

The greening of San Luis Obispo has arrived. An organic farm has been created at the County Education Facility. You can get there by taking Highway 1 north, and turning right just after the Cuesta College turn-off.

Even though the farm is still in its formative stages, the enthusiasm of the increasing number of weekend volunteers attests to the mounting interest in organic gardening. Each volunteer has the option of preparing his (or her) own plot for March vegetable planting.

According to Gail Morgan, the young organizer of the project, many of the plots have already been turned. Work is progressing well with the composting piles, tool shed, water supply, and geodesic dome (a future shed for goats—organically raised, of course).

The "secret" of organic farming involves the massive application of organic material to the soil. This can be in the form of manure, leaves, wood chip-pings, seaweed, treated sewage sludge, and organic wastes from the kitchen. Organic material is important as a soil conditioner that improves soil fertility, structure, minerals, and water holding properties.

Why is there an increasing interest in organic gardening? Many people are beginning to realize that by depending on artificially-stimulated high yield crops, we are depleting the soil and living on borrowed time. The consequences could be grave indeed for us and our children.

Some farmers are finding that their yields are not increasing as they add more and more chemical fertilizers. The soil may be deficient in the essential trace minerals needed to sustain healthy people.

The renewed interest in organics represents a realization of the importance that soil plays in the integral part of our lives. Most farmers will attest that land is more than just a commodity, and it should not be treated as such. If a good land ethic were developed by our citizens, agricultural mismanagement as well as haphazard, unplanned growth, could be brought under control.

You are invited to get involved with your ecological future. Have a look at the farm this Saturday. You might want to get active in this rewarding endeavor.

Also, there is a new ecology center and library on campus. This is in Union 103, across from the bookstore. Stop by! For more information, call Gail Morgan (544-2469) or John Forster (544-5046).

Buddy of freaks speaks

Editor:

A recent issue of the Mustang Daily carried a column concerning the followers of Jesus, or the notorious "Jesus freaks."

First, I'd like it known that I am not a Jesus freak (or any freak for that matter).

I rely on the Mustang Daily to fill the ten minute time gaps between some of my classes. When I find a quarter of a page taken up with an absurd essay when the space could be more wisely used for a ludicrous article by Kathleen Beasley, I feel partly responsible for letting these essays be published.

"Jesus freaks—noise but not action" by Kevin O'Connor, entertains some fallacious arguments which are so obvious that they are very unlikely to convince, and when completely unsupported by evidence, one finds the argument hard even to consider valid.

Using doubtful evidence such as "...they (Jesus freaks) seem to think of themselves as the Lord's appointed for saving us from whatever it is that we need saving from," Kevin O'Connor concludes that Jesus freaks think of themselves as "world savers."

This is highly unlikely, for after interviewing five known Jesus freaks, I was told right to my face that they do not think of themselves as the "Lord's appointed."

Kevin O'Connor has made a few statements concerning the apathy of the Jesus people. A couple of examples of these are: "...people who promise all and deliver so little," and "...why don't the freaks see what they can do for these (hospitalized) people." The truth is, the Jesus freaks have helped set up and run Christian centers on campus and off, have volunteered for many community needs (especially during the recent flooding), and have certainly not hurt or degraded the campus in any way.

Nearly anyone can write a ridiculous essay charged against something and, if somebody prints it, can raise all sorts of commotion as long as nobody recognizes it for what it is.

If you can't come up with anything better, I personally wouldn't even mind rereading articles from the UPI wire-service. At the very least I can be reasonably sure that some thought has gone into them.

Peace battles...

munist Pathet Lao insurgents come to peace terms.

The cease-fire did not cover Laos or Vietnam's other neighbor, Cambodia, but administration officials have said they hope the fighting will stop in those countries soon as a result of the Vietnam agreement.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said he was disturbed by reports of U.S. bombings in Laos and has asked the State Department for an explanation.

"The Laotians are the most peaceful people in the world," he said, "and I'd like to see the United States stop this as expeditiously as possible."

Students, townspeople deserve praise as well

Editor:

Re: ROTC—unsung heroes in recent flood disaster (Mustang Daily Jan. 23).

Mr. MacKenzie's article implies that the ROTC was the only group responsible for the rescue and property-saving operations in effect during the flood. I wish to dispel this notion from the minds of any unsuspecting reader.

In reality, the operations were only possible because of the help from all concerned: ROTC, townspeople, and concerned students. Filling sandbags is a dirty job at best—yet students, Public Works and townspeople labored side-by-side willingly, to save as much as they could from the devastating waters.

In short, it seems that the ROTC was availing itself of some free publicity at the risk of forgetting all other unsung heroes.

Lion greets ox—4671

by TONY SANTUS

The welcoming of the Year of the Ox—4671 on the Chinese lunar calendar—was observed in the San Luis Obispo Veteran's Memorial Hall Sunday with the traditional lion's dance.

The inauguration of the lion, which is believed to bring good luck to the new year, was one segment of the ceremony including a seven course dinner and talent show.

Semi-amnesty for viet exiles being pondered

Washington (UPI) — Sen. Robert Taft, R-Ohio, is considering re-introducing legislation to provide at least a partial amnesty for those now imprisoned as war objectors or living as exiles in other countries, a spokesman said Monday.

During the presidential campaign, President Nixon took a very hard line, telling an Ohio family whose son had been killed in Vietnam: "Don't worry about that amnesty — never."

"It is time to draw the line on this issue once and for all," Nixon said at another point in the campaign. "There will be no amnesty for draft dodgers and deserters after the war."

But in an interview in January, 1972, Nixon said he would be "very liberal with regard to amnesty."

Taft has attempted to stake out a middle ground on the question. In legislation he offered during the last session of Congress, which never came to a vote, Taft suggested that young men currently imprisoned or in exile should be released or allowed to return if they agreed to serve the United States—either in the military or a form of alternate service — for three years.

But both antiwar and religious leaders with close contacts among the resisters think few of the 800 objectors in federal prisons or the estimated 70,000 in self-imposed exile would accept the Taft proposal.

Billed as a Chinese New Year banquet and show, the campus Chinese Student Association (CSA) sponsored the event for the eighth consecutive year.

According to CSA Pres. Russell Lowe, the local observance attracted the largest audience (360 people) in Central California: from Santa Barbara to San Francisco.

During the lion's dance, a pantomime displaying the prowess of the lion, two decorously fringed lions awed the audience while they rose to twice the height of a man.

Earlier in the dance one lion spewed good luck tangerines into the audience. With the rhythmic beat of cymbals and kettle drums, Young Louis, CSA adviser, brought the lion's head to life by "dotting" the ornate animal's light bulb eyes.

The dinner, served cafeteria-style by 20 CSA waiters, began with spring egg rolls and crispy rice crackers and terminated with almond-flavored gelatin with assorted oriental fruits (such as lychees, Mandarin oranges, and loquats) and fortune cookies.

Breaking from the artistically prepared, traditional dinner (Lowe estimates 80 students spent 25 hours each before the seven-course meal was served) diners chuckled as they read Fat Fong proverbs—from "Girl who is wallflower at dance may be dandelion in the grass." to "A gentleman is one who puts half his weight on elbows"—rather than the usual, time-honored bits

Graduates nab high positions

Two former journalism students from this school have moved into high federal government positions.

Vern F. Highley, 1966 graduate, has been appointed as administrative assistant to the Secretary of Agriculture. Ed Stevin, a 1968 graduate, has been appointed a regional director of the Peace Corps.

of oriental wisdom found in fortune cookies.

In addition to the lion's dance, six contestants vied for the Miss Chinatown, San Luis Obispo title, in a spoof on American beauty contests. Miss Pork Bun (Hubert) Lee was named winner of the tongue-in-cheek pageant and was awarded a pie-in-the-face coronation.

A Chinese martial arts (Kung Fu) demonstration varied from David Dea displaying the "Praying Mantis", in slow motion to emphasize the positions of his fingers and hands, to a comparative sparring match between Dea using the style he formerly demonstrated and Tom Lee employing the "Tiger and Train" style of Kung Fu.

In another pantomime number called the Butterfly Dance, Dea led five Chinese girls who tried to capture the fleeting insect with their scarfs scarves.

FIVE GOLDEN GLOBES

'Godfather' slays 'em

by RICK GOULART

Paramount Pictures' "The Godfather," which has grossed over 100 million dollars in its first year, garnered five Golden Globe Awards, including Best Picture honors, from the Hollywood Foreign Press Assn. at Sunday night's dinner in the Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles.

The film's producer, Al Ruddy, in accepting the Best Picture award, said that films are "the universal voice of what people want" because "the world has been at peace maybe one full day." His director in the film, Francis Ford Coppola, took the Best Director award and the Best Screenplay honor along with Mario Puzo.

Marlon Brando was voted the Best Dramatic Actor of the year for his role in "The Godfather"

Mark Montrose. I believe in fair and honest representation for all.

Sherman Wang: The reason I'm running for office is because I'm interested and already involved with student government. I'll do a good job because of my experience with student government on this campus. I have attended Engineering and Technology Council meetings for the past two years, this year as a representative I have also prozed on SAC

Finance is one of the biggest problems facing SAC. There is simply not enough money to satisfy everyone. I feel that every program on this campus has an educational value in one way or another. But I believe that SAC should look at both the long-range, and immediate effects of their programming. Obviously some programs are more beneficial for the society as a whole as compared to others. I believe in giving an equal educational opportunity for everyone. Education is the main vehicle for social mobility.

HUMAN DEVELOPMENT AND EDUCATION

Mark Zachary: I have decided to run for the SAC representative from Human Development and Education because of my great interest in the efficiency of student government. I desire to become more involved. I represent a good cross-section of my school.

There is a great need for efficient and responsible representation on SAC and I feel I can best fill this need. Availability to input from my constituents is one of my prime concerns. I would make a supreme effort to be available to hear the views of my constituents and best voice these opinions on SAC.

Diana Ross was voted the Most Promising Female Newcomer for her portrayal of Billie Holiday in "Lady Sings the Blues." She thanked the Hollywood Foreign Press saying it was "good to be something." The song "Ben" was voted the Best Original Song of the year and was sung by Michael Jackson of the Jackson Five, who made the song a popular hit.

Other winners of the evening

Top play gives ruggers a win

Playing their best team game of the Rugby season, the San Luis Obispo Rugby Club Groggs trounced the Eagle Rock Athletic Club of Glendale 36-12, in a Southern California Rugby Union contest.

Eagle Rock, under coached by John Curry drew first blood in their home field to lead 4-0 under sunny Southern California skies when Pano De Valle, playing eighth man for the club picked up the ball from a loose scrum and scrambled four yards for the try. Wally Shaw's extra point kick failed.

The Groggs tied the match up on their ensuing kick-off with the entire scrum falling on the ball in the end-zone.

From that point on, the first half of the game belonged to San Luis Obispo. They scored four more times to lead at the intermission, 22-4.

The second Groggs score came by way of some fancy passing and running by Steve Anderson, David "Ratman" Ritchie, and Al Cuelo. Anderson took the ball from a loose ruck and broke down the inside of the field. Just before he got hit, he passed the ball inside to player-coach Ritchie who advanced the ball to the 25 yard line and then passed outside to Cuelo who went in untouched. Shayne Wallace's kick was wide to the left. The score was then 24-4.

Ritchie and Anderson teamed up for the Groggs' third score, with Anderson getting the four points after a spectacular pop kick that went untouched except by Anderson.

Eight-man Tom Dimmit, a former UC Santa Barbara Rugby star, picked up the next two scores, the first from a loose ruck on the five yard line to put the Groggs ahead 16-4, and the second just moments later out of a tight scrum on Eagle Rock's five yard line. Jon Pedotti kicked the extra point for the 22-4 half-time bulge.

Eagle Rock started out the second half like they did the first half, and for about 30 minutes controlled the tempo of the game.

San Luis Obispo, however, put four more points on their score before the Rock caught fire. Larry "Rufus" Nolan fell on the ball after getting the ball out of a tight scrum on the five yard mark.

Bill Miller powered over the goal without help from his teammates on a five yard penalty run to close the gap 26-8.

Chris Carroll picked up the Rock's third and final score with just ten minutes remaining in the match to trail 26-12.

A perfectly executed line-out and "second man around" netted the Groggs another score from the five. Dimmit leaped high in the air to pull the ball down, and as he did, Vic Ecklund circled out of the line-out, took the ball from Dimmit and powered over the goal.

Ron Underwood, playing out center, streaked 55 yards down the middle of the field, untouched for the final try of the game. Pedotti added the extra point to finish the scoring, 36-12.

The win put the Groggs in first place in the SCRUG race and gave them a 2-1 win-loss mark.

Saturday, Feb. 3, the Groggs will be at home to face powerful St. Mary's College in a non-league contest at 1 p.m.

D. LAMBERT INJURED

Netters smash UCSB

Coach Ed Jorgensen's tennis squad jumped to good start when the netters posted a 6-3 decision over UC Santa Barbara last Saturday on the Gauchos' court.

Jorgensen said he was pleased with the team's performance in that each year's match with the Gauchos is mostly indicative of what kind of year the Mustangs are going to have. If the Mustangs do have a good year, they will have defeated a number of top university class teams, including Stanford, UC Berkeley, San Jose State, Brigham Young University, and the University of Utah.

Things did not start brightly for the Mustangs when top-ranked netter Dan Lambert had to forfeit to Gaucho Ed Schrader due to a sprained ankle suffered in the third set. At the time, the match was even as Schrader won the first set, 6-2, and Lambert, the second, 7-6. The final set was tied at four apiece when it ended.

The Mustangs' Dennis Scullion evened matters up with win over Kevin O'Neill in two sets, 6-3, 6-4.

Lambert's brother Pete, fell to UCSB's Lance Miller in three sets, 6-1, 3-6, 2-6. Lambert attended this university and transferred to the Naval Academy before returning once more here. Surprise winner of the match was freshman Dan Thompson over Santa Barbara's Danny Broerama in two sets, 6-2, 6-4. Thompson has just one arm but has proved to be as tough as anyone else he goes against.

Other Mustang winners were Harald Bertelt and Jim Martin. The netters swept the doubles matches as Thompson and Pete Lambert combined efforts. Scullion and Bertelt, and Laduca and Martin also won their doubles matches.

Although the next match for the netters is not until late next week, there is a possibility of a match this Sunday featuring an alumni team and the Mustangs. No definite plans have been made as of yet.

Judo club set

The first judo club meeting that was canceled last Thursday due to the national day of mourning has been rescheduled for tonight.
