

News & Events

University News & Information

California Polytechnic State University, San Luis Obispo, California

Students, Community Remember Martin Luther King, Jr.

mlk crowd photo

Some 100 students, faculty and staff joined the 2004 Martin Luther King Jr. march on the Cal Poly Campus Thursday (Jan. 15).

After hearing remarks from noted author, historian and civil rights activist Roger Wilkins in the University Union, the crowd gathered and marched through campus to Dexter Lawn, observing a moment of silence before sharing thoughts about King.

Classes will not be in session Monday (Jan. 20) and university offices will be closed in honor of the Martin Luther King Jr. Day Holiday. But Cal Poly's Student Community Services office has a full schedule of activities planned for "We're In This Together" Week next week.

Click Here to find out more about WITT Week activities.

Scroll down to view more photos from the 2004 MLK March
Click on the photos below to view larger versions.

silence photo

mlk march small

At left, students observe a moment of silence on Dexter Lawn. Above, students, faculty, staff and visitors march from the University Union toward Dexter.