Kennedy refutes GSU speculation

Editor's Note: Mustang Daily still stands firm on its story on the favorable GSU decision, although the release date may now be postponed.

The Mustang Daily story saying that I have approved the Gay Students Union bylaws and will make such approval known Friday of this week is without foundation.

It must have been an April Fool's Day hoax perpetrated on the Mustang by the individual identified as a "source within the ASI." I have not taken action on the request to give institutional approval to the organization of gay students.

I have been busy on matters I consider more important to the university. When I have had the time to study this issue as thoroughly as it deserves, I will make a decision and take appropriate action, including public announcement of my reasons.

The matter is on my desk. It is my responsibility to consider it carefully before making a decision. I cannot and I will not estimate on what date the decision will be made. The issue was important enough that the administration of the university fought two court cases brought by the ASI and won both of them. I don't intend to be hurried into precipitous action by pressure from anyone.

-Pres. Robert E. Kennedy

New committee will hear pleas from students

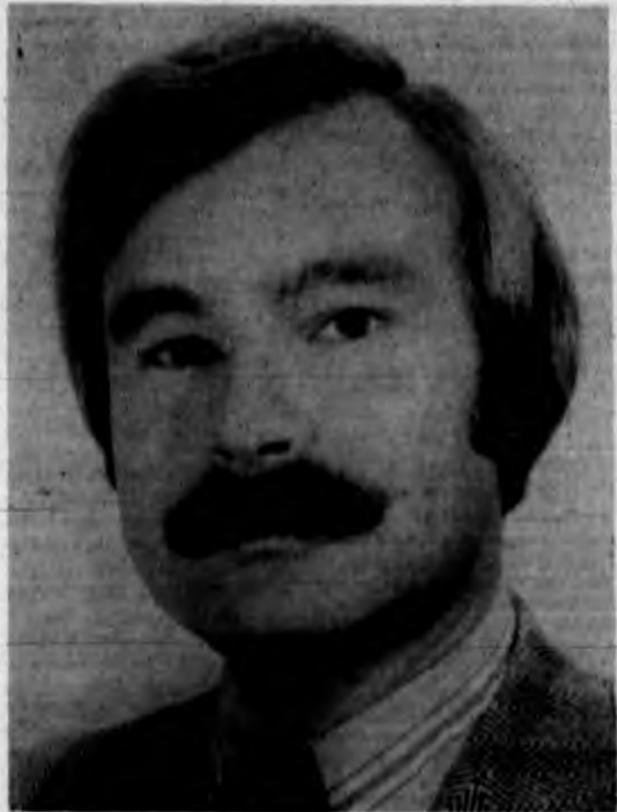

The Student Disciplinary Review Committee, which has been set up for students to have a say in disciplinary actions of students at Cal Poly, has been approved by President Kennedy.

The Disciplinary Review Committee is now in the process of getting its membership together. The students on the committee will be: the ASI Chief of Justice, SAC appointee, five appointed students at large, representatives of Interhall Council and the Dean of Students or the university President's appointee.

These people will hear all evidence in the case of the accused student and then vote. After the vote the committee will make out a majority report, and a minority report, if necessary, and send it to President Kennedy.

Previously, disciplinary action was handled by the university administration and students did not have a say in the matter. Now students under disciplinary action will be able to present their case to the university administration and the students.

The committee will meet within two days after receiving a disciplinary report on a student from President Kennedy. The privacy of the accused student will not be violated by the committee.

Steven Riddell

Alumni coordinator appointed Thursday

The Public Affairs Office announced Thursday the appointment of the new Cal Poly Coordinator of Alumni Services. Pres. Kennedy is expected to make the announcement in the Cal Poly Today alumni magazine for Poly Royal, according to Lachlan MacDonald, director of public affairs.

Steven G. Riddell, a 1969 Cal Poly graduate in journalism, will be responsible for coordinating the overall development and maintenance of programs and activities for all former students, including the Cal Poly Alumni Association. He will assume the post on April 21.

Riddell served as editor-in-chief of the Mustang Daily during 1967-68 besides working as a part-time reporter for the Telegram-Tribune. He is currently working for KFBK FM in Sacramento in promotions, sales and in news. He has worked there for two years.

After graduation in 1969, Riddell was an assistant news director and sports director for KATY AM FM in San Luis Obispo. He then served as director of public relations of Set-Ro, a development organization in Sacramento.

During his service in the Army from June 1970 to Feb. 1972, Riddell was a liaison officer for the commanding general at Ft. Sill, Okla. and a post publications officer at Ft. Ord, Calif.

News briefs

from UPI

The recession will bottom out by late summer and consumers and businessmen will escape a second straight year of double-digit inflation," President Ford predicted Thursday.

The recession, the worst since the 1930's, "will turn around during the third quarter July-September of this calendar year," Ford told a news conference.

The personal secretary to Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., said Wednesday Mills did not plan to resign from Congress.

Mrs. Janice Ireland told the Arkansas Gazette that Mill seemed surprised his resignation still was rumored. She said he indicated he was not even considering quitting.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon predicted Thursday the unemployment rate will reach 9 per cent this year but said recovery from the recession is coming on strong and fast.

His outlook contrasting with the heavy official gloom of two months ago, Simon said: "We are more certain about the recovery than we were any time in the past."

President Ford today ordered all available U. S. Naval ships to stand off Indochina to do everything to assist refugees in the "great human tragedy" in progress there.

He also ordered giant C5 transports to fly to Saigon to pick up 2,000 South Vietnamese orphans and children already adopted by American families.

Santana sold out

Tickets for Saturday night's Santana concert sold out Thursday at 10 a.m., said Randy Donant, program counselor.

Over 3400 tickets were sold since they went on sale two weeks ago. There is a possibility an additional 100 tickets will be available at 10 a.m. Friday in the University Union ticket office.

SAC motion stands

After a long-winded and often heated debate, the Student Affairs Council narrowly defeated a motion to expunge from official records a previous decision by SAC to halt political endorsements in the Mustang Daily.

Mike Murdy, of the School of Communicative Arts and Humanities introduced the motion to expunge SAC's Feb. 12 decision to halt endorsements.

He said the legal opinion delivered by the Chancellor's Office, which claimed Mustang Daily does have the right to endorse candidates in signed columns and letters to the editor, made it imperative that SAC erase its decision from the records.

He pointed specifically to a portion of the motion which stated the paper should halt endorsements "in light of the violations committed by the Mustang Daily of Title V."

Murdy argued that this should be expunged from the records because, in light of the Chancellor's decision, the paper did not violate Title V. Murdy said SAC owed it to Mustang Daily to expunge the motion.

But Murdy's motion failed by a 8-7 vote with five members abstaining.

John Ronca, of the School of Business and Social Sciences, led the fight against expungement of the motion he authored.

"I'm totally against the motion to expunge," he said, "a 23-1 vote by this body, knowing full well what they were doing, is enough to let it stand on the records."

The significance of not expunging the motion is minimal, according to SAC parliamentarian Roland Yates.

The specific action called for by the Ronca motion—for Marji Nieuwsma to issue a memorandum to the paper's staff ordering it to halt endorsements—already had been carried out, Yates said.

Expungement would have served only to cleanse the records of a decision which did not concur with legal opinion of the Chancellor's Office, Yates added.

Blood drive

There will be a blood drive for the benefit of Cal Poly students, faculty, staff and dependents April 10.

Two Poly athletic associations, Block "P" and CAPHER are sponsoring the blood drive which will be held in Chumash Auditorium between 8:45 a.m. and 2:15 p.m. For further information contact Dick McMath in Rm. 104 in the men's gym or at 546-2754.

Talcott raps tax bill

Congress is mortgaging the future of today's college student, Congressman Bart Talcott told a political science class here Wednesday night.

In a question-answer session in Melvin de la Motte's American Government class, the Congressman from the District 16 (which includes San Luis Obispo) described the recent $22 billion tax cut measure as a "welfare bill."

Talcott, a Republican serving his seventh term in Congress, told the class the ultimate cost of the bill would be $90 billion. According to Talcott, the interest and inflation on the bill would be paid, not by the generation who voted in the bill, but by the children of these people.

The Republican returned to the theme and said, "It's bad now and it's extraordinarily bad for the future." The congressman then received laughter from isolated members of the class when he said:

"Young people ought to be standing up and rebelling about what Congress is doing to your future. The Congress is mortgaging away your future."

One of four regional Whips for the Republican Party, Talcott added, "I wish Congress would have to be around to pay back the debt."

He told the students, "You can't have a $100 billion deficit and then give money back." Talcott said the burden now would fall on the middle-class American.

He claimed the money that will be given back to Americans in the next few months would not go to the majority of people who pay most of the taxes—the middle class.

Talcott feels the money given to people on Social Security (an immediate check of $50) will be spent in a way that will not spur the economy. The congressman who voted "no" on the final package, said he supported the part of the bill, which called for an immediate halt of the oil depletion allowance for large oil companies and a gradual reduction for the smaller ones.

President Ford signed the tax bill Saturday.

On two occasions he criticized the Telegram Tribune; he once accused the newspaper of partly distorting the public's perception of his voting record.

The other time the congressman mentioned the newspaper was when a woman in the class referred to a recent article in the Telegram Tribune. Talcott interrupted the woman and said:

"If you believe everything you read in the 'T'nT'—then you're in for a surprise."

Questioned about further aid to South Viet Nam, Talcott said he does not favor any more military aid to that country but added he would vote for what he called "humanitarian aid."

Talcott, who is on an Easter recess from Washington, spent part of the evening outlining the questions a Congressman must ask himself before voting on a foreign aid bill.

He and the students talked about whether the United States should give aid to communist countries and what kind of aid should be given.

The discussion of foreign aid eventually led to the topic of the Central Intelligence Agency and recent allegations about its secrecy in its operations and the value of the CIA operations were questioned by many students. Talcott admitted the agency was not perfect, but defended its secrecy.

Asked if secrecy should extend to the point where Americans know how much the CIA is spending each year, Talcott responded, "Do we tell them (the enemy) how much we're spending against them?"

One student wanted to know how a correction of the budget was going to take place if the people do not know how their tax dollars are spent.

Talcott replied certain members of Congress do know the actual budget figures and the CIA's money is distributed throughout the budget costumed behind miscellaneous items.

He also said his voting record has not changed since he was named as one of the members of the "Dirty Dozen"—a list by one environmental group of, in its opinion, the 12 Congressmen with the worst record on environmental votes.

He hinted of some political scheme behind the group and told the class, "I'll match my credentials against anybody in this class or outside of it."

Riddell appointed as coordinator

As a student at Cal Poly, Riddell received the Outstanding Journalism Award for editorial work in 1968. He also received two Reader Digest D.C. officials in 1968 and 1969.

Riddell was one of 80 candidates who applied for the position. Applications for the job were accepted in June 1974, but the deadline was extended from July 1 to Dec. 15, MacDonald said that most of the candidates were graduates of Cal Poly.

"It is my understanding that Kennedy has talked with Riddell and Riddell has accepted," Van Harrevel said.

As the new coordinator of alumni affairs, Riddell will start off in the salary range of $15,000 to $18,004.

"Riddell is an outstanding individual," MacDonald said. "We are very fortunate as an institution to have so many alumni in this area (communications)," he said.

Riddell is married and has a son.

Mounts to take health position

Dr. Billy Mounts, director of health services at Cal Poly, will begin a one-year term as president of the San Luis Obispo County Medical Society on Jan. 1, 1976.

The society is a democratic organization of physicians whose main goals are "to promote the art and science of medicine and to protect the public health," Dr. Mounts said.

The society also joins with the California Medical Association (CMA) and the American Medical Association (AMA) in workshops to keep members informed of changes in all areas of health care, Dr. Mounts explained.

A graduate of Georgetown University, Dr. Mounts has been a member of the society since 1952. He has served two terms as secretary and is presently active as program director for the Membership and Program Committee of the society.

Dr. Mounts was recently appointed an alternate delegate to the C.M.A.

As director of health services, Dr. Mounts is coordinator of activities for the 14 nurses and the 41 doctors and technicians at the center. He also administers health care to patients at the center.

As Dr. Mounts has been an active member of the society since 1952, he does not think his term as president should interfere with his job at the Health Center in any way.

During his years in the society, Dr. Mounts has seen progress in areas of health care quality and the continued education of the members. As president he plans to keep up with this progress in ways most profitable to the patients, he said.

"There is a changing face of medicine," Dr. Mounts said. "I plan to keep abreast of those changes and communicate them to my colleagues," he added.

Starr Jenkins

Jefferson portrayed as a literary artist

Thomas Jefferson was a literary artist—but his other talents overshadowed this fact.

Dr. Starr Jenkins presented this view Thursday in a lecture sponsored by the School of Communicative Arts and Humanities.

A member of the English faculty, Jenkins spoke about "The Quotable Mr. Jefferson." According to Jenkins, Jefferson was a contributor to many fields, including architecture, agriculture, philosophy and political theory.

Jenkins said most Americans only identify Jefferson's literary talents with the Declaration of Independence. This would be a mistake. Dr. Jenkins described the list of grievances to English King George III as a "work of literary art."

The third President of the United States wrote over 50 volumes and 2 books on assorted subjects. Jenkins said he never wrote poems or plays. This is the probable reason Jefferson never attained the literary credit due him.

Although Jefferson was a slaveholder, he saw the future of the "peculiar institution" as very short. He had originally included the problem of slavery in the Declaration of Independence, but a committee which included Benjamin Franklin and John Adams revised certain portions of the document and deleted the part pertaining to slaves.

However, Jefferson's commitment to end the institution of slavery was sincere, according to Jenkins. To prove this, Jenkins quoted from the famous Virginian:

"Yet the day is not distant when it (the public) must bear and adopt it (emancipation), or worse will follow. Nothing is more certainly written in the books of fate than that these people are to be free."

Movie review

'Alice' lives with Burstyn at Obispo

by CONNIE PITTS

Take a recently widowed 55-year-old woman, an obnoxious 11-year-old, a romantic rancher, a hard core waitress; and you've got a realistic, touching movie called Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore, now showing at the Obispo Theatre.

Ellen Burstyn (acknowledged for her performance in last year's The Exorcist) plays Alice, the heroine whose husband dies, leaving her with a precocious young son and her dreams of becoming a singer.

Alice and her son pack up and head for Monterey, stopping over in various Arizona towns on the way. They end up in Tucson, where Alice finds a job, not singing, but slinging hash in a road cafe.

Of course, the story has a hero (Kris Kristofferson), a rancher, who meets Alice in the cafe and bridges the lonely gap in her life. They have their difficulties (not helped by the son Tommy), but true love wins out in the end and Alice discovers life is much better than she thought possible.

Ms. Burstyn has a knack for being really human. You cry with her, you laugh with her, and you even get angry with her. She is excellent as a frustrated woman and mother, who eventually comes to terms with her ideals.

Another well-acted performance was by Diane Ladd. Ms. Ladd is convincing as the hard-as-nails waitress, who has a soft heart and a sharp tongue.

The film is very human and enjoyable though, at times, the dialogue is difficult to follow and understand. Also, parts were draggy, even though the movie was average in length (90 minutes). But, the important point is the movie's quality for being truthful and showing life in its sad, happy, and funny moments.

Riverside hosts Mustangs

The Mustang baseball team begins its quest today at U.C. Riverside for its first league title under coach Berdy Harr, but the third-year coach isn't that optimistic.

Although his squad has an impressive 18-7-1 pre-season record and was recently ranked fourth in the College Division, Harr simply replied, "No," when asked if he predicted a championship for the Mustangs this year.

"The league is going to be tough and right now any team is capable of capturing the crown. It's a small, well balanced league and anything can happen," explained Harr.

The California Collegiate Athletic Association has been reduced to only five baseball members with the promotion of Cal State Fullerton to Division I competition.

The league competition is beginning a month later this year, and Harr views this with caution.

"The later starting date changes the complexion of the league. Previously during the first two weeks coaches were still experimenting with lineups. This year they will be entering league play with set lineups. The outcomes should indicate the better team.

Harr is confident his team is ready. In compiling their record

Racket squad serves bid for championship

The Cal Poly tennis team has a long break before they return to conference play in ten days and Coach Ed Jorgenson is pleased about that.

The Mustangs were defeated Tuesday afternoon by UC Santa Barbara 6-3 to bring their current season record to 7-4.

The men, unable to duplicate last year's 24-1 record, begin defense of their conference crown April 10th when they begin California Collegiate Athletic Association play at Cal State Northridge.

Conference play in tennis is different than any other sport in that they play three round robins covering three weekends in April and May. The champion is determined by who wins the most matches at the conclusion of the round robins.

There are five teams in the conference, with the Mustangs seeded as the team to beat.

Jorgenson feels this year's team will have to work extremely hard to prevail again as conference champion.

"The California schools play better tennis than any other schools in the nation. Northridge and Cal State Los Angeles both finished in the top ten at the playoffs last year. We finished second in the nation last year behind UC Irvine. It should be a very rough conference and right now CSLA and Northridge should be our best competition," said Jorgenson.

"The weather and more courts to play on are just some of the reasons that the California schools always come out on top. While we are playing tennis the Eastern schools are playing hockey or something like that."

Cal Poly is led by returning star Pete Lambert along with Jim Martin and Rudy Van Solinge to name the top three ranking players for the Mustangs.

to date, they have played a cross section of talent from Westmont College to the U.S.C. Trojans.

As a team the Mustangs have a solid .274 batting average combined with an equally impressive 2.24 team earned run average. The pitching credentials are assisted by a .964 fielding percentage.

Leading the Mustangs at the plate are Ted Bailey, .507, and Dave Fowler, .502. Bailey, a junior, also leads the squad in home runs with five and RBI's with 19.

Coed track opens league

Led by All-American Janet Benford, the Cal Poly women's track team will open its league season on Saturday at San Diego State University. Competition gets under way at 11:30 a.m.

Benford, one of four returnees from last season, placed third in the 100-meter hurdles in the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women national meet last June.

"I expect her to again qualify for the nationals and be a solid

Cindermen tangle

The Mustang trackmen will oppose the defending conference champions Cal State Northridge here this Saturday at 2 p.m.

"This will be the best College Division dual meet in the country," said coach Steve Simmons.

Northridge won its first California College Athletic Association track and field championship in 1974, and finished fourth in the NCAA Division II meet a half point behind Cal Poly.

Harr plans to use two sophomores and a junior as his primary starters in league. Mustang ace Bruce Freeburg (5-1, 1.69 ERA) is scheduled for the Friday games while junior Sam Solis (2-1, 1.17 ERA) and lefthander Gorman Heimuelter (4-1, 5.70) are slated for the Saturday doubleheader.

Freeburg with five wins already, is ahead of the pace that saw Rick Simpson post a record tying 10 wins last season. Freeburg should get six more scorer for us in meets this season," commented Coach Evelyn Pellaton.

"It's a little early to predict how we'll do in San Diego. We have had only one practice meet thus far. But I have great expectations for the team." Against Nevada-Las Vegas in February the Cal Poly women scored a 70-22 dual meet victory.

Other veterans on the Cal Poly team are Karen Johnson, who set a new school record of 106-0 in the starts this season and could become the first Mustang hurler to notch 11 wins. Southpaw Dennis Root won 10 games in 1972 and Mike Krukow equaled the feat the following year.

Although he refused to predict a title, the Mustang mentor does believe his team has the inherent ability to capture their first championship under his guidance.

"Our strengths are our pitching and defense and these usually are the strengths of championship teams," says Harr.

discus at Las Vegas, sprinters Colleen Benedict and Jan Hartford.

The relay events, 440, mile and 880 medley, figure to be "outstanding events" for Cal Poly this season, Pellaton asserts.

Benford, who has 11.6 speed in the 100, will anchor the 440 relay team. Benedict who posted a new school long jump record of 15-10 at Las Vegas, will leadoff the sprint relay. Junior Rosie Ackerman will be the replacement for the injured Harford and running No. 2 while freshman Leslie Johnson has been tabbed for the No. 3 leg.

Netters finale

Ken Preston's volleyball team has a chance of clinching a tie in the California Collegiate Volleyball Association in its final home match tonight.

The Mustangs, riding a 12 game winning streak, host UC Riverside in the Men's Gym at 8 p.m.

The Highlanders, 6-4 in league play, have the tough task of containing the sizzling Mustangs who own a 15-1 league record and 25-5-5 overall mark.

The Mustangs defeated the Highlanders in three sets earlier in the year, but Preston isn't conceding anything.

"They have improved quite a bit since we faced them in Riverside and they have a couple of 'green' players brought up from the basketball team since we've seen them last."

Preston plans to start his set lineup of Jeff Blanchard, Nat Kaime, Tom McMahon, Tom Worth, Rich Giacopuzzi and Chip Weesburg for the finale.

The Mustangs lead Cal State Northridge (12-1) by one match in the tight CCVA race going into tonight's final clash.
