Cal Poly Announces Four Scholarship Winners

SAN LUIS OBISPO -- Cal Poly has announced four scholarship recipients, honored for academic achievement and commitment to others.

Cecelia Crippen, a business administration major from San Jose, was awarded the James M. Duenow Scholarship, which recognizes a student who has demonstrated a commitment to the rights of women, preferably an individual considering a career as a feminist attorney.

Electrical engineering major Carissa Clark won the Robert S. Harmon Scholarship, designed to recognize a student who has demonstrated a commitment to the rights of women, preferably an individual considering a career as an investigative reporter. Clark is a resident of Dublin.

Chandani Patel, a business administration major from San Jose, was awarded the L. Diane Ryan Scholarship in recognition of her commitment to the rights of women. The award is specifically intended for a student who has been identified by a Cal Poly faculty or staff member as having the potential to provide moral leadership in the work force of the future.

Jobie Brigham, a psychology student from Arroyo Grande, was given the Nell E. Spradlin Scholarship in recognition of individuality. The award is given to a College of Liberal Arts major who has demonstrated individuality, specifically a student who has been identified by a faculty or staff member as having exceptional outlook, insight and spirit.

"The nominees comprised a deeply impressive group this year and the nominations were a tribute to the impressive levels of scholarly achievement and commitment to others embodied by so many Cal Poly students," according to Mary Armstrong, director of the university's Women's Studies Program.
