11-year old president?

SAN JOSE (AP)—Eleven-year-old Tony West and California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. have at least one big thing in common—they both want to be president of the United States.

West, who now holds the office of student body president at Laurelwood Elementary School here, has discussed the nation's top post and how to get there with the governor, who made an unsuccessful drive for the Democratic nomination in the last election.

"What kind of advice do you have for a sixth-grader who wants to be president," the youngster asked Brown during a recent interview in Sacramento.

"I wouldn't worry about planning too far ahead," Brown replied.

But Tony says, "I've wanted to be president since the fourth grade and I like the idea better and better."

West asked the governor who tells him what to do.

"Everybody," Brown replied.

"It doesn't mean that I always listen," He told West that the governor's job is not that different from any other job and said he had not yet found it so hard that he wished he were doing something else.

West got his start in presidential politics from one of his hobbies—listening to inaugural addresses, recording them himself and memorizing important parts.

He says there are three important things necessary to a successful presidential campaign: "Shake a lot of hands, get to know the people and make good speeches."

Filling lake is 'waste of water'

SACRAMENTO (AP)—The filling of a 125-acre recreational lake in Southern California is a waste of water and must be stopped, the state Water Resources Control Board ruled Wednesday.

The board voted 4-1 to order Mission Viejo Co. to halt water flow into the manmade Orange County lake, saying the case could be referred to the attorney general for court action if the company failed to comply.

Mission Viejo President Philip Reilly refused to say after the decision if the company intended to shut off water to the lake, which is now about three-fourths filled.

"The statement that I would make to you now is the same statement in the press release issued earlier: we have no comment on any action pending before a government body," he said.

When reporters protested that the matter was no longer before the board, a Mission Viejo attorney, Paul Engstrand, said that the case could still be taken to court by the state.

"We will have to review it," he said of the order.

Filling of the lake had drawn sharp criticism from Northern Californians because some State Project water from the drought-stricken north was being used to fill the lake.

However, project water being shipped to the Southern California Metropolitan Water District, Mission Viejo's indirect supplier, was shut off earlier this week.

But the board said that curtailing water flow to the lake would stretch the ability of MWD to meet its needs with Colorado River water.

"Prudent water management planning requires taking all reasonable steps now to minimize adverse impacts should the present drought extend into next year or beyond," the board's order added.

Mayor hopefuls: one last look

by WENDY J. HILL
Daily Staff Writer

Well-concealed behind the red, white and blue curtain of the voting booth, voters will be selecting a new mayor for San Luis Obispo, Tuesday.

There are three mayoral candidates this year, and the following is a brief look at their backgrounds, qualifications and stands on campaign issues.

Incumbent Schwartz, 51, a city resident since 1964, has served as mayor for eight years. He now serves as Director of Curricula and Advising for the School of Architecture and Environmental Design. He served on the City Planning Commission for eight years.

His planning commission and community work has included preparation of subdivision, zoning and planned development ordinances, involvement in the Downtown Street Tree Committee, Economic Development Committee, the Sign Ordinance Committee and the his well-rounded outlook.

Some of Gurnee's accomplishments while in the office include initiating the bike path program, the bus route program fighting community action against rock concerts, (specifically against the 500-people limit at public gatherings.) He fought for better environmental regulations and initiated a proposal for a liaison panel between the City, County and the university two years ago.

The Councilman is greatly concerned with Cal Poly expansion and its impact on the entire community. He is aware of poor housing conditions imposed upon the student population. He also is aware of the pressure for more housing, and the conflict between meeting this need and maintaining the city growth ceiling.

Gurnee is quick to point out that the incumbent has given a yes vote for all but one city sub-division permits brought before the council in the past six years.

"I saw I could inject a new viewpoint. I'm not an environmentalist, tipping the scales of judgement towards that end of the spectrum. I'm not a contractor, always for building. An isolated group winning on either side doesn't benefit the whole. I think economics and the economy can work together. I'm a realist," she concluded.

Swanson sees the working class as the group suffering the most in the community. They, she said, are the ones who go to work, go home, have little chance for political involvement and get no representation. This is the vote she is seeking.

"I'm the middle-of-the-roader," Swanson joked, "I feel a lot of people are neglected outside the big organizations."

"I'm new, unpolished. Those other two are silver-tongued devils," she claims.

Swanson supports the need for improved drainage and sewer systems and housing conditions. Foremost, she feels government should begin listening to all the people as a whole.

The mayoral race handicap:

One incumbent, one city councilman and one rookie vie for the top slot in San Luis Obispo government.

Cities Committee for the Mission Plaza.

Schwartz has hung back on heavy campaigning this year, because "the voters don't really start considering candidates until the week before the election, anyway," he said.

The mayor offers his years behind the office and his demonstrated continuity of procedure and policy-making as his best reason for re-election.

Specific issues Schwartz has addressed himself to are the need for a clearly established policy regarding the creeks and floodways.

The mayor voted against the Los Verdes housing project, for instance, which is to be located right on a flood plane, and will require major rerouting of San Luis Obispo Creek.

He wants to see a resolution of the differences between the city and county governments, blaming, in the councilman and opponent Keith Gurnee for straining relations with the county supervisors by his "attack" in 1975 over a county land purchase.

The mayor strongly feels the county administration and courts facilities should remain downtown.

He envisions a central business district integrating retail, governmental and cultural centers in an effective circulation plan, which emphasizes pedestrian instead of automobile traffic downtown.

Keith Gurnee Councilman Gurnee, 30, moved to San Luis Obispo in 1968 from Palo Alto to attend Cal Poly. He graduated from Cal Poly with a degree in city and regional planning in 1974.

Gurnee has sat on the city council for six years. At 24, he was the youngest elected city official in San Luis Obispo history. Having experience on the council and a student lifestyle, Gurnee sees himself a good choice for the position with "Everyone is affected by the explosive growth of Cal Poly. If a landlord can get four and five tenants to pay the rent, specifically students, what happens to the senior citizen? They can't make the inflated payments," he contends. He says he will work to get a handle on the high cost of rents.

Gurnee also sees Schwartz as being too entrenched with the university administration to be aware of student problems.

He says that after serving five terms as mayor, there comes a time when there's a need for youthful energy in an office. Gurnee sees himself as that energy, and he is trying to get the students to realize that local government is the level of government affecting them the most.

Marie Swanson

Swanson, 22, graduated from Cal Poly with an English degree in 1975.

During her time here, she was politically involved with two student action groups. The Student Tenants Association, which worked for dorm reform involving more lax regulations for visitation hours and co-ed housing. She was also a Week of Welcome counselor.

Swanson currently works for the community organization Hotline a few hours a week.

Other than that, the six-year city resident has little background in government. Swanson sees it as being to her advantage.

"Since I'm not a politician, I have no particular interest group backing me," she explained.

"Each of us is always in front of himself. We are always planning and we project ourselves into the plan."—Jean-Paul Sartre

It is, obviously, the weekend again. Why don't you tell me what you're going to do for a change? You're still planning? Then project yourself into some of these plans:

MILK CARTON BOAT RACE: Cal Poly student clubs will try their luck at boat racing on Laguna Lake, Saturday at 10 a.m. The absurd thing about this race is that the boats are made of half gallon milk cartons. Did you know that it takes 10 half-gallon milk cartons to hold up one person? I didn't either, but it should be amusing to see how the students make out.

SKI CONDITIONS: At China Peak there is no new snow but the general ski conditions are good. They have 10 to 30 inches of packed powder. The base conditions are fair with tracks at the bare spots. The weather is clear. At Mammoth there is no new snow. They are operating daily with packed powder. Base condition is good with no obstacles and general ski conditions are excellent. The weather is both clear and cloudy.

THEATRE: ASI Films Committee presents "The Great American Cowboy" and "Visions of Eight" on Friday night. "Visions of Eight" plays at 7 p.m. and 10:45 p.m. and "The Great American Cowboy" plays at 9 p.m. The Fremont Theatre is showing "A Star is Born" and the Madonna Theatre presents "Silver Streak" and "Gator." The Pismo Theatre is playing "Navy Blue Marine" and "White Line Fever."

DiTullio to perform

uncles, Adolph, a violinist and Justin, another cellist. After six years at the Philharmonic Louise resigned.

Outside of her studio work DiTullio finds artistic rewards as first flutist with the California Chamber Symphony, as a member of the Los Angeles Wind Quintet and by frequently performing for the Monday Evening Concerts series from the Los Angeles County Museum. She also appears in recitals with guitarist Laurindo Almeida and his wife, soprano Delta Eamon.

In the concert at Cal Poly, DiTullio will be featured in the DuBois flute and chamber orchestra concerto. She recently recorded this work with the English Chamber Orchestra on the Crystal Label. That recording will be sold at a discount for students and concert goes at the door and at El Corral Bookstore through March 8.

Swanson says he and the student orchestra find the music written by DuBois particularly challenging. DuBois is a contemporary composer, born in 1930, who writes in a neo-classic style.

"It's an extremely entertaining piece," said Swanson. "There is only one set of parts in the world. We're playing off a signed manuscript in Dubois' own handwriting. We had to wait until the Glendale Symphony finished performing the piece before we could begin practice. It was about a month after the quarter began before we could receive the parts. We really would have loved to spend more time on it."

Student Jean Honhold, a flutist with the Cal Poly Chamber Orchestra says of DiTullio, "She is a very consistent player, very solid. And she always knows her part thoroughly and plays it very well. I admire her a great deal."

Hitchcock admits he's looking to nationals

by CORKY BRITTON
Daily Staff Writer
Head wrestling coach Vaughan Hitchcock isn't beating around a bush. He thinks that his team will win the regionals for the third straight year.

"We should win the regional championships and have at least six members of our team place nationally," Hitchcock said at a press conference Wednesday.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association will hold their sixth annual Western Regionals at Cal Poly Friday and Saturday. Seasons are scheduled to begin at 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. both days.

Cal Poly will enter the tournament ranked sixth in the nation by Amateur Mat News. The only other school that will be in the tournament that is nationally ranked is Portland State at 18th.

The Mustangs lost to Lehigh, University of Iowa, Arizona State, and Oregon this season. Hitchcock noted that of the 20 best teams in the nation, his team has faced 12 of them, and three of the four losses has come from those teams.

"We are a young team that will have good men for years to come," Hitchcock said.

Of the 10 wrestlers that will be in the regionals, three are freshmen, five seniors, one junior and one sophomore. The wrestlers have a combined record of 215-60-10.

Schools attending the tournament include Portland State, Hawaii, Fresno State, Utah State, University of Nevada at Las Vegas, San Jose State, Long Beach State, Cal State Fullerton and UC Santa Barbara.

'This should be an excellent match to be a spectator'
—Hitchcock

Each school may bring one wrestler from each weight class. Of the possible 10 wrestlers in each weight class, only two will advance to nationals. Winners of the division and runners-up will advance, and there will be three wrestlers that will be wild card choices that are picked by the onlooking coaches.

"There are only three returning regional champions, and we have two of them in Sythell Thompson (177) and Chris Anaya (190)," Hitchcock said.

The people that are winners of their division, second place finishers and wild card choices, will then get together with the same finishers of the other two regionals being held in the East and the Midwest for competition in the nationals to be held March 17-19 in Norman, Oklahoma.

Seedings, which are very important in any tournament, are equally as important in the regionals. Cal Poly plans to have seven or eight wrestlers seeded in number one.

"Seeding is very important, more important than what it sounds, as it gives your kid a better opportunity to win. If your wrestler is not seeded correctly, and he loses, he will hope to have the other guy lose or fight for third place," said Wayne Shaw, sports information director.

The following is Hitchcock's tournament lineup, barring any injury:

Roger Flook, a senior at 118 pounds has to cut weight down from 126 to 118 by tonight; 126—Tom Moun, a freshman who "should do well,"; 134—Benje Williams, sophomore co-captain who has "potential to place nationally and is one of our very best,"; 142—Ron McKinney, junior who won four rounds in regionals last year.

At 150 pounds, freshman Scott Heaton will "come on strong. He holds the record for pins in one season and has an excellent chance to place nationally," Hitchcock said. 158—Robert Kiddy, a freshman that will also come on strong. "His weight class is probably the toughest, as the defending champion is at this class, but he is capable of doing it."

Senior Kim Wasick will wrestle at 167 pounds.

"He has been out for 28 days with a severely pulled rib muscle. He has worked out strong and we anticipate him to win regionals and place in nationals if his rib hold on," Hitchcock said.

Baseball players as bubble-gummers

From The Associated Press
Reggie Jackson, who said they'd name a candy bar after him if he ever played in New York, can't even get his picture on a bubble gum card for the time being.
While Jackson quietly reported to the New York Yankees' camp Tuesday for his first workout in pinstripes, Sy Berger, the bubble gum man, was kicked out of the New York Met's clubhouse.

In fact, the colorful, bombastic Jackson was upstaged in his own clubhouse by center fielder Mickey Rivers, who had angry words for Manager Billy Martin, and in the Pittsburgh Pirates' locker room, where pitcher Larry Demery and utilityman Ed Kirkpatrick came to blows.
Berger, who annually tours the spring training camps signing up players for bubble gum cards, was requested by Mets' General Manager Joe McDonald to vacate the premises when he entered the team's clubhouse.

"It was very embarrassing to Joe, who is a long-time friend of mine," said Berger. "But he was acting on a directive issued by the Major League Promotion Corp."
The promotions group is seeking greater royalties from Berger's outfit—Topps Chewing Gum Co. of Brooklyn, N.Y.—for use of the pictures. Pending the outcome of contract negotiations, Berger is persona non grata in major league clubhouses.

Rivers, however, wasn't barred. The Yankees' speedy center fielder just didn't bother to show up on time.
"I didn't feel like coming out here that early," he griped. "They're giving me a hassle already. I don't need that hassle."

They're hassling me on every little thing. If they don't want me, they can trade me."
When Rivers finally appeared, more than an hour in arrears, he found a note from Martin.

"I tore it up," Rivers said. "I really didn't read it, but I think it said I'm going to be fined."
"He's not going to run spring training," Martin said. "Him or nobody else."
Meanwhile, the media largely ignored Jackson, who had to try on three pair of pants before he found one that fit, popped a button off his uniform shirt, couldn't find a batting helmet his size and finally was plunked in the back by a batting practice serve from Ken Holman, his former Oakland and Baltimore teammate.

In the Pirates' camp, tempers flared during some horseplay between Demery and Kirkpatrick. They pushed and shoved each other and threw a few punches before being separated by teammates.
On the signing front, the Philadelphia Phillies reported "definite progress" in talks with third baseman Mike Schmidt, the major league home run champ, while the Mets said there was "some movement, but nothing appreciable" in their efforts to sign slugger Dave Kingman.

Elsewhere, the San Francisco Giants signed shortstop Chris Speier for one year at a reported $90,000 while outfielder Jerry Morales told the Chicago Cubs he wasn't interested in becoming the successor to traded third baseman Bill Madlock.
"I'm an outfielder, not an infielder," he said.

Jeanne Friedrich eyes the ball and prepares to rifle it back to her Irvine opponent. It was to no avail, however, as the women were pounded by the Antecater 9-0. They will try to avenge the loss when they challenge the Cal Poly Pomona Broncos at 2 p.m. this afternoon on the upper courts. (Daily photo by Sun Ki Kratavil)

Calendar for the spectator

Cal Poly is offering plenty of sports action this weekend so if you feel athletic get out and catch a few games.

Baseball is leading the way as the Mustangs host the University of San Diego at San Luis Obispo Stadium with a doubleheader Saturday and a single game Sunday. All games start at noon.

The tracksters are involved in a triangular meet Saturday in Goleta. They will be running against UC Santa Barbara and Cal State Bakersfield. Coach Steve Miller's team hopes to rebound from its poor showing against Fresno State, a meet they lost 115-48. In the words of Miller, "We were ripped."

The women end their hoop schedule when they visit Malibu to play Pepperdine University Saturday. The Mustangs can do no worse than finish with a .500 record as they own an 11-10 mark now. Coach Mary Stallard has done quite a job in improving upon the women's 2-16 record last year.

Linda McArthur's women's track team is participating in the All-Conference meet today as they travel to UC Santa Barbara. Santa Barbara was the site of last week's Mustang unofficial third place standing in a quadrangular meet. Distance specialist Jani Rouda will lead the club today at 11 a.m.

The women's tennis team finds itself in action today against Cal Poly Pomona on the upper courts this afternoon at two o'clock. Poly is coming off the short end of a shutout against UC Irvine last week.

And of course, the wrestlers and the hoopsters are involved in the NCAA Division II Western Regionals. The grapplers are hosting the tournament while the basketball team is up in Washington.

Regionals

Last year, Wasick placed fifth in nationals.

Sythell Thompson, at 177 pounds, is being counted on to win the tournament. Last year, the senior won his division. 190—Chris Anaya, senior, who can "win over dangerous people, or lose to people who aren't worth a nickel. He has worked very hard in the last four weeks and should place nationally." Heavyweight—Dan Hayes, a senior who should "win the Western Regionals and place sixth nationally."
