

First Take

Holiday weekend accident tolls

Traffic accidents on the nation's highways during the Memorial Day weekend killed 452 persons. The Associated Press began counting traffic deaths at 6 p.m. Friday and concluded at midnight Monday. Last year, 442 persons were killed during the same period.

Accidents in California claimed 54 lives, according to the California Highway Patrol, nine below the toll last year. CHP officers arrested 2,063 drunken drivers during the weekend, up from 1,806 for the same holiday period in 1976.

Campus police shot at Hayward

HAYWARD—A disagreement between two California State University at Hayward policemen over checking out a burglar alarm erupted into gunfire, leaving two officers dead. Sgt. Stanley Henney, 41, and patrolman Gary Hart, 25, were killed in the Monday night incident. Patrolman Fred Moreno, 39, was booked for investigation of two murder charges.

FDA charged with lid of secrecy

WASHINGTON—A special panel of experts said Tuesday that the lid of secrecy under which the Food and Drug Administration operates should be lifted and the public given a look at the way the agency decides the fate of new drugs. The panel report stated the system of new drug regulation by the FDA "is fundamentally sound," and recommended that Congress adopt legislation to remove the trade secrets policy that the FDA now uses to keep data on the safety and effectiveness of new drugs hidden from public view.

Federal drought relief monies

WASHINGTON—Communities facing water shortages due to the current drought can get help under a new federal emergency relief program. The program offers both grants and loans to communities of 10,000 or more which have been affected by the drought.

The law provides $75 million for grants and $150 million for loans—which can be for as long as 40 years at 5 per cent interest—to be used to finance as much as 80 per cent of the cost of projects such as expanding water supplies, purchasing and transporting water and promoting water conservation.

Moslem terrorists on trial

WASHINGTON—The murder-kidnaping trial of Hamas Abdul Khaalis and 11 of his Hanafi Moslem followers began yesterday as a judge denied a motion to dismiss all charges and fended repeatedly with defense attorneys.

Superior Court Judge Nicholas Nunzio rejected a host of defense motions and complaints, with more pre-trial arguments certain to come before the screening of 300 prospective jurors begins. Opening trial arguments won't expected for a week or more.

Farmers gain a little

WASHINGTON—The prices that farmers get for raw products as they move into the consumer pipeline rose 2 per cent between April 15 and May 15, the sixth consecutive monthly increase, according to the Agriculture Department. Higher prices for hogs, cattle, soybeans, peaches and potatoes accounted for most of the increase, with lower prices reported for wheat, feed grains and eggs.

WEATHER

Fair through Thursday but with night and morning fog or low clouds increasing along the coast. Cooler days. Lows in the upper 40s to mid 50s. Highs in the 60s near the coast and 70s inland. Northwest winds 10 to 20 miles per hour in the afternoons and evenings.

Young couples seem to be familiar with marital rites when they decide to spend their lives together. However, if the divorce rate is any indication, a large majority are not prepared for matrimony after the honeymoon is over.

Betty Branch, a state-licensed family counselor in San Luis Obispo, has designed a program that gives Poly students a glimpse at one of the most difficult yet rewarding aspects of marriage: maintaining a healthy family environment.

"Grandma's House," a recreation project located in San Luis Obispo and developed by Branch. Students observe a traditional or "extended" family lifestyle by being part of a family during operating hours of "Grandma's House."

The extended family group consists of different generations of a family living together as a functioning unit. "I lived in Thailand with my husband for three years," said Branch. "While I was there I observed extended families and saw a tremendous amount of inter-family contact with the oldest members of the family. The grandparents took care of the youngest children."

Modern American families now consist of a unit of "just parents and their kids" according to Branch. There are many bad family relationships due to segregation of age groups.

Without assistance from grandparents, many parents are forced to spend all their time raising children, with little time for themselves. This predicament is one of the leading factors behind the rise in child abuse.

"Parents have their individual needs," said Martha Ray, a senior child development major who volunteers at "Grandma's House."

"The parents take out their aggressions on the children," said Martha. "They sometimes forget that children aren't adults. A six-year old is supposed to act like a six-year old, not a grown up." Grandma's House uses volunteers from all different age groups in order to provide an extended family atmosphere. Currently there are junior and senior high school students volunteering time as well as senior citizens from the area. The most vocal participants are of course, the kids.

Branch believes that the majority of college students (particularly males) have little knowledge of the complexities of family life.

"I think one of the most important things about Grandma's House is to give college students some exposure to the realities of child care. Perhaps they will think twice about getting married," Branch said.

Grandma's House invites all interested Poly students to visit its doors and observe an extended family environment. The hours are 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesday and Fridays until the end of spring quarter (it will reopen in the fall.) It is located in Meadow Park (South Street) in downtown SLO.

Musicians King Gongs

What began as a joke quickly became a profitable reality when the six-member Cal Poly Symphonic Band Percussion Ensemble performed for a taping of NBC's "Gong Show" Saturday, May 28—and won.

Calling themselves the "Non-Instrumental Sextet", Bill Horne, Hoyt Weller and Rick Riechel—all business majors, Marlene McCutcheon—a Home Economics major, Jeff Jones majoring in math and Brian Lindgren—a Mechanical Engineering major, performed an original work for percussion called the "Skin Symphony."

The "Symphony" is a foot stomping, and clapping, knee slapping, finger snapping composition of intricate rhythms and various comical gestures performed in unison by the group.

Although it is a comical piece, the "Symphony" is treated as serious work. Black formal wear is worn by the sextet for performances.

According to Bill Horne, the idea to try-out for the "Gong Show" came up during one of the ensemble's regular practices. Thinking it might be fun, they called and were booked for a preliminary audition.

After their first audition in Hollywood they were told they would be contacted in six to eight weeks. They were called the next day and asked to do a second audition for Chuck Barris, director and producer of the show.

Barris liked their performance. He gave them some ideas on how to perfect it for television and booked them for a taping of the show.

The taping was done in front of a live audience and a panel of three television celebrities acting as judges at NBC studios in Burbank.

Judges for the show were Pat Paulsen, Jamie Farr and Jaye P. Morgan. Each judge gave the sextet ten points. Morgan gave them a ten-plus commenting that their performance was "really snappy."

Although the sextet received the highest score possible, they tied with two ninth grade boys, "The Salutations," who did a soul handshake, gymnastics routine to disco music.

The judges had the final decision as to who would win and they decided to give it to them both. Each group won $516.51 and a gold trophy shaped like a gong.

The sextet's performance will be seen on national television on the daytime Chuck Barris "Gong Show" July 15. Check local listings for air time.

Degree in applied art, design to be offered at Poly in fall

Cal Poly will begin offering the Bachelor of Science Degree in applied art and design this fall, according to an announcement from Dr. Hazel Jones, vice-president for academic affairs.

Vice President Jones said approval for the new degree program with course options in crafts design and graphic design has been received from the office of the Chancellor of the California State University and Colleges.

Dr. Jon M. Erickson, Dean of Cal Poly's School of Communicative Arts and Humanities, which will include the new degree program in applied art and design, said it will point a new direction for occupational study based in the arts in which creative design will be interrelated with product manufacturing processes, marketing and other technical areas.

Graduates of the curriculum will be skilled in design, graphic design, and such crafts as wood, ceramics and metals. They will be prepared to pursue careers in either industry or public agencies or to enter graduate study.

Dean Erickson said the new Cal Poly program will be distinctive in that its graduates will be required to relate creative design and fine craftsmanship with the needs of individual clients, small industries, large industries and preferred industrial designers.

Dr. Thomas V. Johnston, head of the Cal Poly Art Department, which will administer the new bachelor's degree curriculum, said the new curriculum will not add to the numbers expected to enroll in either the School of Communicative Arts and Humanities of the university, or to the size of the Art Department's faculty. Its enrollment quotas will come from those already assigned to the school.

Crashed plane found nearby

SAN LUIS OBISPO (AP)—Two Southern Californians are believed dead in the wreckage of a small, private plane discovered north of here at Cuesta Pass Tuesday by an Army helicopter crew.

A Civil Air Patrol spokesman said searchers were able to identify the plane by a serial number visible from the air, but ground crews had yet to reach the crash scene in a remote area.

However, an Army spokesman said it appeared there were no survivors.

The plane was reported missing May 25 on a flight from Coalinga to Santa Monica. Reportedly aboard were Rene Tromeur, 51, a French national studying at the University of California at Los Angeles, and a passenger, Sue Daniels, 25, a UCLA employee.

The discovery of the plane Tuesday ended an 8-day search by the Civil Air Patrol. After attempts to locate the plane with standard aircraft failed, helicopters were brought in to search heavily wooded, mountainous areas.

Compliments to the chefs?

Some positive vibes for the Cal Poly Food Services. For this year there have been no major student complaints voiced, according to Everette E. Dorrough, food services director and Paluine Shaffer, dietitian-catering manager. There have also been fewer complaints in general than in other years. However, student requests, suggestions and constructive criticisms have led to some innovations and changes, such as:

- increasing the areas where meal tickets can be used,
- increasing the hours when meal tickets can be used,
- more salad bars,
- improved nutrition,
- improved communication between the students and the food service, —improved decor, especially in the dining hall, —better tasting vegetables. Dorrough said that there had been very few suggestions this quarter and it seems "as if everything were going all right." The general flavor of student complaints has been towards the cooking of vegetables, more variety in vegetarian entrees, expansion of health foods, and other suggestions of that towards the preparation of the meal.

According to Dorrough, a

No. 1 priority for next year is to increase the students' knowledge of nutrition through a Nutritional Awareness program. For instance, one part of the program will involve putting up signs by the foods. The signs will explain the nutritional content of each food.

Another idea for the Nutritional Awareness program would involve a "Nutrient of the Week" which would be listed along with the foods it could be found in.

BART WILLIAMS

Williams made a good showing at the NCAA Division II Track and Field Championships at Fargo North Dakota last weekend. Williams accounted for 7 team points by running legs on the 400 meter and 1600 meter medley relays — Cal Poly placed fifth in each event — and by placing 3rd in the intermediate hurdles. Cal Poly wound up in a tie for 18th place in the meet.

Injury slows tracksters

Coach Steve Miller predicted a top ten finish for his tracksters in the NCAA Division II finals held in Fargo N.D. Saturday. He was taking into account the presence of Xonie Lloyd, however, when he made his forecast.

The Mustangs lost the services of Lloyd, and the chance for a high finish, when the quarter miler injured his knee in a "cool-down" period Friday. Lloyd was doing his exercises when he heard a pop in his knee.

That "pop" resulted in what the doctor later diagnosed as a "partly or completely torn ligament." The senior was unable to walk Saturday and he was forced to watch his teammates finish in a seven-way tie for 18th place, scoring 10 points.

Hayward State took the Division II championship with 66 points. Runnerup Irvine tallied 58 while Los Angeles State scored 51 in the third spot.

Jeff Weigel, filling in for Lloyd, joined Huey Long, Bart Williams and Fraisure Sumpter in the 4000 meter relay. The Poly team turned in a fifth place finish, hitting the tape in 41.9. The winning team from Virginia State timed 40.6.

Weigel, Long and Williams then teamed up with Mike Bartlett and clocked 3:14.91 in the 1600 meter relay, good enough for another fifth place.

Two Poly wrestlers win spot on top team

Two members of the Cal Poly wrestling team landed a berth on the Junior World Championship team during a qualifying tournament at Mt. Pleasant, Mich. over the weekend.

Tom Mount, a freshman that wrestled 126-pounds during the past season, won his 196.5 weight class of the Greco-Roman division. He placed third on the freestyle competition to qualify for a berth on the Championship team in freestyle.

Teammate David Jack placed second at 220 pounds in the Greco-Roman division. The freshman won the chance to be on the team, but did not qualify for freestyle competition.

Mount won by three pins and two defaults to take the championship.
