Humanities lecture series

Imagination can survive today

By LEANNE ALBERTA

Staff Writer

Can poetic imagination survive in our technological world? Can the modern poet be creative in the atmosphere of today's processed and programmed world?

William Stafford believes the answer to both these questions is yes.

Stafford, a professor of English at Lewis and Clark College, spoke Thursday morning in the University Union. His lecture was the third presentation in the School of Communicative Arts and Humanities' series "Imagining the Imagination."

"I believe that there are patterns, or what I like to call myths, that govern everyone's lives," Stafford said. "The first myth is called the 'Sorcerer's Apprentice' or the 'Jack In The Beanstalk.' It deals with the reality that once you start something, like nuclear weaponry, you can't stop it."

"Another myth deals with redemption of the first myth," Stafford added. "We want to rid ourselves of the burden implied by the first myth. I think a lot of poetry is based on these two myths."

"My part of participation as a writer in this series is to be irresponsible," Stafford jovially said. "In order to be creative you are responsible to think irresponsibly or imaginatively."

Stafford believes the power of imagination is present in all people. He feels that the writer or poet accepts his involvement in the world, but stays free of current formulas or formed imagination.

"A writer doesn't view perceptions only to embody them in language, rather he or she finds a way into a process that brings about new views that would have otherwise never been seen," Stafford explained. "There are great opportunities and great hazards in the realm of imagination."

Stafford said that exercising imagination in education is a very difficult task.

"People are so glimpsed by possible achievement that they encounter writer's block — my advice to them is simply lower your standards and continue forward," Stafford laughingly explained.

"Students who are extremely absorbed in their grades or are constantly anticipating what a teacher wants are not using their imagination," he said. "This behavior is very destructive to imagination."

Can imagination become predictable? Stafford doesn't think so. "We're all different so the products of our imagination will be different," he said. "Imagination can never be predictable."

Student Senate votes to endorse a fall graduation

By SUSAN DETHLEFSEN

Staff Writer

The Student Senate voted unanimously on Wednesday to endorse a fall graduation ceremony, scheduled for Saturday, Dec. 15.

It was endorsed on three conditions: that those students graduating in the fall be given the option to participate in the June Commencement; those graduating in the summer be given the option of participating in commencement in the fall or the previous June; and those graduating in Winter Quarter be given the option to go through the previous fall ceremony.

"After they (students) work so hard for so long we should provide a commencement opportunity for them," said Russ Brown, dean of students.

Donald Coats, the university commencement coordinator, said all he needs now to go ahead with plans is an OK from the Academic Senate by Nov. 1.

Dr. Reginald Gooden, chair of the Academic Senate, said the issue was brought up at a recent executive committee meeting and no one raised an objection to it.

Coats thinks approximately 425 students will want to participate in Fall Commencement. The ceremony will be held in the Main Gym on Dec. 15 at 10 a.m., with a possible reception afterward for the graduates, their parents and teachers.

"As long as students are given the option to participate in the spring ceremony, the idea of a fall ceremony is great," said ASI President Kevin Creighton.

Students who want to participate in the fall ceremony need to let the Records Office know by Nov. 1.

Besides voting on a Fall Commencement, the senate also heard a report from Creighton on the progress of a Greek Row.

President Baker talked with Creighton this week and said three criteria must be met before the idea of a Greek Row can be brought up to the Board of Trustees for approval.

He said it is necessary to find someone to purchase the land, to get cooperation from the city (finding out if they will back it and provide adequate police, fire and sewage services), and finally make sure there is not a large group of citizens opposed to it.

Also in his conversation with Baker, Creighton said he repropoed the students' request that the add/drop policy be changed from a one week drop, two week add period to a two week drop and add period. Creighton said Baker agreed to send a letter to the registration and scheduling committee outlining the students' request and asking them to look into it.

Finally, the senate discussed and voted on a bill concerning audio visual equipment. Creighton said that A.V. is suffering from lack of funding from the university. They told him over the summer that they would have to start charging the ASI for the use of equipment by student groups and clubs. The use of their equipment had previously been free.

Creighton said A.V. was asking for a guarantee by July 1 that $12,000 would be paid to them for the year. However, Creighton pointed out that he did not have the authority to guarantee that money, and it would have to be brought up before the senate.

Creighton and his staff found that most A.V. equipment the school provides is old and more expensive than most clubs and groups want. Creighton also decided it would be cheaper and more advantageous to the student body if ASI started its own A.V. service for clubs and groups.

Creighton pointed out they would be charging clubs for the use of their equipment, but it would be less expensive than charging them for use of A.V.'s equipment.

The bill the majority of senators voted to support asks A.V. to charge groups on a monthly basis for use of their equipment until ASI can set up its own A.V. service.

Legislator claims both sides are to blame for deficit

By Karen Ellichman

Staff Writer

America's national deficit can be erased by a three-pronged program of controlled defense spending, controlled entitlement spending and a flat federal tax, according to Congressman Leon Panetta, D-Carmel Valley.

Panetta, who spoke to about 100 people Oct. 25 in the University Union, was the second speaker in a series sponsored by the Young Democrats and the Political Science Club about the presidential elections. The four-term congressman is running for re-election to the 16th Congressional District, which includes the San Luis Obispo area.

"The budget and the size of the deficit relate to every other national issue," he said. "Because the state of our economy will determine if we have the resources to deal with other issues. We are now in a recovery; inflation is down and unemployment is holding. But how strong will that recovery be in the future?"

Panetta said that although President Reagan contends that inflation rates are not related to the size of the deficit, that statement contradicts Reagan's earlier beliefs. "Which were true," said Panetta, who serves on the House Budget Committee.

With the federal government borrowing 70 to 80 percent of private savings to fill out its budget, the congressman said, the impact will be felt on small businesses, the trade balance and America's overall economy.

"There's not much mystery about who's to blame," Panetta said, "everybody is to blame for the $200 billion federal deficit. The Democratic administration favored its own kind of spending and the Republican administration favors its own kind of spending, and both had to borrow to pay for it."

The congressman gave his personal plan for dealing with the federal deficit. First, he said, the president and Congress need to jointly control the growth in defense spending. "No more blank checks to the military," he emphasized. Panetta said a growth rate of three to five percent is reasonable, but that America's leadership needs to question spending billions of dollars on systems, such as the MX missiles, that cannot be justified diplomatically or militarily.

The second part of Panetta's deficit reduction plan is to control the growth of entitlement program spending. The congressman said that 46 percent of the federal budget goes toward entitlement, including middle class payments such as social security, military and other retirements, Medicare and farm support. Six percent of the entitlement spending goes toward programs for the poor, he added.

Panetta said the middle class entitlements need to be reduced. "No more automatic, across the board cost-of-living increases," he said. He also mentioned the alternate health care programs and more foreign trade markets should be developed to aid in making those reductions.

The congressman's third part of his plan to reduce the deficit is simply "to raise sufficient revenues to pay the bills." Panetta supports a flat federal tax, believing that such an approach will eliminate loopholes that allow people in higher tax brackets to get out of paying their share. "I believe we should pay a percentage of our income, period," he said.

David George, a professor in the political science department, said Panetta's plan for reducing the federal budget outlined an accurate method of dealing with the problem. "(Panetta) laid it all out," said George.

The congressman also briefly discussed the development and preservation of America's natural resources, the problems of immigration reform, and the problems of "Madison Avenue" media coverage of the presidential campaign.

Improving relations

Cal Poly and the city must improve relations. It's a goal to which both sides so often agree that sometimes the concept is diluted into so much rhetorical oatmeal.

The current joint effort by the the campus committee analyzing the ordinance and city officials to refine the city's proposed noise ordinance is healthy way to beef up what is a sincere desire by each side. The Mustang Daily Editorial Board commends them.

The city and the committee tentatively agreed Tuesday to modifying the ordinance, acting on student concerns that the ordinance discriminated against students and their greater likelihood to party.

Linda Eberl, the ASI community affairs representative, said in Thursday's Mustang Daily edition city officials realize the criterium under which someone may be fined for being too noisy—55 decibels or higher on a noise meter—"is extremely low," and that the ordinance has the potential to discriminate against students.

Eberl and students will ride with police, working with them toward a more realistic decibel level. And City Attorney Roger Picquet said he will establish and present to the committee criteria by which Cal Poly groups may file for noise ordinance exemption for special events.

Rhetoric has given way to real progress. Ideas have been welcomed rather than resisted. This instance of cooperation will spark greater efforts of city and school citizens to truly build a community.

Reagan wins re-election in Cal Poly mock voting

President Ronald Reagan was "re-elected" by a two to one margin in the mock elections which concluded yesterday afternoon.

Jim Kelly, of the sponsoring Historical Society, reported that of 1,831 students who voted at two campus locations, 1,135 voted for the Reagan/Bush ticket while 557 chose Mondale/Ferraro. One hundred-thirty-nine did not vote for president.

Other results of the survey revealed that most students did watch the televised presidential debates earlier this month, but they didn't sway opinion.

The actual questions and number of responses are as follows:

Q: Did you watch the debates?
1,467 said yes; 364 said no.

Q: Did the debates sway your opinion?
239 said yes; 1,709 said no.

Q: Did the debates make the issues clear?
604 said yes; 940 said no.

Q: Do you support/approve of woman vice-presidential candidate?
1,410 said yes; 373 said no.

Q: Would you vote for a woman presidential candidate?
1211 said yes; 484 said no.

Grenada student gives insights

Editor:

As one of the medical students in Grenada at this time last year, I am deeply concerned about the so-called "Student Liberation Days" being organized on college campuses by right-wing groups, purportedly to celebrate the United States invasion of Grenada.

Whether my life and those of my fellow medical students were endangered by the coup that overthrew Maurice Bishop is very much open to question. It is clear, however, that our "liberation" by the Reagan Administration came at a terrible cost: dozens of young American, Cuban and Grenadian lives.

That is a fact that the people organizing "Student Liberation Day" may not want you to know. Nor may they want you to know the course they'd like to see our nation follow in other parts of Latin America, namely such places as Nicaragua, El Salvador and Honduras.

If American troops are sent to those countries as some would like, they won't be facing a few hundred glorified policemen and Cuban construction workers as they did in Grenada. They won't be fighting on a sunny tropical island, as they did in Grenada.

If American troops are sent to Central America, it's more likely they will fight thousands of well-trained soldiers and guerillas willing to give everything to defend their homelands and their ideals.

As in Vietnam, American soldiers will face the uncertainty of whether the peasants in the village before them are friend or foe. They will battle again in scorching heat, dense and hilly terrain and unfamiliar territory.

Polls show that most students, as well as the majority of Americans, want peace in Central America through political and diplomatic means, not more bloodshed through clumsy and misguided American intervention. If the organizers behind "Student Liberation Day" mean to suggest through their mindless celebration of the invasion of Grenada that students support military adventures on behalf of unpopular and repressive dictators in Central America, I suggest they ask students first.

Instead of celebrating the liberation of students, their actions only encourage the decimation of students. The publicity from their rallies, if not countered immediately, encourages the worst tendencies of our government to believe it will be politically acceptable to send us off to war.

They should recognize, as El Salvadoran President Jose Napoleon Duarte has, that hundreds of years of poverty, exploitation and despair are at the roots of the conflict in Central America, not the struggle between foreign ideologies. They should recognize, as most students do, that it only hurts the prospects for peace when our government supports those who have the most to gain by continued bloodshed: the contras in Nicaragua and the government-tolerated death squads in El Salvador and elsewhere.

There still is time to act before our government sends us on a hopeless mission in Central America. Regardless of the foolishness of these right-wing "Student Liberation Days," let us ensure that our country not repeat the mistakes of the past by getting involved in an endless war on the wrong side of the battle.

Voters urged to be aware of city candidates' views

Editor:

In this election for two vacancies on the Board of Supervisors, voters who live in incorporated cities should be aware of the role that county government has in their lives.

Just look at page five of the phone book under government, and you'll see a whole page of county government offices — airports, animal control, Health Department, libraries, courts, tax collector.

And what about hillsides? Most hills adjacent to cities are in the county, so the Board of Supervisors will have a deciding role on how these hillsides will be managed.

The county will also have to work with Port San Luis Harbor District on the Master Plan, because that is part of the local coastal plan for the county.

I urge voters to be informed of how the candidates stand on these issues. The election for Board of Supervisors will affect all of us, whether we live in incorporated cities or not.

Getting credit:

Should you, or shouldn't you

By KIM HOLWEGER

Special to the Daily

The financial umbilical cord weakens and snaps when you're in college.

Day by day, year by year, Mom and Dad may gradually stop paying for things, until suddenly your money concerns are your own.

But when does dependence stop and independence begin? Should you begin to establish credit now? If so, how? Is credit necessary for the average college student?

No, says Professor Dominic Perello of the economics department. Perello said the only time which credit cards become necessary is when they "become more convenient than any other method."

Fake money, as credit cards and checks are sometimes called, can come in handy when a student is, for instance, paying a telephone bill or rent, Perello said. But he warned whether a student is self-supporting or his day-to-day existence is being financed primarily by his parents, the most practical way to deal is cold, hard cash.

There are, said Perello, two major advantages to establishing credit. The first, of course, is the safety of carrying "plastic money" instead of cash. The second advantage is the educational value of learning about and being able to successfully use the credit system.

If a student graduates from college without ever writing a check, Perello said, he has lost part of the learning. He also notes that later in life, society rewards you for being able to use credit effectively.

For a student intent on establishing credit, the easiest method would probably be to apply for a gas credit card, according to Perello. Also, students might look into applying for credit on a trial basis under their parents, an arrangement in which the parent agrees to cover any charges not met by the student.

According to Perello, another method of establishing a good credit rating is through car payments. "Any asset with a relatively enduring value will help to establish credit," said Perello. Car payments not only help to teach the student about responsibility, but have the advantage of use of the asset which saving the full cost of a car does not. Unfortunately, the student is paying for two things instead of one—the car itself, and the money to buy the car in the form of interest.

To the student trying to establish credit, charge applications can become somewhat of an obstacle course. Depending on the student's financial situation and past finance records, it's possible that establishing credit will come easily.

More often, however, department stores are hesitant to let a college student loose with "plastic

Mysteries shroud hypertension

One of the most disturbing facts about hypertension, or high blood pressure, is its prevalence in our society. About one in four Americans suffers from it, in varying degrees of severity. Left untreated, the disease is a killer. It is the primary cause of stroke, as well as a major risk factor in heart disease.

Yet, according to the November issue of Science Digest, no one knows why hypertension occurs, how to predict who is likely to get it or even how to treat it safely. That's why recent reports in the scientific literature have sparked considerable interest and controversy.

An article in Science challenges one of the current theories about hypertension, namely, that too much sodium can elevate the blood pressure of certain predisposed individuals. (Blood pressure is the outward force exerted by blood against the walls of arteries.)

Another article, in Nature, suggests that a chemical previously unidentified in humans plays an important role in the body's regulation of blood pressure.

The Science article, written by David McCarron, director of the Oregon Hypertension Program, and his coworkers at Oregon Health Sciences University, is based on an analysis of the diets of more than 10,000 Americans. His results suggests that too little calcium — rather than too much sodium — leads to the development of high blood pressure.

money."

According to Perello, the major reason for the stores' reluctance to give credit is students' "overdrawing," or exceeding their balance. Perello said most credit sources still consider students in their late teens and early twenties "irresponsible."

"The day you graduate, get a job, and shoot into the middle income group, they'll be standing in line to give you credit," he said. "Until then, they'll do everything they can to keep you from getting it."

The basic department store charge application consists of a "revolving credit agreement" and various questions ranging from general information to personal references. The application will contain information on minimum payments, credit reports and finance charges (for outstanding balance).

But credit cards can be safer than cash, and they teach you about the credit system.

The application portion of the form asks such questions as: living arrangement (own? rent? live with parents?), employer, present position and salary, other income sources, bank accounts, and other credit cards held.

To establish credit at this point or to wait until graduation is a personal choice, made after assessing personal finances, preferences and ultimate goals. Until then, Perello advises, "Enjoy the freedom of cash while you can."

Parental influences

Psychologist says children marry the way their folks did

(AP) Many married couples are haunted by the ghosts of their parents.

People tend to seek the kind of relationships in their marriages that they had with their parents or observed in their parents' marriage, reports Jeffrey Blum, a psychologist from New Canaan, Conn., writing in the November issue of Redbook.

"For example, if a woman is lucky enough to have had a terrific relationship with her father," Blum says, "she may recreate this fine relationship with her husband in her own adult life."

"If, on the other hand, that early relationship was unhealthy or destructive, a woman may unconsciously create that same unhappiness in her marriage."

Some people pick partners who possess some of the same negative traits their opposite-sex parent exhibited — someone cold, perhaps, or weak — in the subconscious hope that in marriage they will be able to rectify what was "wrong" in their relationship with that parent.

"Another way in which we may recreate old patterns is by projecting all the negative characteristics of our opposite-sex parent onto our spouse," Blum explains.

"To complicate matters, the marriage partner then may resent the spouse for those very traits, even if they are imaginary."

"I participate in this 'negative transfer' by assuming that my wife is angry at me about something I have done, when in fact it doesn't bother her at all," Blum says.

"For example, I am so sure that my wife will be upset about something I plan to do—such as going alone to spend an evening with old college friends—that I start acting sneaky about it way in advance. My sneakiness does upset her—even though she originally felt fine about my plans to see my friends."

"At times this pattern becomes so obvious to me that I wonder if I actually want my wife to become angry so that I can absolve myself of my guilt over seeing my friends alone or because anger is familiar and comfortable to me—part of my own early experience of love."

Communication is the key to getting rid of childhood ghosts. Blum suggests man and wife each write for 20 minutes on a subject such as "What makes my partner angry" or "Why my spouse loves me." He says there may be wide discrepancies between what your partner thinks and what you know to be true of yourself.

The most important step in getting rid of the past is to understand it. Blum recommends that marriage partners make a list of all the traits they associate with their parents, from who was boss to who saved money to who did the dishes. Compare these descriptions of your parents' marriage with your own. There may be surprising similarities.

"Because we are human," Blum writes in Redbook, "the past is always with us. The more compulsively we try to deny it, the more likely it is to come up and bop us on the nose when we least expect it."

"No marriage is good or bad because it does or doesn't resemble the union of our parents. What causes trouble for spouses is the rigid expectations each partner may bring to the marriage."

Can Poly win two straight football games?

Yale Keckin rolls around the left end in last week's game with Northridge. The Mustangs will travel to Moraga to play St. Mary's this weekend.

Mustang Daily — Stephanie Pingel

Mustangs travel to Moraga to play St. Mary's, both have 4-3 records

by ROSEMARY COSTANZO
Sports writer

This weekend the Cal Poly Mustangs will attempt something they have not been able to do so far in 1984; win two games straight.

The Mustangs will be taking their 4-3 record to Moraga California for the first match up between Cal Poly and St. Mary's.

"They've been up and down like us," said Mustang head coach Jim Sanderson. "We're certainly won't take them lightly. We're aware of our pattern of win, lose, win, lose, so we want to get two wins in a row for a change."

St. Mary's record also stands at 4-3.

There will be a few position changes on the Mustang offense for Saturday's matchup. Joey Kolina, leading the Mustangs on the ground with 315 yards on 68 carries, has converted from fullback to halfback. Lance Martin moves from receiver to running back. Martin has gained 156 yards for Cal Poly.

Quarterback Yale Keckin will be starting for the Mustangs. Keckin has completed 51 of 129 pass attempts for 687 yards. Seventeen of those passes fell into the hands of tightend Damone Johnson who has chalked up 236 yards.

On defense Cal Poly is led by inside linebacker Gary Swanson with 75 tackles, 34 unassisted. Seven of his tackles were behind the line of scrimmage. Leading the sack-attack are defensive tackle Pepe Prud'homme with nine, and defensive end John Cummins with eight.

Cal Poly players Nick Frost and Art Gonzales were chosen as the Western Football Conference/Red Lion Inn players of the week for their performance against Cal State Northridge. Cal Poly beat Northridge 28-0.

Frost, who plays at free safety, stole three passes to set a WFC record for the most interceptions in one game. He also had three tackles, two solo, and a key block on teammate Andy Thornburg's 52-yard interception return for a touchdown. Frost has a total of five interceptions for the season.

On offense Gonzales, who took over the starting placekicking position from Drew Herzoff, broke two WFC and Cal Poly records with his 14 points kicked. In only his second game of the year Gonzales made good on all four field goal attempts and both of his point after attempts. He broke the Cal Poly and WFC records for the most points in a game by a kicker and the most field goals in a game.

Angels will go after Lynn

The California Angels apparently will make a serious attempt to resign free-agent outfielder Fred Lynn, although his agent says "it's impossible at this point to predict where he will play in 1985."

Lynn, who hit 23 homers and drove in 79 runs this year, filed for free-agency Wednesday along with Angels pitcher Don Aase, reliever Tug McGraw of Philadelphia and outfielder-designated hitter Oscar Gamble of the New York Yankees.

Jerry Kapstein, Lynn's agent, said he had talked with several clubs about Lynn already. He said he also had talked with the Angels General Manager Mike Port on Wednesday and probably would talk him again on Thursday.

Lynn was platooned in the Angels outfield until August. He finished with a .270 average in 518 at-bats.

"There are places where Fred could go that he would be playing every day, based on my conversations with other clubs," Kapstein said.

Clubs have until Nov. 5 to resign free-agent players. Those who do not sign will go through the re-entry draft on Nov. 8 in New York. Players have until Monday to file for free agency. Until the draft, players may contact other clubs, but they may not discuss actual financial terms of a proposed contract.

Wednesday's filings brought to 44 the number of players signifying they intended to go through the re-entry draft.

The 32-year-old Lynn would join pitchers Rick Sutcliffe of the Chicago Cubs and Bruce Sutter of the St. Louis Cardinals, designated hitter Andre Thornton of the Cleveland Indians and infielder Jim Gantner of the Milwaukee Brewers as Type A-rated free agents, based on their performance over the past two seasons.

Spikers face tough teams in SB

Mustang Daily — Daryl Shoptaugh

Lynn Kessler shows the form that brought the Mustangs to the top of the NCAA polls. Cal Poly will travel to the Santa Barbara for a tournament this weekend.

by JILL PERRY

Staff Writer

California and volleyball go together like July and Coppertone. So what makes Nebraska's women's volleyball team think it can travel to Santa Barbara this weekend to score a victory over the No. 3-ranked Cal Poly spikers?

The Mustangs will spend one day this weekend trying to show 10th-ranked Nebraska that Californians know their sport, in the UCSB Tiger Tournament.

"They're a good team and we're going to have to be brave and courageous. We're making some adjustments right now," head coach Mike Wilton said.

The team is making adjustments in personnel to prepare for the match against the leading hit percentage school in the nation. "They have a .326 spiker proficiency average and ours is only .240 or .250," he noted.

Adjustments are also necessary to fill the gap since one of the team's best hitters, junior Ellen Bugalski, will not be able to play due to a family tragedy. Her two older sisters were killed last Friday in a head-on collision in Mexico and the funeral will be held tonight in her hometown of Aptos.

"We're trying to do a better job of preparation. We're going to have to do a better job of executing and not just rely on courage. Playing without Ellen will be a big adjustment, but we'll be alright," he said.

The play in this inaugural tournament will begin with a match against unranked Loyola Marymount, tonight at 6 p.m., in UCSB's Robertson Gym. Then on Saturday the spikers will face Nebraska at 10 a.m. and the final match of the weekend will pit the Mustangs against UCSB, another unranked team, at 8 p.m.

The next Mustang home game will be against Fresno State next Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. The spikers beat Fresno in three games earlier this month and Wilton is looking forward to playing them again.

Head coach Mike Wilton talking to his team. Cal Poly fell from its No. 1 ranking this week after thje loss to BYU.

FOOTBALL

St. Mary's Gaels are led offensively by quarterback Buddy Phillips who completed 37 of 96 passes with six interceptions. Phillips has gained 506 yards and scored three touchdowns. The top receiver for St. Mary's is wide receiver Marti Storti who has caught 20 passes for 317 yards with 3 touchdowns. Storti has also averaged just over 11 yards per punt return, and about 22 yards on kickoff returns.

St. Mary's punter Tony Molino, averages 37 yards per kick while placekicker Dave Hunt has made good on 5-of-9 field goals and 6-of-10 point after attempts.

The Gaels should prove to be tough on defense, led by senior inside linebacker Kevin Will. Will holds a team high of 105 tackles, including 3 interceptions, 3 quarterback sacks, and 40 unassisted tackles. And just as impressive is junior outside backer Jim Wardy who has 92 tackles, including 12 quarterback sacks.

St. Mary's has held three opponents to under ten yards rushing this season.

Next week the Mustangs return home to host Boise State.

UCSB hosts

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — UC Santa Barbara will host the first-ever Pacific Coast Athletic Association combined men's and women's cross country championships Saturday.

The races — 5,000 meters for women and 10,000 meters for men — are scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. PDT.

Fresno State, ranked 18th in the nation, is favored to win the men's championship.

The competition will be the second for the PCAA women.
