Cal Poly Seeking Participants for 'Her-story' Exhibit

SAN LUIS OBISPO -- The Cal Poly Women's Programs department is seeking submissions for an exhibit as part of the university's annual "Her-story" event scheduled in March 2002 as part of Women's History Month.

The theme for the program is "Ordinary Women, Extraordinary Impact," and anyone who knows an inspiring woman is invited to pay tribute to her by submitting an essay, a poem or a photograph to be included in the exhibit to be displayed at Cal Poly's annual Woman of the Year Luncheon on March 6.

The exhibit will provide an opportunity for community members and Cal Poly students, faculty and staff to tell the story of a woman who has made an impact on their life.

"The goal is to give recognition to the ordinary women who have extraordinary impact on our lives," said Susanne Kelley, coordinator of Women's Programs. "Take time to give something back to the women who have given you so much."

Anyone interested in participating should contact Jenn Roberts at the Cal Poly Women's Center at 756-2600 or jnrobert@calpoly.edu by Dec. 15. - 30 -
