X-rated theater raided, still to show movies

By LESLEY GLEASON
and T. WILLIAMS
Staff Writers

Four X-rated films were confiscated from the Log Cabin Theater Wednesday night by 10 armed policemen.

The films were seized at about 6 p.m. by officers possessing an all-purpose search warrant issued by Acting District Attorney Barry LaBarbera. The warrant did not specify any Penal Code violations but a box on the warrant reading, "Seizing material which is in possession of a person with intent to use it as a means to commit a public offense," was marked.

But, Jim Johnson, president of Walnut Properties and the Pussycat Theaters, said he will fight the charges. "Whatever the charge is, I will fight it," he said. In fact, Johnson has been consulting his attorney and is considering filing charges of his own based on what he feels was an illegal confiscation of the films. He said the warrant only allowed the confiscation of two films, but four were taken, causing the theater to close temporarily.

Johnson also said that the police officers removed advertising posters from in front of the theater, searched the safe and reviewed the company's business records, and 22 hours after the incident, the theater owners were charged with six unclarified misdemeanors.

LaBarbera was unavailable for comment.

Pussycat Theaters have been in operation for 23 years and have about 30 theaters throughout California. But the controversy over the Log Cabin Theater began only 3 weeks ago when they started showing X-rated movies. Prior to that, Johnson said he had tried to market foreign films but that they weren't selling well, so they switched to X-rated films. "People go by their own choice," Johnson said.

In a previous meeting with student journalists, LaBarbera said that part of the problem with prosecuting the theater is that it lies outside the city limits which makes it a county issue. Because the county ordinance doesn't clarify restrictions concerning X-rated materials, several ambiguities have arisen. He said there was a problem with determining the definition of obscenity, a conflict with the First Amendment and questions about whether or not the theater is actually violating the ordinance.

Members of the San Luis Obispo PTA filed the initial complaint against the theater, charging that it was a bad influence for children in the area. Specifically they noted a bus stop located directly across the street from the theater where children have to wait for the bus to take them to school.

But, Johnson insists that the bus stop doesn't exist. "I have not physically seen any bus stop there," he said. "I don't meddle in the PTA's business, they shouldn't meddle in mine."

One Cal Poly staff member who wished to remain anonymous said, "I don't think the mothers should be screaming and yelling, it is out in an area where it isn't hurting anybody. Children can watch cable TV and see porno movies."

Other members of the community had varying opinions concerning the theater. Some referred to patrons of the theater as "scums," "criminal characters" and "weirdos." One anonymous student said people who view those movies are "people who have basic problems with their own sexual relationships that they can't deal with any other way."

But Roger Conway, executive director of ASI, said, "If national literature is anywhere accurate, there is a great diversity of ticket-buyers, not just some old guys in a rubber raincoat."

Another Cal Poly student who wished to remain anonymous didn't find the theater offensive at all. "I've lived in San Francisco and I'm very open-minded to X-rated movies," she said.

But Laina Morris, a home economics senior, said, "I think it's sad that there is a degradation of any kind in sexual life as well as a break-down in the family."

Not only has there been reaction to the theater itself, but there has been concern expressed about their ads appearing in Mustang Daily. "The ads offended me, I don't want to see them in the Mustang Daily," said Angela Darnell, a journalism junior. "The Mustang Daily is an educational piece of information for Cal Poly students. It is designed for us and it seems we could find something better to put in the ad's place."

But Robin Shaffer, an environmental engineering major, wasn't offended by the ads. "They are no worse than anything I read in the Times or any other local newspaper," he said.

Mike Hedman, computer science major said, "I can turn away from the ad. I lived in San Jose and I see those things all the time, it's no big deal. I have never really been tempted by an ad — they will probably make themselves open for bachelor parties eventually."

Eileen Berry, advertising manager for Mustang Daily, said, "We get more skin in a fashion ad, but it is a matter of principle." She also added that alcohol or pornographic ads will not be placed on the same pages as national ads.

Joann Seremet, Mustang Daily general manager, said, "We don't accept ads that contain any visual or written information that would be offensive to the viewer or reader."

Because of the present questionable legal status of the Log Cabin Theater no more ads will be published in Mustang Daily, said Seremet. But Johnson said, they are planning to change the sign outside, remodel the interior of the theater and possibly change its name. It will remain open for business to persons over 18 years of age.

CSU fee legislation proposed

By T. WILLIAMS
Staff Writer

Three California senators announced the introduction of historic student fee legislation aimed at protecting students, institutions and the state.

Senators Ken Maddy, R-Fresno, Walter Stiern, D-Bakersfield and Nicholas C. Petris, D-Oakland authored the bill that, if adopted, would do the following:

- Establish an explicit formula for setting and adjusting student fees.
- Limit fee increases, regardless of the formula, to no more than ten percent in any one year.
- Reaffirm the State's commitment to providing sufficient financial aid to offset fee increases for needy students.

"This consensus has evolved out of a painful and prolonged process which required participants to set aside their individual differences in recognition of a long-term fee policy which is in the best interests of current and future generations of California students," Maddy said.

The participants he referred to were representatives from the UC and CSU administrations and students, the Hastings College of Law and its students, the Office of the Legislative Analyst, the governor's Department of Finance and Postsecondary Education Commission. He said these groups were "key to the introduction of this important legislation."

In the 1984-85 Budget Act, the Legislature directed the California Postsecondary Education Commission to convene these representatives and to develop specific principles, policies and methodologies for setting and adjusting fee levels.

Stiern said, "My intent here is to protect students against the kind of sudden decisions that caused fees in both systems to be increased four times in the 21 months between January 1982 and September 1983."

If this proposed fee policy had been in installed for the 1981-82 and 1982-83 school years, when the state faced severe revenue shortage, UC fees would have been $1,153 instead of the actual $1,387. Fees for the CSU students would have been $363 instead of $702 that they paid in 1983-84.

Gov. George Deukmejian reduced fees to $1,317 and $650 for the UC and CSU systems respectively and proposed to hold fees at those levels for 1985-86. Should the proposed bill be approved, it would become operational for the 1986-87 school year. But before it does, it must be approved by a two-thirds majority in the Senate and then signed by the governor.

Adding their support as co-authors, were Assemblymembers Gwen Moore, D-Los Angeles and Jack O'Connell, D-Santa Barbara. Moore successfully passed Assembly Bill 1251 through congress in 1983 that protected Cal State students from precipitous fee increases.

"My bill helped put an end to that problem at the Cal State's," Moore said. "In fact, it caused the governor to decrease fees for the first time in history. This bill will go a long way toward stabilizing fees and making them more predictable."

Chilean author compares imagination in Latin world

By KRISTIN RONCARATI
Staff Writer

The imagination was related to the social conflicts taking place in Latin American countries Thursday by a Chilean author.

Fernando Alegria's speech was part of the Communicative Arts and Humanities lecture series, "Imagining the Imagination." His talk was titled, "Latin America Today: Fantasy and Reality."

Alegria related the subject of imagination to the social contexts of Latin American political and economic activities. He spoke about what it is like being a writer in a country where the economic and social injustices are so deep.

"It is seldom that one thinks of the imagination as a subject," Alegria said. He explained that he considers himself a person who works with the imagination, first being a student, then a writer and lastly a professor.

Alegria presently teaches Latin American literature at Stanford University. He is also the head of the Spanish and Portuguese departments. He has been a member of the Stanford faculty since 1968 for all but a three year diplomatic leave with the Chilean government.

Alegria said he feels that he

The road to class, a risk to take

It is a real challenge to get from one end of campus to another along with thousands of other students in the ten minutes that is allowed for class change.

Add to that large delivery trucks or maintenance vehicles driving along the inner-perimeter road. Instead of getting to class on time, the challenge becomes getting to class with no broken bones.

Last year the Student Senate passed a resolution for a rule that vehicles were not to be driven on the inner-perimeter road from on-the-hour to 10 minutes after the hour. President Baker endorsed this rule.

The rule stated that drivers who were in violation were not to be cited. However, they were to be reported to their supervisors, who would in turn reprimand them.

These reprimands, if they are being issued, must not be very harsh.

It seems that this year the traffic is worse along inner-perimeter road than it was last year before the rule was passed.

Day after day, students walking to and from class will hear a noise behind them and turn around just in time to jump out of the way of a large delivery truck or other vehicle.

No serious injuries have occurred. Yet.

However, people have reported being brushed aside or pushed by one of these vehicles.

Was the rule passed just to pacify the student senators who saw the dangers of too many cars mingling with walking students? Did the administration ever have any intention of enforcing it?

The administration can fill in the answers to this question.

The Mustang Daily Editorial Board is not saying that drivers should be ticketed and fined. But how about an occasional reprimand? Or a warning from the campus police?

Surely this is better than nothing. It may stop a serious accident that is waiting to happen.

Let's not hope a serious accident is what is needed in order for the rule to be enforced.

Letters

Readers respond to pornography ad in Daily

Theater ad supported

Editor:

This letter is in response to one by Mr. Al Polito published in the January 30 edition of the Mustang Daily.

Mr. Polito was offended by the running of an ad from a local "porno" theater in the Daily. He claims this ad must be pulled due to its "poor taste." He goes on to claim that porno films cause sexual perversion, the cheapening of women and sex, and even asserts a relationship between rape statistics at Poly and these films. He ends by inviting "response to this foolishness." Well Mr. Polito, here is your response.

First of all, your claims are all either pure opinion or outright false. When you compared rape statistics with pornography you ignored the fact that in cities where pornography is openly promoted (i.e. Amsterdam and Hamburg) incidents of rape have fallen far below the standards of less tolerant areas. It is possible that pornography could even deter rape. As for the cheapening of women and sex and the perversion caused by the films, that is a little hard to believe. In order for your claims to have any validity at all, surely you must have seen one of them. That being the case, do you feel perverted now? Do you think poorly of women or sex? Of course not. Now you are just the same kind of letter writing guy that you always were. Anyhow, who is perverted and who is not is all a matter of opinion; which brings up the most important point. No one should be forced to accept anyone's views of morality.

The First Amendment guarantees freedom of speech and press. Just as Mr. Polito has the right to publicize his misguided opinions and I have the right to point out the misguidedness of his opinions, the Mustang Daily has the right and, in fact, the obligation, to print the type of advertising that the public demands. It doesn't matter if you (or I) find it objectionable. The fact that this theater stays in business shows that some people patronize it. So long as they do, they have a right to see what is playing and the Daily has an obligation to show them you don't have to look, but you can if you like.

Ben Jennett

Daily urged to keep ad

Editor:

This letter is in reference to the comments made in the Mustang Daily on Jan. 29 by Al Polito. Mr. Polito recommended that the Mustang Daily should discontinue advertising pornographic films for the Log Cabin Theater. I disagree. I do not feel that an advertisement should be removed from a newspaper just because an individual finds the ad "in extremely poor taste." I respect the fact that Mr. Polito finds the ad offensive. Yet if he was to have his way, what else would he want removed? I do not patronize the Log Cabin Theater and I'm not asking anyone else to. I just feel that censorship of the press could start an eerie precedent. Stick to your guns Mustang Daily, keep the ad.

Michael Jarvis

Anti-ad view advocated

Editor:

I completely agree with Al Polito's opinion on the porno ad that has appeared in the Mustang Daily. He said that porno cheapens sex. For example, who has heard of a porno movie showing sex as the loving act it should be? And, most importantly, these movies show women as sex objects, not human beings. I was very surprised to open up the paper and see that ad staring me in the face. I also feel our paper doesn't need this kind of advertisement. So, I support his idea and hope this ad is banned from our paper.

Shawna Sadoff

Daily policy gets backing

Editor:

This letter is in support of the Mustang Daily's advertisement policy. Recently in the Daily a reader complained in response to an advertisement for a theater that features pornographic movies. The reader made several accusations that pornographic films promote sexual perversion and even rape, which is preposterous and invalid. The purpose of this letter is not to commend or even justify pornography, but rather to support the Mustang Daily in giving its readers freedom of choice. It is not fair to deny others exposure to a form of entertainment which to one person is in bad taste.

Reader praises UGS for service

Editor:

I would like to respond to the article on the first page of the Daily today (Jan. 31) titled "Student Rep upset with UGS service." Not being privy to all the information from which this "student rep" claims to draw her sources, I cannot comment on the financial position of UGS.

However, it did irritate me to see several paragraphs written for the sole reason of destroying the integrity of UGS based on one student's opinion. I have just finished dealing with UGS in regard to several jobs, and I, for one would like to raise a round of applause for the crew there. I was given daily reports on the progress of my job (though I did not ask for them) and the sales staff were quite helpful in instituting several last minute changes that I needed made. Hip Hooray for personal service with a personal touch.

Opinion cannot be right or wrong about abortion

Editor:

I am writing this letter to urge Kevin Swanson to get off his high and mighty horse. An opinion is a viewpoint of an individual and cannot be deemed "right" or "wrong." The opinion and points of view that are stated in your letter to the Mustang on Jan. 30 are not the only correct and morally sound ones. Therefore, they should not be stated as such.

I am an anti-abortionist who's views come from the Roman Catholic Church. I do not believe the way the posters relate the anti-abortion message is appropriate. The ends do not justify the means in my opinion.

Now, G. Prier and R. Ricord may be pro-abortion, but their opinion is still valid. Neglecting to recognize this fact shows a lack of an open mind. It represents an insult to those who have toiled over the issue and decided in favor of abortion. To insult for one's pro-abortion point of view may be the objective of those who made the flyers, and that of Kevin Swanson. The point I would like to make is that to insult is not the objective of an anti-abortionist.

A final point I would like to make is about the argumentative logic used in Mr. Swanson's letter. I feel it is a one-sided, self-righteous argument and an embarrassment to those who have chosen a side after long deliberation. The drifting from topic to topic shows a lack of capability to present precise facts to convince the reader that your view is right and all others are wrong.

Americans falls short of equality ideal

Editor:

Proportional representation seems to be the gist of what Ray Devlin (Letters, Jan. 30) is trying to get across in lambasting what he thought to be a "biased" American Music Awards ceremony. I didn't catch the show, but that's of little relevance. Devlin is concerned about "rampant" reverse discrimination existing not only in the music industry, but also the whole of the nation. In his words: "It's time to start equalizing . . . every aspect of this country. Blacks represent only 12 percent of the population, but demand far more attention and concern than they deserve."

President Reagan couldn't have said it better, though not for a lack of trying. Recently he has said many civil rights leaders exaggerate the problems of blacks and have "a tendency to keep people stirred up as if the cause still exists."

Two-hundred and fifty years of slavery, persecution, and discrimination are not righted in 20, 30, even 50 years. Black Americans have an unemployment rate twice that of white Americans. One-third of the black population lives in poverty.

Perhaps Reagan fails to see this "cause" because his eyes are closed. More likely, I think, it's lack of empathy and his preference for more bombs, not bread.

"Yes, Mr. Devlin, equality, that is, everyone receiving his or her fair share, is a lofty ideal. Sadly, this country still falls far short.

has lived the greater part of his life being, "a believer and a dreamer." It is his intention in his writings to make "people believe and dream with me," Alegria said.

"Without the imagination we would cease to exist...the imagination is an instrument of knowledge and thought for survival." Alegria said that we "live to the degree of our imagination."

Two Latin American Nobel

Alegria was born in Santiago, Chile. He was educated at the University of Chile, and received his masters degree from Bowling Green State University in Ohio. He received his doctorate at the University of California at Berkeley and taught at both universities before moving to his present teaching position at Stanford.

Alegria began his writing career in 1938 and has since published 30 novels and literary items including poetry and historical pieces.

Transfer students may be working too hard

By SUSAN EDMONDSON
Staff Writer

Students who transfer from a four-year college or a junior college to Cal Poly may be taking more classes than necessary to get their bachelor's degree an administrator says.

"I didn't get the credit I thought I'd get" is a common complaint that Paula Ringer, supervisor of the Evaluations Office, hears from transfer students.

Because some students don't question their evaluation, they might end up repeating material learned in a similar course at another college.

The problems can begin when students forget to send a final transcript or general education certification from their previous college to Cal Poly.

"It's necessary to have the junior college make a statement to us formally that they have finished all of the general education or that they have finished part of it. If the general education certification doesn't come it makes it look much worse than it is," Ringer said.

Even when students take these steps, more can be done to get maximum credit from transfer courses.

"It's really important for them when they get their evaluation at the first quarter to look at it really carefully," said Ringer.

"Student's first important job is to look over what was listed as an elective and see if in fact there is something there that they feel should have gone for something else."

Ringer encourages students to bring any questions to their evaluator.

There are many reasons why a course may not be applied toward a degree and instead listed as an elective.

"Sometimes it can be as simple as having a catalog that we don't have," Ringer said. Some of the college catalogs used in evaluations may be out of date. A recent catalog description of a course taken at another college could prove that the course covers material similar to a Cal Poly course. When this happens, students can substitute courses to achieve more credit toward their degree.

Ringer said that students often will assume that a problem with their evaluation will straighten itself out. Students need to take the initiative. "Challenging is always an option," Ringer added.

By talking with his evaluator, Robert Rinaldi, a mechanical engineering junior, was able to get more credit for his courses. Rinaldi transferred to Cal Poly this fall after three years at Bakerfield College.

"When I first transferred over I had a lot of units in my electives column," Rinaldi said. He had about 110 units but only 70 units were applied toward his degree.

Rinaldi talked with his evaluator and switched from the current curriculum to the 1981-83 catalog curriculum. This gave him about 22 more units toward his degree.

"I thought I'd have to get dressed up in a lawyer's uniform and argue the point but that wasn't the case," Rinaldi said.

Rinaldi added that the people he spoke with were helpful but he wouldn't have received more units toward his degree if he hadn't made the effort himself.

Cal Poly ROTC holds compass contest Saturday

By T. WILLIAMS
Staff Writer

The Cal Poly ROTC program will sponsor its seventh annual Orienteering Meet Feb. 2 at 8 a.m.

Orienteering involves the use of a map and compass. Competitors are given a map with five points designated at different locations on the map. Then with a compass, they must locate those points on the course. Each point will have a marker attached to it that competitors are to mark their scorecards with. The first one to cross the finish line first with all five points correctly marked, will be the winner.

The competition will begin at the entrance to Poly Canyon Road and there will be three courses; beginning, intermediate and advanced. The Military Science Department will supply the maps and compasses and instructions on how to use them. The meet will conclude in the afternoon with an awards presentation for the top three finishers on each of the three courses.

The event is free and open to the public.

Noise ordinance voted on soon

By T. WILLIAMS
Staff Writer

The proposed San Luis Obispo noise ordinance will either be approved or rejected Tuesday night at the City Council meeting.

The ordinance, first introduced in October 1984, would provide an objective means of measuring noise levels in both commercial and residential areas of the city.

Noise levels would be measured in terms of decibels by a decimeter. By definition, a decibel is a unit for measuring the relative loudness of sounds perceptible by the human ear. If the ordinance is approved, any member of the community generating noise that registers above 55 decibels on the decimeter could be cited as a violation of the law.

In the Jan. 15 public hearing, ASI Community Affairs Representative Linda Eberl complained that the 55 decibel limit was unrealistic for a college community. "A car passing by registers 60 decibels," she said.

The council will hold one more public hearing at the meeting on Feb. 5. Members of the community who would still like to voice their opinions, questions and concerns can go to the hearing Tuesday night at 7 p.m. in the Council Chambers of City Hall.

Chinese Magic Revue provides thrilling, chilling performance

By JULIA PRODIS

He can't do it. There's just no way. Not one more chair. He stacked the eighth chair on top of the others. He can't balance on one hand on the eighth chair, with his feet seeming to almost touch the ceiling of the gym. He did. The crowd cheered wildly.

The "Tower of Chairs" act was just one of many spectacular feats performed by the Chinese Magic Revue of Taiwan Wednesday night that provoked more than an "ooh" or an "ahh" from the audience.

The 17 Chinese acrobats, jugglers, balancers, and magicians performed to a crowd of almost 2,000 in the Main Gym.

Wearing brightly colored silk costumes, the performers seemed to defy all limits of balance, strength, and flexibility.

The Chinese performers, ranging in age from 15 to 38, have spent most of their lives in training to be a part of the circus. One of the leaders of the troupe, Ken Mei Hai, said in broken English, "The Tower of Chairs act is the most difficult and dangerous. It took over 10 years to perfect."

The show began late. The performers' bus had broken down. In the half hour delay time, the hundreds of children who had come to the show with the parents were restless. So they put on a show of their own on the gym floor. A few five and six-year-olds did their rendition of break dancing as others played games of tag. When the performance was announced, the children scurried to the sidelines, where they remained sitting on the wooden floor for the next two hours.

In one of the first magic tricks, one of the performers seemed to fit her whole body into a small basket. With only the swirl of a silken blanket over the basket, the girl disappeared, then reappeared. When asked afterward how it was possible, Ken Mei Hai responded, "Sorry. I can't tell you — old Chinese secret."

After the gym lights had been turned off, the performer turned on the beam of light. The only illumination in the entire gym came from the red glow of the light through the esophagus of the performer.

"I thought the light was going to burn right through his throat," said Ann Elise, a spectator who was four fingers old.

The audience was composed mainly of families with small children, but people of all ages were represented. "There were people 90 years-old carrying canes and young women carrying baby bottles," said Bob Walters, adviser to the ASI Special Events Committee which sponsored the show.

The Committee, along with members of the Chinese Student Union, who assisted with the show, were kept busy throughout the performance, chasing and retrieving children who had wandered onto the center of the gym floor to "get a better look" at the performers.

It wasn't just the children who were humorous. The performers seemed to enjoy picking unassuming people from the audience, calling them to the center of the floor and asking them to perform a certain task such as lifting a vase with the palm of their hand or bending a wrought iron band. When the participants gave up in desperation, the Chinese did it with familiar ease.

One detracting factor of the show was the bright floor lights of the gym that remained on during most of the performance. Without a darkened gym and a spotlight as a focal point, many children lost attention and seemed more fascinated with their shoelaces than with watching the acrobats.

The Chinese Magic Circus performed last year on the Cal Poly campus to a sold out gym. The show was not as successful in ticket sales this year, but the performers' skill and agility was equally as entertaining and unbelievable.

Lacrosse team looking to net first big year

New coach leads seasoned team

KEVIN H. FOX

Staff Writer

After a disappointing season last year, the Cal Poly Lacrosse team says it's ready and looking forward toward a year of hard work, a winning record and a trip to the playoffs.

Lacrosse Club President Andy Tait said the current team has been playing together for the past several years and are now over its building stage.

"Last year's record of 3-7 was like a building year. We lost only one player from last season and most of the guys have played together for three years," Tait said. "We are looking to go far this season, hopefully to the playoffs."

Tait said that this season marks the first in which the team will have a real coach who has played the game for more than just a few years. "Pete Riolo is a native of New York and has played for a long time," Tait noted.

He will bring to the team something that other big schools in the division have. "The good teams like Stanford, University of California at Berkeley and Santa Barbara draw players from the East where most have played for many years," Tait said.

Along with the new coach, Tait is excited about the tremendous turnout of students for the team. "We doubled the amount of folks for the team. We now have 50-60 players which will allow us to have both a varsity and junior varsity team."

Tait said that this will give more people a chance to get game experience and help increase depth for the future.

"Lacrosse is a game that takes three to four years to gain the skills necessary to play competitively, and having two teams will really help," he said.

The team will be playing on the road most of the month of February after the home opener this Saturday. They will then return home for a weekend of games against Stanford and Santa Barbara in March.

Tait said he hopes that the school can get behind the team and support them. The group receives around $800 from the ASI, but most of that goes to pay league dues. All other expenses, including the more than $150 that it takes to outfit a player, comes out of the members pockets.

The games are played on the track field behind the Main Gym and there is no admission charge.

The team does hold a few fund raisers during the year and have had luck in getting support from the community.

Sutton fears career over

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)

Don Sutton has compiled 3,208 strikeouts and 280 pitching victories in a baseball career which he fears might be over.

"Professionally, winning 300 games is the most important thing I can think of. It's the key to the Hall of Fame for me, I believe, and I want to make the Hall of Fame," Sutton said Thursday before teeing up in the opening round of the Bing Crosby Pro-Am golf tournament.

"What I've done has been methodical, boring, not spectacular. Tom Seaver, Nolan Ryan and Steve Carlton are leadpipe cinches to make the Hall of Fame. I don't think I am," he said.

Sutton is high on baseball's all-time strikeout list and ranks 10th in career shutouts, with 56. But he has had only one 20-victory season, going 21-10 in 1976.

"I've been a mechanic in a world of nuclear scientists," he said. "But it's important everybody understands that winning 300 games is only professionally important. It's not the focal point of my life. I want to win 300 games, but I want to do it close to home."

Sutton, whose 40th birthday is two months away, gave that message to the Milwaukee Brewers' general manager, Harry Dalton, last year and requested a trade which would place him with a team near his home and family in Laguna Hills, Calif.

A December trade, in which Sutton and Oakland A's pitcher Ray Burris changed teams, sent Sutton to California, but 450 miles from his Orange County home.

Not close enough, Sutton decided, and told A's management he planned to retire if a deal couldn't be worked out sending him to the California Angels, San Diego Padres, or his original big league club, the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Sandy Alderson, the A's general manager, said he would try.

After Sutton told the A's he did not wish to play with them, he was quoted in a newspaper as saying he wouldn't pitch for them if they were the 1927 New York Yankees.

"I didn't say 'wouldn't.' I said I couldn't pitch for them if they were the '27 Yankees. The change of one word makes a big difference," Sutton said.

He cannot leave home, Sutton decided, because of 15-year-old son Daron and 11-year-old daughter Staci. If he retires, he'll spend full time working in the investment planning company, Suttcor International, he began six years ago.

Men again on rough road

Important game for both teams

History setting is something teams usually enjoy, but not the Cal Poly men's basketball team.

After starting the league season with two wins, head coach Ernie Wheeler has suffered four straight losses, a first in his 13-year career here.

The most recent two losses were by one point and Wheeler said the team has been plagued by turnovers and missed free throws in the last minutes of games.

"We haven't taken very good care of the ball in the final minutes," said Wheeler. "When the score is tied you have to take charge. We haven't taken charge."

Poly could be 5-1 this year in league, said Wheeler, playing hard enough to win.

"We created problems for ourselves. We have played hard and gotten beat."

The Mustangs now play three road games, tonight against Cal State Bakersfield and two more next weekend.

At 3-3 in the California Collegiate Athletic Association, the Roadrunners, said Wheeler, also consider the game tonight important.

Poly got off to a slow start last year said Wheeler, and the tough close games this year are typical of the CCAA race. The Mustangs are 13-6 overall, Bakersfield 15-4.

Poly plays two road games next weekend, returning home on Feb. 14 of its first home game.

The leading scorer for Poly is Nate Hatten, hitting for 10 points per game in league. Teammate Derrick Roberts is hitting for 8.5 per game, James Wells 8 points per game.

Backboard shattered by dunk

Rain of glass in the Main Gym

Darryl Dawkins has made a reputation shattering backboards, but for the Cal Poly Main Gym, it was a first.

During practice Wednesday, Mustang guard Mark Shelby hit a dunk shot, said Poly's head coach, splintering the glass backboard into pieces.

"It was scary," said head coach Ernie Wheeler, "it just exploded on us."

It was the first time in his career he has seen backboard shatter, said Wheeler.

Center Mike Chellsen received cuts from the flying glass, but no one was seriously injured.

The backboards in the gym were old, said equipment man Dick McMath. "The glass gets brittle," he said, and when it broke, "it looked like a million diamonds."

The old baskets didn't have break-away rims, said McMath. "This is the first time it has ever occurred at Cal Poly."

The new backboard needs welding, said McMath, and may take a couple of days to replace.

The missing backboard in the southeast end of the gym.

There is also the possibility, he said, the women's game could be canceled.

The new backboard will cost $800 with shipping, and breakaway rims will be installed.

The men's basketball team has not been able to run full-court drills, said Wheeler, hurting the basketball teams practice.

Basketball player to surrender, charged in alleged student rape

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Mitchell Lee, the University of Minnesota basketball player charged in the alleged rape of a student, is expected to surrender to authorities when he returns from a road trip, the prosecutor said Thursday.

A felony charge of third-degree criminal sexual conduct was filed Thursday against Lee in Hennepin County District Court, according to Jim Gaffney, the assistant county attorney handling the case.

"He's out of state with the basketball team, so he'll surrender to sheriff's deputies when he returns," Gaffney said of Lee, who left Wednesday with the Gophers on a two-game Big Ten road trip.

The university issued a statement from Dutcher which said that because of the charges, Lee "cannot give the necessary time, effort and concentration necessary to play Big Ten basketball."

The prosecutor said Lee is scheduled to appear in court

Monday. If convicted, he faces a maximum penalty of a 10-year prison sentence, a $10,000 fine or both.

Lee, a 6-foot-9 freshman forward from Carol City, Fla., surrendered to university police and was arrested last Friday in connection with an alleged sexual assault on a 20-year-old woman. He was released to the custody of an assistant coach and was allowed to leave with the team after a judge lifted a restriction on his travel.

Men take close one
*Fourth win over SB*By NANCY ALLISON
Staff Writer

This is the fourth time in a row in the past two years that the Cal Poly men's tennis team has beaten UC Santa Barbara in a close 5-4 victory.

The Mustangs turned it on Wednesday for their season opener at home against the Division I Gauchos.

Poly was without its No. 1 singles player Brian Bass, who is recovering from a bike accident, so the entire ladder was moved up one spot.

Pulling out singles wins for the Mustangs were No. 3 Rob Pritzkow, against Kirk Hall, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3; No. 4 Bob Zoller against the Gauchos' Scott Morse, 6-2, 4-6, 6-3; and No. 6 Jim Rakela against Francis Alvir, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3.

UCSB also took three singles points with wins at the No. 1 spot, where John Nissley defeated Poly's David Reynoldson, 7-5, 2-6, 6-4; at No. 2 where the Gauchos' Gus Anderson defeated Paul Landry in the only two-set singles match, 6-4, 6-3; and at No. 5 singles where UCSB's Chris Russell beat Tom Salmon, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4.

In doubles action, Poly's No. 1 team of Pritzkow and Zoller were overpowered by UCSB's Nissley and Anderson, 6-1, 6-2.

Poly came back to tie the team score 4-4 when No. 3 Jim Rakela and Mike Giusto pulled out a 6-3, 6-4 win.

In the final doubles line-up the No. 2 team of Landry and Reynoldson pulled out a much needed 4-6, 7-5, 6-3 victory to close out the match at 5-4 for Poly.

Coach Hugh Bream was pleased with his team's performance. "We played well for our first match. With a little more experience and Brian Bass back in February, we'll be ready to roll."

Bream said he was especially proud of the team's victories in five out of the six matches that went to three sets. "This is indicative of our physical conditioning and mental toughness."

The netters have a busy weekend, with three matches back-to-back. Today the team is in Riverside, to play their first conference match against UC Riverside.

The men travel to Redlands Saturday to play the University of Redlands, and on Sunday they will take on conference opponent Cal State Los Angeles in Los Angeles. The next home match for the netters is Saturday, Feb. 9 against Division I Santa Clara.

Poly to be on horse Take on running Panthers

By DAN RUTHEMEYER
Staff Writer

After edging Cal State Dominguez Hills last weekend, the women's basketball team has had little chance to rest as it gets set to host the top-ranked Runnin' Panthers of Chapman College at 7:30 tonight in the Main Gym.

Coming off of victories over Dominguez Hills (71-60) and Biola (62-36), the Runnin' Panthers sport an impressive 17-2 record and have a firm grip on first place in the California Collegiate Athletic Association.

The Mustangs, meanwhile, have an overall record of 7-11 and are 2-3 in conference play.

Having played each other in the U.C. Davis Tournament in November, the two teams know what to expect coming into tonight's game.

"They are a very physical team," said head coach Marilyn McNeil. "They play a strong man to man defense and also a good zone."

In the previous contest, the Runnin' Panthers beat the Mustangs by 20 points, mainly on the merit of their strong defense.

"We had trouble getting into our offense because their defense was so strong," said McNeil.

Helping Chapman to its sparkling record has been the double-figure scoring of three players. Melissa Fipro averages 13.5 points a game, Leone Patterson nets an average of 12.2 and Delissa Carter tallies 12.4 points with 8.5 rebounds a game.

Aside from their tough defense and consistent scoring, the Runnin' Panthers boast one of the tallest teams in Division II with four starters six feet tall or over.

In preparing for tonight's contest, the Mustangs have added some drills to their practices to get them ready for a physical battle.

"We have been trying to be really physical in practice so we don't get intimidated," said McNeil. "It has really been good for us."

In order to win the game, McNeil believes that the defense will have to play as well as it has been and the offense must play like it did in the second half of the win over Dominguez Hills.

"We won't be able to play the kind of first half we did last week against Dominguez Hills," said McNeil. "Chapman is the type of team that will not let us back in the game."

Wadkins cools in Pebble wind Miller leads using long putter

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Lanny Wadkins' string of sub-par rounds came to an end in cold, howling winds and Johnny Miller, with an elongated putter tucked under his elbow, took the first-round lead Thursday in the 44th Bing Crosby National Pro-Am.

"It was a tough, tough round of golf today," Miller said after he negotiated Spyglass Hill in 68 — four under the listed par.

Players and spectators were scoured by sand blown from the bunkers at Cypress Point.

It was at that course, the most exposed of the three Monterey Peninsula courses used for the first three rounds of this unique event, that the wind-blunted and frustrated the efforts of some of the game's greatest names. These were some of the scores:

—Defending Crosby title-holder and two-time U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin, 77.

—Tom Watson, twice a Crosby winner who collected the U.S. Open title at Pebble Beach, 75.

—Jack Nicklaus, 2 under par early in the day, finishing at 76.

—Masters champion Ben Crenshaw, 79.

—Hal Sutton, runner-up in last week's Los Angeles Open, an incredible 87, the highest of his career.

—Host Nathaniel Crosby, playing as a pro for the first time, 76.

—Calvin Peete, who led the PGA Tour in scoring average last year and won the Phoenix Open a couple of weeks ago, 81. He later withdrew, pleading problems with contact lenses.

And Wadkins, a record-setting winner of two tournaments already this season, 73. It marked the first time in 14 rounds this year that Wadkins had gone over par.
