Presidential candidates debate the issues

By JULIA PRODIS
Staff Writer

Political rhetoric prevailed at the debate between the three ASI presidential candidates yesterday in the University Union Plaza.

With a few noted exceptions, questions asked by a Mustang Daily panel received answers that skirted the issues.

Answers such as "Show you care, get out and vote"; "Experience is important"; and "We represent you, the student body" were all repeated numerous times throughout the hour-long debate.

When Mike Mendes, currently the Vice Chair of the Student Senate, was asked the inadequacies of the current ASI President and Vice President, he did not mention the current officers, but instead dwelled on the positive attributes of a socially aware Student Senate.

When candidate Steve Dunton was asked why the Student Senate, of which he is a member, did not accomplish anything Fall Quarter he responded, "We were new and inexperienced."

When candidate John Carroll was asked what he thought is the most pressing problem at Cal Poly, he said it is the lack of student involvement. To solve this problem, he would make campus "more interesting and exciting."

The candidates did respond to certain pointed questions.

All three of the candidates agreed that the Administration is not listening to students. Dunton said, "We have to be consistent, vocal, and have to push President Baker, the Foundation, and the Administration."

Carroll said "the Administration is not taking the students seriously" and that "good public relations and communications with the Administration is the answer."

Mendes said he would "convince the Administration that the student officers are the backbone of student representation."

During the course of the debate, Dunton said that alternate funds, such as university funds, should be used to subsidize the Children's Center instead of student fees. He said a Greek Row could become a reality "if the Administration is pushed."

Dunton said his biggest contribution as student senator was his persistence in making public the profits of the Foundation. He said he was a catalyst in "giving students more control" with the Foundation. On the issue of parking, Dunton said that he will fight the Chancellor's Office to allow for a multi-level parking structure, instead of paving over playing field and agricultural space.

Mendes said his "number one advantage as a candidate" is that he represents a cross section of students because of his involvement in various clubs and

Poly students arraigned

By DAN RUTHEMEYER
Staff Writer

Two Cal Poly students charged with the rape of a female student were arraigned Monday in San Luis Obispo Municipal Court.

James G. Blevins, 23, and Manuel Perez, 43, were notified of their rights and assigned public defenders by Judge Christopher Money.

Blevins, a physical education major, and Perez, a city and regional planning major, are charged with the March 1 rape of a unconscious 21-year-old female Cal Poly student, said San Luis Obispo Police Investigator Bill Hanley.

Much of the pertinent information surrounding the case has remained confidential in order to protect the victim, Hanley said. He said he believes that once the case reaches trial the judge will close the courtroom to the public and press to protect the victim from unwanted media exposure.

The two students will be in court again Wednesday at 8:30 a.m. for further arraignment proceedings after they have had a chance to talk with their lawyers.

Perez is out on bail of $7,500, while Blevins was released on his own recognizance after not having to post bail.

While cases which involve two defendants charged with the same crime often have the same lawyer representing each of the accused, this case is an exception, said a Municipal Court clerk.

Separate lawyers were assigned to the two students because their stories differ. To have a fair trial it is essential that a lawyer believes his client is telling the truth, the clerk said.

Perez will be represented by a public defender while Blevins will be defended by Melvin A. de la Motte Jr., a court-assigned conflict public defender.

Taken from locker

Senior project stolen Friday

By DAN RUTHEMEYER
Staff Writer

A senior project and $350 worth of electronic parts and equipment were stolen late last week from an Engineering East locker.

William Lafferty, a senior electronic engineering major, notified the campus police Friday that his senior project, a digital volt meter and miscellaneous electronic parts were missing from his locker.

According to the police report, the locker was opened, items were taken and the locker was relocked. There were no signs of a forced entry.

The locker, which has a dual locking system, can be opened with a student's padlock or by a master key.

Because no one except Lafferty has the combination to the locker and there were no signs of forced entry, both police and Lafferty believe the theft was committed by someone with access to a master key.

"It looks like someone got hold of a master key and got into my locker and took $350 of equipment," said Lafferty.

Investigator Ray Berrett of the Public Safety Department said that while it is a good possibility that a key was used, it's hard to investigate such a matter.

"In a case where someone has a key you don't have much to go on," said Berrett. "There are no suspects and no fingerprints."

Because an expensive data book was taken while cheaper ones were left behind, Lafferty believes that the theft could have been committed by another Electronic Engineering major.

The project that Lafferty was working on was an electronic guitar tuner that would enable him to tune a guitar electronically rather than by ear or with a conventional tuning fork.

While the project itself was stolen, Lafferty still has the plans and all the data concerning it.

He has been working on the project for six weeks and had expected to have it finished in time to graduate this quarter. Lafferty expects the theft to set his project back by two weeks, but he doesn't see it as severely affecting his graduation plans.

The parts for his project will be received in about a week as a donation from National Semiconductor, which also donated the parts for the first guitar tuner.

One of the problems in protecting the lockers from further theft, said Berrett, is that the Engineering East building is open late hours. Berrett doesn't believe, however, that closing the building early is what should be done to stop future thefts.

"People are coming in at all times to do work, so we really can't close it because of a theft," said Berrett. "People are just going to have to be careful about their things."

Public relations does not a president make

Unfortunately, there appears to be a lack of definable issues to separate the ASI presidential candidates. With this lack of issues there exists the possibility that student voters might fall into making a decision based on personalities alone.

This may not seem too disconcerting for many students, but a dependence on personality as a means to select a student leader who will ride shotgun over a $3 million budget is scary.

Too often, prominent officials have been selected to high ranking positions because of their ability to portray a positive media image, a case of the proverbial public relations machine at work.

Take a look at the most recent presidential election for a good example.

This is not the best way to select the one person who will have access to the important people on campus and in the Administration.

The ASI president should be a person, a student, who embodies the attitudes of the current student body. He must be able to work well with the different types of personalities that exist in the Administration, but should not be willing to back down when a strong student opinion needs to be expressed on a controversial issue.

We need a leader who is willing to sincerely listen to and care about the attitudes and opinions of the Cal Poly student community.

The burden now falls on the students as a whole to get out and question the candidates, don't just believe what is printed in brochures.

We must elect a leader who has got substance and knowledge behind him, not just a suave, "politician" type of personality.

Abortion article called biased

Editor:

On Monday I was quite disturbed upon reading Mr. Williams' cover story on the Abortion Debate. Yes, we 200 people were exposed to both sides of the issue, but I believe the 7,000 Daily readers were not. The article was obviously biased against the views of pro-lifer Susan Carpenter McMillan and the photo caption mentioned that the audience "hissed" her remarks. What he failed to report was that she also received the most frequent and the longest bursts of spontaneous applause supporting her remarks.

The article cited two occasions of abortionist Downer accusing the pro-lifers of hypocrisy. But it failed to mention that Ms. Downer spoke out of both sides of her mouth. She said women "agonize over aborting their babies" and later called the unwanted baby a "parasite of the woman's body." To this the audience hissed loudly, too!

When McMillan described an abortion doctor's inutero hands-on dismemberment of a second trimester baby, the response of the audience was NOT hissing; it was a corporate whine of pain — as though each of us had just been cut with a sharp knife.

Finally, your reporter described how McMillan called for documentation of — not Dr. Bradley's fabrications, but Planned Parenthood in general — to which he held and waved a book. Yet, Dr. Bradley never once cited or paraphrased from that mystery book all evening. It may have been a plain-cover copy of Charlie Brown's Christmas for all I know.

Who has voice of the students?

Editor:

Last Friday's Mustang Daily editorial directed at President Baker, ostensibly on behalf of "the students," was unjustified. Not in that the issues raised might be of some concern to some students but in that the Mustang Daily and the ASI both should not falsely posit themselves as "the voice of the students." Neither has much of a legitimate claim. ASI officers are elected, by those one-in-five students who even concern themselves with the question, largely on name recognition and the degree to which they can "qualify" themselves by prior student government involvement. To stamp "the voice of the students" on a myriad of Student Senate resolutions and executive opinions is stretching the realistic mandate of the ASI. This has been recognized, at least in past years, by some in the ASI.

For its part, if the Mustang Daily is to speak for the students one could hardly blame President Baker were he to not take us seriously. Arguing "that we're the real reason you have jobs" and that Baker is callously insensitive, unaware of the existence of students, doesn't speak seriously to issues. An editorial should express a newspaper's best critical and persuasive abilities, the Mustang Daily's are usually a desperate attempt to develop some marginal controversy into a suitable vehicle for the expression of self-important juvenile indignation. The Mustang Daily seems perennially desperate for editorial material.

As mandated monopolies, the ASI and the Mustang Daily should consider what leads them to believe they constitute the sum total of student interest and opinion.

Poly Royal poster criticized

Editor:

When you ask a Cal Poly student, what is Poly Royal, most will reply with an answer that seems to fit this schools' atmosphere.

Cal Poly is an enjoyable school with a friendly active social life but also with an emphasis on learning and leadership. Poly Royal is with no doubt a success. After all, it has been held annually for 53 years, and is known throughout the state.

However, the purpose of this letter is not about Poly Royal itself, but of the poster depicting it. The title of the poster "Minds in Motion" does truly describe Cal Poly, however the figures in the picture do not.

Instead of minds in motion, the figures depict more of the Soviet type of propaganda — "For the Fatherland" type of stuff.

The expressionless faces look like those you see on Russian collective farm posters, depicting farmers supporting the Communist party while their blank faces stare across the Ukraine.

And since when do we see Cal Poly students wearing drab clothing? Seriously ask yourself, do you dress like that? They do not look like Central California college students to me. To me this poster depicts Cal Poly to be an institution of non-capitalistic thinkers of an Iron Curtain society, and not an institution of well-educated, responsible, fun loving students Poly Royal proves us to be.

College not just football, T-shirts

Editor:

Thanks for publishing the letter last week explaining the reasons that Cal Poly is not a university. It really set me straight.

It's quite a relief, after five years of college, to finally find out the purpose of it all — wearing shirts emblazoned with your school name (I often forget where I am attending school), attending football games and having big Greek letters on one's shirt.

Silly me . . . I always thought the purpose was to educate oneself. Now I can dump all those boring textbooks and re-live high school! (And maybe someday I'll even be able to drink on campus and not have to go all that way to Higuera to hit a bar.)

California Senate committee passes bill

Cap on CSU fee increases may become law in June

By MARGARET BARRETT
Special to the Daily

A bill which would guarantee a 10 percent cap on fee increases for California college students was passed unanimously for the second time by a California Senate committee and is expected to be passed by the entire Senate when brought to the floor sometime next week.

Curtis Richards, director of the California State Students Association, a lobbying group for the California State University System, said there were no "no" votes by the eight members of the Senate Appropriations Committee when they voted on Senate Bill 195.

"It's likely it will get out of the Senate with a breeze," Richards said.

Since the bill has not received any "no" votes when voted on in the Senate Education Committee and the Senate Appropriations Committee, it has been recommended that the bill be placed on the consent calendar, which is reserved for non-controversial issues, when brought to the Senate floor next week.

The bill, which was introduced in January by Senator Ken Maddy, R-Fresno, proposes to limit fee increases to no more than 10 percent per year and to provide enough financial aid to offset the fee increases. The proposed legislation would allow fees to increase only once a year with a 10-month advance notice.

After the bill is passed by the state Senate, it will then be voted on by the Subcommittee on Higher Education, a subcommittee of the Assembly Education Committee, sometime in late April or early May. Richards said he expects the bill will run into problems in the Assembly.

Some members of the subcommittee have expressed concern with the bill, Richards said. He was not sure if they had yet read the bill or talked to anyone about it.

If the subcommittee approves the bill and it is approved on the Assembly floor, it will then go to Governor Deukmejian, who has previously endorsed the bill, for his signature. Maddy expects that will be sometime in June.

sports. He added, "I go out and party a lot."

Mendes said the biggest problem at Cal Poly is the framework of the Administration. He is in favor of a plan to make students aware of where they should go if they have ideas or complaints for their elected officers. He said he would "hate to see the bowling alley go," but since the popularity of the sport has decreased he would be in favor of conversion to a weight room and aerobic room. He does not want the space used for offices.

Carroll, who wore faded jeans and a plaid short-sleeved shirt, compared himself to his "suit and tie" opponents by saying, "I'm not running against Steve Dunton or Mike Mendes; I'm running against a machine that says it can't solve our problems."

Though Carroll has not held a prior political office, he said he is qualified because of his experience owning his own business in Marin County and being on the forensics team at Cal Poly. For these reasons he can "spend student money and represent students publicly."

Poly AMA named outstanding in West

By LYNETTE FREDIANI
Staff Writer

The Cal Poly chapter of the American Marketing Association was named the outstanding AMA chapter of the West at the organization's international conference.

The award was announced at the Seventh Annual AMA Collegiate Conference held in New Orleans, Louisiana April 4-7.

"The club submitted an annual report outlining our activities throughout the year," said AMA club member Kim Lanum. The Cal Poly chapter increased its membership by 110 percent by growing to more than 200 members. The membership effort was instrumental in garnering the outstanding chapter award, said Lanum.

The three-day conference stressed chapter management and career development. Sixteen Cal Poly students attended.

Four chapter awards were given. "Outstanding chapter awards were given for the South, North, East and West regions," said Lanum.

Outstanding chapters were selected by the board of professional members of the AMA. Other conference events included presentations from Joseph A. Campana, the vice president of marketing for Chrysler Corporation.

A systems engineering manager from IBM and the chief executive officer of Consolidated Foods also made presentations at the conference.

Rec sports fundraiser set

A Monte Carlo night that includes gambling and prizes is being sponsored Sat. April 13 at 8 pm by Cal Poly OARS and Sigma Nu fraternity at the Achievement House near Cuesta College.

Tickets are $5 and all proceeds will benefit Ongoing Access to Recreational Sports said Terri Rebenstorf, director of OARS.

Each ticket includes $150 gambling money to play roulette, black jack, and craps. Additional money will also be on sale there. All winnings will be applied to prizes.

Tickets are available at the Cal Poly Recreational Sports office in UU 119A and at the door.

SEEING YOUR POTENTIAL

Just as a master diamond cutter can see the potential in an uncut stone, NEC can see the potential in the individual about to graduate from college.

Putting that belief into action has enabled us to become the third largest semiconductor manufacturer in the world. And we're growing stronger all the time.

For the emerging graduate we offer an environment that develops new facets to your current capabilities, which will take you from the novice to a top professional in the semiconductor field.

For instance, the growth opportunities at our Roseville facility (just outside Sacramento) are exceptional. This state-of-the-art VLSI manufacturing plant is the largest and most advanced water fab operation in the U.S. It supplements our successful Mountain View, California operation as well as our Technology Center in Natick, Massachusetts. This center, with over 80 engineers is a unique institution where semiconductor technologies developed in the U.S., Japan, and Europe are combined, enhanced, and applied to the needs of the U.S. market.

We're looking for dynamic people who respond to the challenge of putting their scholastic skills to the test. This is the opportunity to become a polished professional in the diverse world of NEC.

Schools lose $180 million as result of lottery delays

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. George Deukmejian said Tuesday he doesn't intend to give local schools any extra state dollars to make up for the $150 million to $180 million they are losing because of delays in starting the state lottery.

"We do not have any plan to do that," the Republican governor told a Capitol news conference in response to questions about making up for the lost lottery revenues.

Deukmejian repeated earlier estimates by interim lottery director Howard Varner that the first games start until "sometime in September," about six months after the March 22 start-up date mandated in the lottery initiative approved by voters last fall.

The lottery is expected to raise about $1 million per day in extra funds for local schools initially, eventually increasing to nearly $2 million per day as a wider variety of games are offered.

Deukmejian stressed that his proposed $10.9 billion support budget for local schools contains substantial increases apart from the lottery funds, which were designated by the initiative to be above and beyond any other school aid.

He also defended the slow pace of starting the lottery, which received a major setback last month when his initiative choice for director turned down the job because he said the $73,780 annual director's salary specified in the lottery initiative was too low.

Deukmejian said he believed the salary "will not be a major factor for everyone," and that the state "is proceeding very well with the lottery."

In an earlier news conference Tuesday, Assemblyman Richard Floyd, D-Hawthorne, who has repeatedly criticized Deukmejian's handling of the lottery, charged that the governor, who had opposed the lottery initiative "is disregarding the law ... by dragging his feet" implementing the lottery.

Deukmejian brushed aside Floyd's criticism, saying "one thing you can bet on in this state is there will be another press release from Dick Floyd."

"Either the governor is deliberately misleading the people or he is totally inept," said Floyd. "It really doesn't matter, though, which it is because every day the governor fails to put our state lottery into effect, California's public schools, colleges and universities lose more than $1.4 million in lottery revenues."

Women's rights in California Aggressive laws called for SACRAMENTO (AP) — Lt. Gov. Leo McCarthy, several legislators and about two dozen women's groups Tuesday threw their support behind a "broad and aggressive" legislative package designed to improve child care and deal with a variety of other problems faced by women and families.

But supporters acknowledged that the cost of the 25 bills, estimated by McCarthy at a couple of hundred million dollars, could force lawmakers to cut back their proposals or delay enactment beyond this year.

Also, two Republican legislators who attended a press conference with the Democratic lieutenant governor said they did not support all the measures, a sign that some of the proposals could face vetoes if they reach Republican Gov. George Deukmejian's desk.

"This is not all going to happen in the coming year," McCarthy said at a Capitol news conference. "What women want to see is some significant progress."

The measures, called the Women, Family and Work Legislative Package, includes bills to liberalize the state's income tax credit for child care expenses, provide after-school care for some children whose parents work, set safety and health standards to protect workers who use VDTs, and create a commission to study whether salaries of female-dominated state jobs should be raised.

Other measures would augment funding for domestic violence prevention programs, provide emergency loans for homemakers left destitute by the death of their spouses, allow employees to take a leave from work for up to a year to raise children, prohibit financial institutions from charging fees to cash public assistance checks, require financial institutions to offer customers free "baseline" checking accounts that permit five deposits and eight checks a month, and ban housing discrimination based on a buyer's or renter's source of income.

PG & E gas rates cut by one percent

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pacific Gas & Electric Co. asked the state Tuesday to reduce rates to residential gas customers by an average of $2.66 a month, passing on a $193 million price cut from PG&E's suppliers.

The utility had earlier asked the state Public Utilities Commission to lower gas prices by $27.2 million, or about 1 percent for residential customers, because of price reductions it had negotiated with California and Rocky Mountain gas suppliers.

In Tuesday's announcement, PG&E said it was increasing its refund request to $193 million because of further negotiated price reductions from California, Rocky Mountain and southwestern United States suppliers.

Residential customers would get a rate reduction of 5.8 percent, or $2.66 on the typical bill of $45.83 for 100 therms of gas a month, said PG&E spokesman Ron Rutkowski. He said the increase would average 5 percent for all customers.

The PUC is scheduled to hold a hearing on the request next week, Rutkowski said.

Last December the PUC approved a similar $193 million reduction in PG&E gas rates, but used about half the money to lower rates to industrial customers by 12 percent in order to lure back major industries that had switched from gas to lower-priced oil. Residential customers got about a 4 percent decrease.

Fire at abortion clinic now under investigation

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Federal and local arson investigators searched Tuesday for the cause of a $910,000 fire that damaged a women's clinic, a target of anti-abortion bomb threats, along with a restaurant and other businesses.

The second-story Feminist Women's Health Center, target of two bomb threats in January, was heavily damaged by the blaze late Monday along with the New Corina Restaurant, located on the ground floor.

Also damaged in the fire at the two-story brick building were a health food store and an outlet offering customized T-shirts. Damage to all businesses was estimated at $910,000, said fire department spokesman Jim Wells.

Arson investigators said Tuesday they had not yet determined the cause of the fire in the 6400 block of Hollywood Boulevard. There were reports that the blaze started in the restaurant kitchen, and also that small fires were seen throughout the building.

The ceiling collapsed over the kitchen of the restaurant, and investigators said they would have to dig through the rubble to see if the fire started there.

"We have no reason to believe at this point that it was arson," Eydie Berg, the clinic director, said Monday night. "It would be irresponsible to make that conclusion until we know the facts."

Federal Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agents were involved with the investigation because "we believe there may be a political issue," agency arson team supervisor John E. Kursteiner said Tuesday.

"So far, there is nothing to indicate anything out of the ordinary. Nothing, however, has been ruled out yet," said Bill Bisson of the fire department's arson section.

Surplus dealer pleads guilty in military thefts

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A military surplus dealer snagged in a government "sting" operation investigating thefts of military equipment has pleaded guilty to charges of receiving property stolen from Camp Pendleton.

Thomas Prutzman of Oceanside pleaded guilty Monday to two counts of receiving stolen property in a hearing before U.S. District Court Judge Howard Turrentine.

Prutzman faces a maximum sentence of 20 years in prison and a $20,000 fine.

His business, which included a wholesale division and Apollo Surplus in Oceanside, was described by federal authorities as the second largest surplus business in San Diego County.

Prutzman was one of 70 people arrested following a "sting" operation, known as Operation Rip-Stop.

In a joint effort, the FBI and Naval Intelligence set up a storefront called Golden State Surplus in Oceanside to check the theft of military equipment from the nearby Marine Corps base.

Federal agents said they bought an estimated $500,000 worth of stolen equipment from hundreds of Camp Pendleton Marines during an 18-month period.

Radiation death Court reinstates widow's suit

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A federal appeals court on Tuesday reinstated a suit by the widow of a Navy pilot allegedly exposed to radiation in Nagasaki, ruling that the government may be required to warn veterans of the known dangers of radiation.

The decision by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals was based on California law, which the court interpreted to require employers in some cases to warn their former employees of risks to which they were exposed while working.

The burden of telling veterans of the health dangers they faced from radiation exposure "would not, relatively speaking, have been substantial," and "there is reason to believe that the warning would have been of substantial value to its recipients," said the opinion by Judge Stephen Reinhardt.

The court had ruled in an earlier case that the government's immunity from suit by veterans for injuries caused by service-related activities did not bar a lawsuit for the failure to warn about dangers that were discovered after a veteran had been discharged.

Tuesday's ruling involved Irma Molsbergen, whose husband, John Martens Molsbergen, died of cancer in January 1981.

In her suit against the government, she charged that her husband's death was caused by his exposure to radiation in a mission at Nagasaki after the Japanese city had been hit by an atomic bomb in August 1945.

Mrs. Molsbergen said the government learned of the dangers of radiation exposure after Molsbergen's discharge from the Navy but did not warn him. She said the lack of a warning contributed to his death.

In another part of the suit, Mrs. Molsbergen accused the government of knowingly and intentionally exposing her husband to the dangers of radiation without his consent.

U.S. District Judge Samuel Conti dismissed the entire suit. He cited the so-called Feres doctrine, named for a 1950 U.S. Supreme Court ruling that prohibited veterans from suing the government for injuries suffered "in the course of activity incident to service."

Conti also said the suit for deliberate exposure to radiation amounted to an admission by Mrs. Molsbergen that the government had known of the dangers while Molsbergen was still in the service, so she could not also claim that the government learned of the dangers later and failed to warn him.

Scientist quits EPA; says methods miss pollutants

WASHINGTON (AP) — A scientist said Tuesday he has resigned from the Environmental Protection Agency because he fears bureaucratic battles will choke off action to track possible groundwater contamination at landfills used by the "Superfund" waste dump cleanup program.

William Myers, a geohydrologist who works as a program analyst, last summer inspected 22 of the 50 commercial landfills used by Superfund to dispose of waste taken from the abandoned dumps it is cleaning up.

He resigned, effective May 10, because "I feared I was going to be muzzled." He said he would seek work with a state environmental program somewhere in the West.

In his inspections for the EPA he said he found, among other things, that 79 percent were using monitoring methods that would miss half of some pollutants and only one was following its own monitoring plan.

Nothing was done because of "internal turf fights" among headquarters, program offices, states and regional offices, Myers said in a telephone interview.

Lee M. Thomas, then head of the Superfund program and now EPA administrator, ordered the task force for which Myers worked revived and separated from the program offices.

Myers said he has been ordered not to inspect any more sites, to communicate with others orally as much as possible and to write only informal as opposed to formal memos to regional offices.

The regional offices have been given overall responsibility for inspecting all 50 sites, an effort supposed to start this June, Myers said.

"I'm told headquarters is going to have the stamp of approval. I have fears this is not going to be true," Myers said.

Myers' boss, Alfred Lindsey, said Myers was "a talented guy. His technical input was important. We're going to miss him."

Visit the U.U. Travel Center — because . . .

IT'S BETTER IN THE BAHAMAS

By SUSAN EDMONDSON
Staff Writer

Sure, spring break was great. Mazatlan was a blast, but now it's time to hit the books, right? Wrong.

Now is the time to start planning ahead for summer vacation, and the Travel Center can help students make all the necessary arrangements.

"Whatever a normal travel agency can do on an international basis, we can do that also — as long as people plan ahead for it," said Linda Field, manager of the Travel Center.

The center has eight trips planned for this summer — everything from biking through New England, a one-week cruise through the Bahamas on a private yacht, or a week of sunshine and rum punch in Jamaica.

Jason Seymour, a former student, went to Jamaica last year on a trip organized by the Travel Center. "Jamaica was a blast," he said. "You're right on the water. They've got bars right on the water. It's total value for the money. You just can't beat it."

"If you're going over there to get wild and crazy it's the place to go," Seymour added. "Those Jamaicans will just get you ripped. Anybody who's got an outgoing personality would really enjoy it."

Seymour said activities were loosely planned, allowing students the freedom to do whatever they wanted. He said the ocean was so warm that he went swimming at midnight.

"This luau we had was incredible," Seymour said. "For $35, all day, they had snorkeling, they had windsurfing, glass-bottom boats, they had sailing . . . all the food you could eat — and that included mangos, Jamaican bananas, alcohol, rum punch . . ."

Field said the Travel Center tries to limit the number of people on each of the trips so people can get to know each other. Most trips have about 10 or 15 students. She advised that students begin to plan immediately because space is limited. The following trips will be offered by the Travel Center this summer:

•Rio de Janeiro — A one-week trip in June led by a native Brazilian.

•Bahamas — A one-week cruise in June on a 57-foot private yacht with ports of call including the Bimini Chain, Berry Islands and Nassau. The $679 fee includes round trip airfare and all meals. Some activities include snorkeling, cook-outs on the beach, the opportunity to learn how to sail, scuba diving, gambling at casinos in Nassau and Paradise Island, and shopping in Nassau. Space is limited and an informational meeting will be held tonight at 6:00 in the Travel Center.

•New England — A three-week biking trip in August and September. Students will visit historical sights and see the fall colors. An informational meeting will be held in the Travel Center at 6:00 p.m. on Tuesday, April 23.

•Europe — A two-week trip in June. Countries included in the excursion are England, Belgium, Holland and Germany. At 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday, April 16 there will be an informational meeting in the Travel Center.

•San Juan Islands — A three-week biking trip in June.

•Hong Kong/Tokyo — Ten days in July.

•Yucatan — A one-week trip in June. An informational meeting will be held in the Travel Center at 6:00 on Wednesday, April 17.

•Jamaica — A one-week trip in August enjoying the warm waters of Jamaica, possibly during the Sunsplash Festival. An informational meeting will be held in the Travel Center at 6:00 p.m. on Thursday, April 18.

If students prefer to plan their trips on their own, the Travel Center can make all the arrangements for international travel. They book flights for students and can arrange for Eurail passes, hostel cards and International student ID cards.

These ID cards entitle students to discounts on some airlines, entrance to some museums and castles, and $25,000 in medical insurance while traveling. The card costs only $8.

"We are not concerned with making a profit here to survive," said Field. Most travel agencies won't deal with charter companies, Field said, but the Travel Center tries to keep costs as low as possible for students traveling on a budget.

Jacqui Latzer, an interior design student, recently went on a trip to the Yucatan sponsored by the Travel Center. She described the excursion as a "magical, mystical experience," even though she did get seasick some nights.

Latzer added that the tour guides from the Travel Center made the trip a more relaxing experience. "They did all the leg work so you can enjoy your vacation," she said. "When you're a stranger in a strange land it's good to travel in numbers."

GRANT SNAFFER

Golfers again will battle over Masters title

Personal crisis rocks Crenshaw

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The pressure's off for Ben Crenshaw. Masters week is here.

He's been waiting for it for a year, coming to defend his cherished title with his game in tatters, the product of self-imposed pressure and personal problems.

"There hasn't been a day go by that I haven't thought about the Masters," said Crenshaw, who will defend his title this week in the 49th gathering of golf's elite on the rolling hills of Augusta National.

A student and recognized authority on the history of golf, the lore and legends of the game, Crenshaw was, quite possibly, the most appreciative winner ever produced by the Masters.

It was, he said, a dream come true.

But, later in the year it assumed nightmarish proportions when an amicable divorce turned acrimonious.

"I went from the absolutely highest emotional level of my life to the lowest," Crenshaw said.

"I don't want to blame anything on the divorce. I don't think I should do that. But I'm a very emotional person. It hit me very hard. I had to reassess things, myself, my life," he said.

He played infrequently, and with indifferent success, following the Masters. He went home last fall and, alone, brooded. He lost weight to the point that he appeared gaunt.

In nine starts this season, he failed to qualify for the final two rounds six times. He's won $11,810 for the year. He hasn't been a factor in the chase for a tournament title since last May. He went from seventh in the Tour's putting statistics to 127th.

"I've been putting pressure on myself to perform. People, friends, fans, have expected me to play better. That's pressure, too," he said.

A recent, 2-week break from competition "helped me get things sorted out."

"I'm a little more settled now. I feel better about things in my own mind," he said.

Kite flies just short of big victory

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Stephanie Kite, age 2½ at the time, was sitting on her daddy's lap explaining one of her adventures.

This one involved a piece of candy that stuck in her throat and necessitated Stephanie being up-ended and slapped on the back.

"Did that ol' candy slip down your throat, Stephanie?" asked daddy.

There was a sigh, a shrug, and the solemn, philosophic reply: "Some days they just do that."

And daddy Tom knows all about those days, the days things just happen like that, the good things turn to bad, when the best effort is not good enough.

He, too, takes a philosophic approach.

"I can shoot 67. There's nothing in the world I can do about somebody else shooting 65," Kite said.

He was in position, some years ago, to win the Hall of Fame Classic. But, during the last round, his ball moved. No one else saw it. Kite did. He called a penalty stroke on himself. He lost the tournament by one stroke.

In 1982 Ed Fiori beat him in a playoff with a 60-foot birdie putt.

Last year, Kite was in position, as he so often is, to win the Ben," Kite said.

He finished sixth, the eighth time in nine years he had placed sixth or better in the Masters, including a runner-up position in 1983. He also was second in the 1978 British Open and was fourth in the 1981 PGA.

But he's never won a major.

The hard-working little man,

'I can shoot 67. There's nothing in the world I can do about somebody else shooting 65.'

Masters. But Ben Crenshaw held a 65-foot putt and Kite hit a 7-iron shot into Rae's Creek on No. 12.

"People think I blew it when I went in the water on 12. That's not so. I lost because I missed some crucial putts in the early rounds. Still, I played well enough to win. I have no control over the fact that Ben made a 65-foot putt on the 10th hole. He's in 3-putt range and he makes the putt. Well, that's one of the game's most dedicated grinders, has done almost everything else. He's won seven titles and more than $2.3 million in a 14-season career. He won the Vardon Trophy for the low stroke average on the Tour in both 1981 and 1982. He led the Tour in money-winnings in 1981. He won the 1979 Bob Jones award for sportsmanship. He has represented, with distinction, the United States in Ryder Cup, World Cup and U.S. vs. Japan competition.

Poly offense does a dance called the Waltz

Three-year starter after walking on, right fielder eyes baseball career

BY JANET HASEROT
Staff Writer

It began at the age of eight. It's what little boys did. This sport called baseball. It attracts, expands and engulfs its admirers. One of its best catches is - Monty Waltz.

Monty Waltz

The starting right fielder is in his fourth season with the Mustangs. Waltz came to Cal Poly in 1980 after graduating from Los Altos High School. As a freshman, he walked onto a Mustang team full of seniors.

Waltz red-shirted that first season.

"It was the best way to start. It gave me time to grow up, get stronger and better, with no pressure of having to play," said Waltz.

By his sophomore year he was starting in the outfield on scholarship. He led the team in most of the offensive categories: batting average, hitting, and RBI's. Up until playing for Cal Poly, Monty had played first base. He said he's glad he is able to perform both positions as it makes him a more versatile player.

Monty's performance has only improved since that grand beginning. He is currently batting .453 and is tied for the record of most home runs hit in one season with 10. With 23 season games remaining, not only is Monty striving to break the home run record, but is on record pace for RBI's as well.

"He's made tremendous improvement over last year," said head coach Steve McFarland. "Monty's been very consistent throughout the whole season. He's had no real peaks or valleys.

Monty Waltz shows the form that has helped him hit .453 this year

Monty's matured into a total ball player with a professional attitude."

As an individual player Monty is pleased with his performance, but the team as a whole has been a disappointment to him. He feels that there is a lot of talent on the team but only certain players are turning in consistent performances.

"It's called 'controlled enthusiasm,'" said Monty. "You stay within your mental limits. Baseball is 90% mental. All of the sudden you start doing better and you start getting more confident. It breeds success."

"We need it from all people at all times," said Monty.

The future for Monty provides options so he has only to sit back and wait. "Any person at this level would be lying if they told you they didn't want to be drafted," said Monty.

A job offer at Arther Andersen & Co. in the consulting division awaits him upon graduation. But if an offer from a professional team is made that is worthwhile, then Monty says he'd love to take it for "however long it proves beneficial to him."

Oakland player arrested, must stay behind

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — His teammates were in Seattle for the start of the 1985 baseball season, but Oakland A's pitcher Mike Norris remained behind Tuesday following his arrest on suspicion of driving under the influence.

The 12-year veteran was ordered back into a drug and alcohol rehabilitation program and barred from team activities by the A's management following the arrest early Sunday at a housing project in Albany that is part of the University of California.

The incident comes less than two months after Norris was arrested on suspicion of cocaine possession and several misdemeanors. At that time, he entered a drug treatment center in San Diego. He was still an outpatient at that center at the time of his latest arrest, the team said.

Sandy Alderson, the A's vice president of baseball operations, said Norris would not be allowed to join the A's in Seattle and that the team has asked that Norris be placed on the rehabilitation list as provided in the major league joint drug program.

"Until the current situation is resolved, Mike Norris will not participate in any activity as an active member of the Oakland A's," Alderson said.

He was booked on a misdemeanor count of suspicion of driving under the influence, and released.

A team effort makes Poly No. 6 in nation

Softball teams stays in same spot

By Bruce Pinkleton
Staff Writer

Confidence and the will to win have proved to be a successful combination for the Cal Poly women's softball team.

After splitting a league double-header with Cal State

'We've found the desire and will to perform well'

Martindale

Northridge on Saturday, coach Denny Martindale's Mustangs returned home second in the California Collegiate Athletic Association.

The Mustangs are also ranked No. 6 in the latest NCAA Division II poll, the same as last week's ranking.

Saturday's opener, went 10-innings before Poly dropped a 2-1 decision to the Matadors.

In the nightcap, the Mustangs bounced back for a 2-0 victory.

The split leaves the Mustangs with a 7-3 CCAA mark and a 20-14 overall record.

Pitcher Randie Hill, who pitched both games, moved her personal record to 13-7 with a four-hit shutout in the second game.

"Saturday's performance was a good performance," said Martindale, considering that Northridge has been the national champions for the past two years.

Martindale has been pleased with the way the team has been performing for most of the season.

"We've found the desire and will to perform well," said Martindale.

Part of the reason for the team's success this season has been pitcher Randie Hill, a freshman from San Jose.

"She's a pitcher that gets better every time she throws," said Martindale.

But Martindale prefers to credit the team as a whole for the season's success.

"We've pulled together very

Cal Poly is now
7-3 in league,
20-14 overall

well as a team," said Martindale. "We're not afraid to play anybody...we have the desire to go out and want to beat somebody."

The Mustangs will get their next chance to beat somebody when they host La Verne Friday at 1:30 p.m. for a non-conference double-header. Sacramento State will be in town Saturday for another 1:30 p.m. twinbill.

Tulane senior says the case on him fake; will plead innocent

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The point shaving case against Tulane center John "Hot Rod" Williams is a fabrication based on testimony by "drug addicts," the lawyer representing the 6-foot-10 star said Monday.

Mike Green of Chicago, who joined Williams' defense team on Monday, said his client will plead innocent. "There's nothing to plead guilty to," he said.

"The man gave his best efforts in every game he ever played for Tulane," he said.

Williams, an all-Metro Conference selection deemed a cinch first-round pick by the National Basketball Association, is one of three players accused of controlling the outcome of home games against Southern Mississippi and Memphis State in February.

The other two are sophomore swingman David Dominique and senior point guard Bobby Thompson.

The indictment also mentions a conspiracy to shave points in the game at Virginia Tech on Feb. 1 although no specifics were included.

Dominique's lawyer, Edward Castaing Jr., said Monday that his client also will plead innocent at arraignment next week.

Green said the state's case is based on testimony from three people who admitted acquiring drugs from a fourth person also involved in the case.

"I have found in several of the cases I've tried that it's hard to determine what drug addicts mean from time to time," he said.

"The only thing I've read (about Williams) is what drug addicts say about him," he said.

He also said he was irritated by leaks from the district attorney's office and would seek a gag order if such leaks continued to be published.

Earlier, a member of Williams' defense team said they were working without compensation.

Green would not confirm that.

He said Williams didn't even know what "point shaving" meant. Point shaving means winning by a smaller margin than the established betting line or losing by a bigger margin.

Rec Sports offers low-cost classes

Leisure Mini-classes are being offered again this quarter by the Cal Poly Recreational Sports program. These are low cost, non-credit classes taught by students for students, said the coordinator of mini-classes.

Coordinator Laura Barney said scheduled classes this quarter include: Aerobics—classes scheduled at various times provide a well balanced make-up of aerobic exercises that are fairly rigorous in nature, as well as including the important elements of warm-up and cool-down. These classes run for eight weeks. Jazzercise is another exercise class offered that emphasizes quality and safety.

Sign Language will be taught in exact English, including fingerspelling, colors, holidays, feelings, thoughts and more.

Classical guitar will teach students to read music and play guitar in the classical form, beginning with basics to ensure a solid foundation. Style and technique will gradually be developed as students learn various compositions. A beginning popular quitar class will also be taught.

Social dance will enable students to learn the classic dances of waltz, fox trot, tango and others. No partners are even needed to participate.

Country western dance will teach students various moves to be a successful country dancer. Both a beginning and intermediate class will be offered.

Kenpo Karate will teach students the basic movements of karate and help develop an appreciation for the arts in general. Students will have the option of testing for the first rank, yellow belt, at the end of the quarter.

Massage teaches students the basic Swedish massage technique, and an orientation of other types of massage. Yoga will be used in the class to teach basic relaxation technique.

Masters swim workout will include specialized workouts for all types of swimmers, ranging from beginners to training triathletes.

To sign-up for any of these courses or to get more information, contact the Rec. Sports office in UU 119A or call 546-1366.

Polo team trounces Texas team in first round match

The Cal Poly women's polo team, behind nine goals by Jaime Berpo Monday, defeated Texas Tech 15-1 in the first round of the intercollegiate championship.

Sue Callender added six goals and the Mustangs kept Texas Tech from scoring until the last quarter of the game.

The game became "sticky," said the Cal Poly coach, meaning players had a tendency to bunch up.

"They played good as a team," said Sue Sally Hale. "They did really well on the horses."

The Mustangs play Skidmore next, needing to win every match in the single-elimination tournament.

One key to the Monday game, said Callender, was the practicing before with the team's coach and the scouting of Hale.

The horses for the matches are put in a pool, so teams don't know which horses they will ride.

The teams switch horses during the match and Callender said Hale's scouting of the horses gave Cal Poly an advantage.

"We really give the credit to her for the win," said Callender. Cal Poly hasn't been able to scout Skidmore, said Hale.

"I don't know how they are," said Hale. "I have never seen them."

Rose chasing Cobb's record

Can break it before anniversary

On Aug. 26, newlyweds Pete and Carol Rose will celebrate their first wedding anniversary. Rose, player-manager of the Cincinnati Reds, has said he would like to enhance the celebration by breaking Ty Cobb's all-time hits record on that date.

Some quick mathematics show it could be done. Obviously, there are prerequisites, such as health and performance, but Rose does not even need to match his statistical averages over the past five years to meet the deadline.

Cobb had 4,191 hits in his career; Rose, after two hits in the Reds opener Monday, has 4,099. He needs 93 hits to break the record, which has stood since 1928.

Over the past five years, Rose has averaged 3.679 at-bats per game and one hit in every 3.568 at-bats, so he would need 92.13 games to get 93 hits. Over the same period, Rose has played in an average of 86.79 percent of his team's games, or 140.6 games per year. That means the Reds would have to play 106.15 games before Rose can break the record.

The Reds play their 106th and 107th games on Aug. 8-9 in Los Angeles. On Aug. 26, the Reds play St. Louis at Cincinnati in their 123rd game of the season, barring rainouts.

It may be unreasonable, however, to expect Rose to play in 140 of his team's 162 games this season, although as player-manager he can write his name on the lineup card every day until he gets fired, if he wants. But since Rose turns 44 next Sunday, he probably won't be able to match his five-year stats for durability.

Exactly what, then, would it take to break the record by Aug. 26?

If, for example, Rose plays an average of three games per week with four at-bats per game, he would need to bat .396 to reach the record hit on or about Aug. 26, some 20 weeks into the season.

If he played five times a week, which is still slightly below his five-year average, he would need to bat only .238. The catch obviously is that if he's batting only .238, he almost certainly won't play five games a week.

Rose's best bet to enliven his first anniversary celebration would be to play about four games a week, average four at-bats per game and hit .297. That would put him right on target.

The same type of statistics indicate that two other players — Rod Carew of the California Angels and Tom Seaver of the Chicago White Sox — also are within range of career milestones this year.

Carew is 71 hits away from 3,000. Seaver is 12 victories away from 300. Both are considered Hall of Fame statistics.

Carew, 39, has averaged 142.8 hits in each of his last five seasons. Over that same period, he has averaged 3.73 at-bats per game and one hit in every 3.12 at-bats while hitting .320. Thus, he would need 59.38 games to reach the 3,000 plateau. However, since Carew averages only 119.4 games per season — or 73.7 percent — the Angels, by that figuring, must play 80.56 games for Carew to get his 71 hits.

That would put him at the magic mark on July 4 or 5 at home against Boston.

The math on Seaver needs to be done two ways, but either way, it's close.

With a record of 288-181, Seaver's career winning percentage is .614, but he now is 40 years old. Over his last five seasons, Seaver has a winning percentage of .525, but that includes an atypically poor year in 1982 with Cincinnati when he was 5-13. So, neither percentage is really ideal.

In the past five years, he has gotten a decision in 73.7 percent of his starts, or an average of nearly three decisions in every four starts. Thus, with a winning percentage of .525, he would need 31 starts to win 12 games. With a .614 winning mark, he would need 27 starts.

Seaver has averaged 27.4 starts over the past five seasons, but he had 34 in 1983 with the New York Mets and 33 last season with the White Sox.

Figuring that he pitches an average of every fifth day and doesn't miss a single start, he could win No. 12 on Sept. 8 at Texas using the higher winning percentage, or Sept. 29 at Oakland using the lower figure.

Boxers fight for attention, Hagler defends his title

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Sugar Ray Leonard and Donald Curry, past and present welterweight champions, feel that a desire to look great will serve as a major spur to Marvin Hagler when he fights Thomas Hearn, another ex-welterweight champion, next Monday night.

'For Hagler to knock Hearn out will get him the recognition he has always wanted.'

Leonard

"For Hagler to knock Hearn out will get him the recognition he has always wanted," said the retired Leonard, who got major recognition when he stopped Hearn in the 14th round and won the undisputed welterweight title here Sept. 16, 1981.

Curry, the World Boxing Association welterweight champion, saw Hagler working out at Palm Springs, Calif., last month when Curry was training for a non-title fight.

"He looked sharp," said Curry of Hagler, who will defend the undisputed middleweight title against Hearn, the World Boxing Council super welterweight champion, in a scheduled 12-round bout in a 15,088-seat outdoor stadium at Caesars Palace.

"He wants to show the world, he's the best," added Curry.

Hagler's first major attention-getting fight in a 60-2-2 career that started in 1973 was his defense here Nov. 10, 1983, against Roberto Duran, the former lightweight and WBC welterweight champion, who at the time held the WBA junior middleweight (super welterweight) title.

But Duran seemed to get more media praise than Hagler did. Hagler was criticized in some quarters for not knocking out a fading Duran, who, it seems here, fought more to last than to win.

Then Hagler lost what would have been the biggest money match of his career and could have been his biggest attention-getter when Leonard retired again after a one-fight comeback against Kevin Howard May 11, 1984.

Hagler will be making his 11th defense.

"This is going to be the highlight of Marvin Hagler's career," said Pat Petronelli, who manages Hagler along with his brother Goody, who also trains.

"This is the fight he wanted."

But it's also a fight Hearn has wanted. He also feels he has paid his dues and has not received the public recognition due a fighter with a 40-1 record in a pro career that began in 1977. Hearn has scored 34 knockouts, while Hagler has scored 50.

'He (Hagler) wants to show the world, he's the best.'

Curry

Hearn missed his shot at the kind of recognition that extends beyond boxing when he was stopped by Leonard while leading on all three official score cards.
