Poly wrestling coach resigns after 23 years

Wrestling coach Vaughan Hitchcock resigned Monday night after 23 years of coaching at Cal Poly.

Hitchcock, a tenured full professor, will continue to teach in the physical education department.

One big reason for resigning, said Hitchcock, is the amount of paperwork and red tape required.

"It's more work than I can do," said Hitchcock. "I've done it for 23 years."

After coaching for 30 years, he added that the resignation will give him more time to spend with his family.

"Instead of two full-time jobs, I'll just do one."

If the right offer came along, Hitchcock said he would consider it.

"If something interesting and exciting came along," he said, "I would consider."

He has won more than 75 percent of his matches in his 23 years as wrestling coach, finishing with a losing record three times: 1981, '84 and '85.

His career record at Cal Poly is 353-330-4 and his teams have won 18 individual titles. Sixty-seven players were named All-American.

In his 11 seasons of coaching at the NCAA Division I level, Poly had two national championships, 29 All-Americans and placed sixth in the nation as a team in 1976.

The Mustangs finished No. 11 in the country this year, despite a 9-13 dual meet record.

The team was missing wrestlers at several weight classes and struggled in dual meets, but did well in tournaments.

Cal Poly will maintain the same budget next year for the wrestling program, said athletic director Ken Walker. The team also has no plans to move from Division I to Division II, but is looking into joining the Pacific Coast Athletic Association.

"Vaughan (Hitchcock) has volunteered to assist us in the transition," said Walker. "Vaughan is very dedicated to wrestling and Cal Poly."

"We will begin immediately a search for a coach who can handle a top-level Division I program."

Wrestler Jordan Cunniff has wrestled for Hitchcock two years and said the program will not be the same.

"He is the driving force," said Cunniff.

Hitchcock was the 52nd coach inducted into the Helms Amateur Wrestling Hall of Fame. He coached the United States Greco-Roman wrestling team in the 1976 Olympic Games.

Vice presidential candidates

Reichel, Sweeney seek ASI position

By SUSAN EDMONDSON
Staff Writer

Two men are running for ASI vice president in next week's election: Mark Reichel and John Sweeney. The vice president serves as chair of the Student Senate.

The ASI election will take place Wednesday and Thursday next week. Last year just 13 percent of eligible voters cast ballots in the election.

Both vice presidential candidates talked to Mustang Daily about their campaigns and their viewpoints on some of the issues facing Cal Poly students.

MARK REICHEL

As a student senator for the School of Communicative Arts and Humanities, Mark Reichel has worked this year on the formation of a new student opinion profile.

Reichel, a political science junior, served as vice president of the Communicative Arts and Humanities School Council and was a member of the Pre-Law Club. This year he is a member of the General Education and Breadth Committee, the Sexual Harassment Committee and the Academic Commission.

He said he hopes to have a new Instructional Evaluation Report completed by Winter or Spring Quarter next year. "The Student Opinion Profile wasn't a great success two years ago when they had that," he said.

"What we'd like to do is do the most professional, the most reliable survey possible so it would have the broadest acceptance by the faculty and the student body. Therefore, we've had to move a little bit slower on it, unfortunately. We've had to take time out to make it a better package."

Reichel said he would like to make students more informed about the possibility of a Rec Sports Facility. "I don't think it was packaged properly last time," he said. "I don't think they understood all the ramifications of the Rec Sports Facility, the advantages and the disadvantages."

"I really don't see it ever being passed here on a student referendum where they have to pay for it in advance."

Reichel said the possibility exists that the Rec Sports Facility could be built without charging students until after its completion.

JOHN SWEENEY

Organizing a senate meeting in the dorms was one of John Sweeney's accomplishments this year as a student senator for the School of Science and Math.

Sweeney, a civil engineering sophomore, serves as chair of the ASI Ad-Hoc Committee and is a member of the Science and Math School Council. He is also state secretary of the California Junior Holstein Association and a member of Los Lecheros.

Sweeney said the dorm meeting was successful, and that the Student Senate plans to continue dorm meetings each year. More than 100 dorm residents attended the meeting.

"I hope it encouraged them to at least find out about student government and perhaps become involved and maybe get a little bit better voter turnout," Sweeney said.

Improving community relations would be one of Sweeney's priorities if elected vice president. "We can improve community relations and that's a start at easing some of the tensions," he said.

"I think Good Neighbor Day has just been an excellent program that can generate good will between the community and the college and hopefully alleviate some of the problems."

Sweeney said his top priority would be to put the issue of the proposed Rec Sports Facility on the ballot as soon as possible. "I feel that it should be built," he said. "The facilities now are grossly inadequate. We have to look down the road and plan for the future."

Panetta: Congress faces tough issues

By MARY ANNE TALBOTT
Staff Writer

The budget, tax reform and foreign policy will be the key issues for Congress during the next few months, Congressman Leon Panetta, D-Carmel Valley, told a political science class Tuesday afternoon.

Panetta spoke to Dr. David George's American and California Government class. About 50 students attended, with several standing in the doorway to listen in.

The main problem with the budget is controlling the deficit, Panetta said. Deficit spending could reach $300 billion over the next three years.

"If they (Congress) continue to escalate it the way they are, we expect by 1989 to pay 43 cents of every taxpayer dollar just on interest," he said.

With almost half of all tax dollars paying for interest only, there will be a greater question of priorities, Panetta said that while the issue now is whether to spend more on Social Security or MX missiles, the issue in 1989 could be which to keep.

"There are only three ways to deal with the deficit," Panetta said. The first is to control defense spending, which uses 30 percent of the $920 billion national budget.

The second way is to control the growth of entitlements like Social Security, agricultural programs, Medicare and programs for the poor. Panetta said that about 46 percent of the budget is spent on these programs.

The third way is to raise taxes to meet expenditures. "All three of these have to be addressed," he said.

Because the Reagan administration is opposed to cutting military spending or raising taxes, and the Democrats don't want to cut entitlements, he said that coming to a budget agreement will be difficult.

Panetta said that Congress is concerned with reforming the tax system. He said that over the years, tax laws have turned into "a jungle of loopholes."

"Everybody loves tax reform until you discover that your favorite deduction is being eliminated," he said. He added that there is so much special interest opposition to each suggested tax reform, changes could take years.

Foreign policy, both in the areas of defense and Central America, will also be a major issue in Congress, Panetta said.

Over half of the defense budget is spent on research and procurement of weapons. "It's a

Before speaking at Cal Poly Tuesday, Congressman Leon Panetta spoke at a luncheon at Sebastian's Restaurant.

Panetta addressed an audience of about 50 people on several issues including natural resources and offshore drilling, the national budget, tax reform, Medical and Medicaid.

He said that he doesn't think it's necessary to cut down on growth and progress, but that what we still have needs to be protected.

"The coastline is the most attractive area of the county — maybe the world," he said. "Big Sur and the Pismo Beach area are the same as Yellowstone and Yosemite as far as I'm concerned and I'll be damned if they're going to put oil rigs off the coast of Big Sur."

The audience applauded most of Panetta's statements and was given a chance to ask questions following his presentation.

One question concerned the issue of medical care to which Panetta replied, "You will not see any changes in existing health care programs. There will be limits imposed on fees, though."

Other questions concerned hospitals, user fees and sewage and waste.

The luncheon had to be cut short because of time constraints. Panetta ended the meeting by encouraging people to work together and insisting that individuals can make a difference.

"Nobody said a democracy would be easy," he said.

CSU group: We're fighting for press freedom

On March 8, 1985 legislation was introduced to the State Legislature which should have legislators thinking about some basic rights.

The bill, AB 1720, was introduced by Assemblyman Dan Hauser, R-Humboldt, as a result of an incident involving a Humboldt State University student.

Adam Truitt, editor of the Humboldt State Lumberjack, exercised his First Amendment rights by running an unsigned editorial endorsing Walter Mondale in the 1984 election. The adviser to the Lumberjack suspended Truitt from his position.

The conflict here is abominable and unreasonable: Truitt was enjoying a basic right while at the same time violating the California Administrative Code.

Since his suspension, Truitt has filed lawsuits against the California State University Board of Trustees and against the Lumberjack adviser. Assemblyman Hauser was contacted by Lumberjack students to draft and introduce what became AB 1720, co-authored by Barry Keene, D-Elk.

AB 1720 would hand to CSU campus newspapers full First Amendment protection by amending the California Administrative Code, Title 5, which currently reads:

"...Funds of an auxiliary organization shall be used for purposes consistent with Board of Trustees and campus policy, and shall not be used...to support or oppose any candidate for public office, whether partisan or not, or to support or oppose any issue before the voters of this state or any subdivision thereof or any city, municipality, or local government entity of any kind." (Section 42403).

As laboratories for training future professional newspeople, CSU campus newspapers are guaranteed some rights under the free press provision of the First Amendment: campus newspapers are free to be accountable for their inaccuracies; they are free to be responsible for the quality of the news product; they are free to be sued for libel.

The campus newspapers have visibly taken on all of the responsibilities, and have generally handled them well. Dealing with the responsibility is the most thorough method to effectively train these students.

We need to be guaranteed full responsibility and full rights as the student press, the press that will soon be the professional press.

AB 1720 is going to hearing with the Assembly Education Subcommittee on Higher Education Tuesday, April 16.

The Mustang Daily joins the Cal Poly Pomona Post News, Chico State Orion, Cal State Dominguez Hills Bull's Eye, Cal State Fullerton Daily Titan, Cal State Hayward Pioneer, Cal State Long Beach Daily Forty-Niner, Cal State Los Angeles University Times, Cal State Northridge Daily Sundial, Fresno State Daily Collegian, San Diego State Daily Aztec, San Francisco State Golden Gater, San Francisco State Phoenix, San Jose State Spartan Daily and Sacramento State Hornet in support of the Lumberjack, Adam Truitt and AB 1720.

We agree that the CSU student press should be a truly free press.

Dorm life vs. prison life: is there a difference

Editors note: Guest opinion writer, Peter Wierzbicki, is a freshman economics major and has fun comparing dorm life with prison life. His views do not necessarily reflect those of the Mustang Daily Editorial Board.

According to the Webster Dictionary, the university is "an institution of higher learning authorized to confer degrees in various special fields (as theology, law and medicine) as well as you when it is time to eat. You are given no choice on what to eat or when to eat. The food served will change even the strongest to value the outside more. Contrary to most beliefs, the dormitories are not a place to have fun or excitement, but rather a prison where you will be conditioned into a mature young adult.

The student living quarters can be mistaken for a prison cell. When first walking through the punishment as you will receive. This way you can have mutual interests.

Because each floor contains 17 rooms, there are 33 fellow inmates, whom you must learn to cooperate with. You try to get on the good side of the tougher people and also get along with all the others. One thing you must do is to share a bathroom with all 33 students and about 1,000 ants. The bathroom, accommodating only 10 to 15 people, is a problem because everyone takes their showers at the same time. By the first week, you wish you could go back to the luxuries of a private bathroom back home.

You're finally out of the house with no parental rules to follow. But quickly finding out that there are more and more rules to abide by. Also, instead of having only two people to watch for, there are many guards employed at the institution. To control the inmates, each floor is assigned a resident adviser. He watches out for anything that goes against policy and then reprimands the culprit. As in prison, the resident adviser reports to the warden — the resident director. He sets the rules and watches over the entire complex. He also deals out the punishment to the criminals. Now realizing that not only must you live in a chicken coop, you must also live by rules that are set by people whose job it is to look for any slight wrong-doing.

The place where you feel most like a person who must pay his debt to society is the dining complex. First of all, you must eat your meals within the certain times permitted. The meal to be served has been predetermined weeks before and was the same meal served within the previous week. What is served is made from industrial food products, a lower form of food than generic. If it is not bad enough that you must sleep with starch, every meal has been heavily starched, just to make sure that you get enough carbohydrates for the next day's work. A prime example is the soups, where the broth is not thin but a thick cream. The once green vegetables are always overcooked, bland, soggy and cold. Every meat is either processed or heavily grinded. The meat, once you cut away the fat, is also tasteless and as tough as leather soles on penny loafers.

To receive this gracious meal, you must present your card that has your identification number and your mug shot. Since there are at least 1,000 others, so it seems, the wait is long. Once getting to the food, the attendant slaps the food onto your plate. You stare at it like it is some form of alien nourishment, knowing that it can't be food for humans. Entering the dining room, you notice that all the other students look like cattle being fed for slaughter. More guards carefully look around the tables to make sure no one steals any knives or tries to provoke anything. Occasionally, people from the outside, visiting and eating at the dining complex, want to see if everyone is being treated up to human standards. Of course, on these days, the best meals are served. When leaving, you are carefully looked over by the guards at the door to make sure you haven't stolen anything. Once you have left, a feeling you get closely resembles the sensation you would have if you had swallowed a brick. The dining complex with its 50 tables lined up in columns and rows, the guards watching over, the blank white walls, the basic schoolroom tiled floor, the many inmates eating, and the hideous food serves to be part of the punishment that college dorm-life inflicts on you.

Once the sentence is up, you realize that you have been conditioned to cope with constant social pressures. You entered as an immature, greedy, self-centered teenager and you leave as a more mature, appreciative, cooperative, young adult or that is what is supposed to happen to you. But like prison not all criminals are rehabilitated.

Reader viewpoint

in the arts and sciences generally." I personally believe that college is an institution where your parents can send you to be punished for the way you have acted during your teenage years. What your parents want to do is make you learn to appreciate them more. There is no better way to do this than to send you to live in an on-campus dormitory, where you will have to learn to share a small cubicle with a total stranger. You will have to abide by the rules of the dormitory, which are usually stricter than your previous home rules. You will also be under constant surveillance by dormitory guards. The worst part of dorm life is the punishment inflicted on door, you see a cold, white room about the size of a cheap motel room. The cement ceiling hovers over as though it is moving down upon you. There is one window and one door. The only escape is through the door, for the window is permanently attached. There are two of you sharing one of these rooms, each receiving a mattress on top of a wrought-iron box spring. Laying on top of the mattress is folded linen, a pillow, and two industrial, synthetic blankets. The sheets are starched as heavily as collars on a dress shirt. There is a sheet exchange every Monday, so they can put more starch on them. Your roommate usually is someone who will be given the same

NY Times reporter to speak tonight

A reporter for the New York Times who served as a foreign correspondent in El Salvador will speak Thursday, April 11 at 8 p.m. in Chumash Auditorium.

Raymond Bonner was one of the first American journalists to report from behind the guerrilla lines in El Salvador. As a reporter for the New York Times, Bonner won awards and praise from his colleagues, but received harsh criticism from officials in Washington.

He is considered by fellow journalists as one of the few reporters with the courage to go out with the guerrillas, or enough guts to stand up to the U.S. Government.

He was recently awarded the Robert F. Kennedy Book Award for "Weakness and Deceit - U.S. Policy in El Salvador." In his book, Bonner documents the evolution of U.S. policy toward El Salvador, particularly the Carter and Reagan administrations.

The honor is awarded annually to authors who most faithfully reflect concerns for justice, equality and free democracy.

In addition to his work for the New York Times, Bonner has reported from Latin America for Newsweek, the Washington Post and the Wall Street Journal.

Advance tickets are $2.50 for students and senior citizens, and $3.50 for the general public. They can be purchased at Cheap Thrills, Boo Boo Records and the University Union ticket office.

very expensive process," he said, adding that often a project ends up costing over twice as much as originally contracted.

The rest of the budget is spent on maintenance and personnel. He said that the only way to keep spending down is to limit research and procurement.

Panetta used the recent congressional approval of MX missiles as an example of bad defense spending. "It's 90 percent vulnerable. It's the kind of system we should have discontinued a long time ago and we're still spending money on it."

Panetta said that the question in Central America will be whether or not to give $14 million in aid to the Contras. He said that over the years, the United States has given close to $100 million, "and it hasn't done us a lot of good."

While he does not approve of all Central American governments, he would like to see the U.S. work with them for peace, "rather than try to overthrow them." He said that this would not only be in our economic interest, but in the interest of world peace.

Panetta said that often students see futility in the process of government and that they feel like policies and decisions have no relation to individuals. He stressed that individuals can and do have an effect on the political system by writing letters to legislators and by organizing their efforts.

He encouraged students to take part in their government.

"Frankly, if you don't express yourself on the issues, there'll always be the $100,000 lobbyist there to pick up the pieces."

Congressman Leon Panetta speaks to a crowd at Sebastian's Restaurant Tuesday afternoon.

Accident may cost Poly student's arm

By THOMAS WILLIAMS

Staff Writer

A Cal Poly student crashed his motorcycle into a telephone pole guy wire Monday evening and is in danger of losing his arm, a hospital spokesman said yesterday.

Samuel Morton Smith, a 24-year-old metallurgical engineering sophomore, was riding his 1983 motorcycle east on Manzanita Drive in Los Osos between 40 and 60 miles per hour when he skidded out of control and hit the wire, said Steve Hames of the South Bay Fire Department.

Medics on the scene said Smith suffered compound fractures to his left leg and his left arm was all but severed by the wire.

He was taken to Sierra Vista Hospital in San Luis Obispo and immediately flown by helicopter to Franklin Hospital in San Francisco. Ruth Schottekor, a nurse at the hospital, said Smith was in critical condition upon arrival and was in surgery until noon yesterday. She didn't know, at this point, if doctors would be able to save his arm.

Carol Zarek, who lives near the accident scene, gave Smith a St. Jude medal and said, "He's going to need it."

Zarek also praised South Bay Fire Department medics for their performance and Ann Degnan, a registered nurse who was passing by and went to Smith's aid.

Cranston to join local panel

By GREGG SCHROEDER
Staff Writer

U.S. Senator Alan Cranston will join a panel of local residents — including a Cal Poly senior — Friday morning in San Luis Obispo to hear citizen input about the economy.

Jo Kuney, Northern California field representative for the senator, said Cranston will be at City Hall, 990 Palm Street, from 9:45 to 11:30 a.m. The public is invited to attend and participate.

Kuney said a "cross-section" of San Luis Obispo residents has been invited to sit on the panel with Cranston for the open discussion. The panel, composed of 12 local residents, includes Jeff Colombini, a Cal Poly agricultural management student.

San Luis Obispo is just one of a number of stops for Cranston as part of a fact-finding tour throughout the state as he seeks input from state residents on tax simplification, Kuney said. Other cities the senator has visited this week include Bakersfield, Burbank, Downey and Fairfield.

"He wants to find out what average Californians are feeling," Kuney said, adding that the senator has received "good input" at his other community discussions.

Lottery commission chooses games

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Commissioners of the overdue state lottery faced their first major decision Wednesday — choosing the games they will offer millions of California bettors later this year.

The Lottery Commission also was scheduled to decide where to situate its principal office and consider procedures for taking applications from up to 20,000 prospective lottery sales outlets.

Voters approved creation of a lottery on Nov. 6, but Gov. George Deukmejian's cautious approach to selecting lottery officials made the March 22 start-up deadline impossible to keep. Lottery commissioners believe the games can start in September.

Acting lottery director Howard Varner had indicated that he probably would recommend instant-winner ticket games for the start-up.

The games resemble those offered by some major retail grocery chains. Players scratch off coverings on the tickets, which usually cost $1. A tic-tac-toe game, a poker hand, or something similar is revealed to bettors, immediately showing whether they have won.

Ticket outlets pay out prizes of up to $600. Winners secure larger prizes from lottery offices. Jackpots in other states' instant games usually do not exceed $25,000.

Varner had indicated that more elaborate games with jackpots totaling millions of dollars would be added to the lottery within months of the start-up.

Lottery-supply corporations throughout the nation generally advise beginning with instant games, since they can be swiftly implemented, then adding the more complicated games as interest in the initial offering wanes.

The more elaborate games include:

— Lotto, a centuries-old Italian lottery in which gamblers select a group of numbers from a larger field, such as six from a field of 40 numbers. A drawing is held to pick the winning numbers. If that combination is not chosen by any player, the purse is added to the next game and the jackpot builds.

— Numbers games, in which bettors chose a group of numbers, say three or four, that are then compared with a winning number drawn daily, biweekly or weekly.

— Parimutuel, in which players holding the winning numbers share equally in the prize that is determined by the amount of the bet minus expenses and profit.

Any of the games are called "on-line" if they are played through a sales outlet's computer terminal directly linked to a central computer.

Thursday, during the second day of a two-day session, the Lottery Commission is scheduled to hear informational presentations from telecommunications companies interested in providing the links between computers.

Lottery-supply corporations have suggested that the state's extensive microwave communications network could be used in the lottery.

Vista Grande: at night, SLO's newest pizzeria

NANCY GREVES
Special to the Daily

It isn't often that the Foundation embarks on a new business venture, but during Winter Quarter Vista Grande Cafeteria took on the look of a take-out pizza stop. Under the approval of Ed Sweeny, manager of Food Services, several student employees at the dining facility are at work preparing pizzas for the public. Target consumers are the campus residents looking for pizza at a reasonable price and it. Phone orders are taken seven days a week at Vista Grande, where the pizza is made by students between 5 and 10 p.m. each evening on the pizza shift, according to pizza cook Tony Kelly. The idea for such an enterprise is not new, said Sweeny. Three years ago members of the Foundation toured food service areas at UC Davis, UC Berkeley and UC State Sacramento, all of which have operated successful pizza projects. At the time, remodeling of campus food facilities was still in question and the idea was set aside for two years. Planning for the project began about a year ago, said Sweeny.

During Fall Quarter, research was conducted on the project. The Foundation decided pizza production was feasible with the existing equipment, a few minor rearrangements, and with little additional cost, explained Sweeny. During Winter Quarter the operation began.

"We have a bare bones operation now that we can add to as needed," said Sweeny. "We're still refining constantly." The operation recently added free delivery.

Vista Grande uses all natural ingredients. Although Sweeny estimates that 85 percent of the orders are cheese, pepperoni, or sausage, such extras as olives, mushrooms, pineapple and artichoke hearts are available and combined on request.

Five to 15 pizzas are currently sold each night compared with desired sales of eight to ten pizzas, said Sweeny. About $400 a week is needed to cover the initial investment and begin a profit for the Foundation, he added.

The operation is only encountering one major problem, Sweeny said. "Few students realize Vista Grande is offering such a service since it's lacking the dominating factors of pizza parlors such as visibility and atmosphere."

Jazz fusion artist Chick Corea is scheduled to perform with his Electric Band in the Main Gym April 25 at 8 p.m. Corea is the winner of many music awards including a Grammy in 1978 for the Best Jazz Instrumental Group.

Quintessence series continues

Norwegian horn virtuoso to play tomorrow night

Norwegian horn virtuoso, Froydis Ree Wekre (pronounced Vek-Ray) will perform tomorrow night, April 12th, at 8:00 p.m., in the Cal Poly Theatre as the third in a series of four concerts of the Music Department's Quintessence series.

The co-principle horn of the Oslo Philharmonic since 1945, Wekre is considered by many to be the finest horn player in the world today.

Wekre has performed in solo appearances with such orchestras as the Mozarteum in Salzburg, Austria, which appeared recently in San Luis Obispo, and in chamber music performances at Carnegie Recital Hall in New York City.

Born in Oslo, Norway, Wekre began her music studies at the age of four, first on piano, then on violin, and turning to horn when she was 17. She was trained in both Norway and Russia, yet was influenced by American styles while teaching in the United States. She has a playing style that incorporates the three influences.

The result is a technical facility that has inspired compositions to be written especially for her. As a music critic in Greenville, North Carolina, put it, "Wow! Can that lady play the horn!"

Wekre will perform Mozart's Concert Rondo — KV 371, and Henri Tamasi's Danse Profaine and Chant Corse among six others to complete the two hour performance.

Accompanying her during her performance will be Antionette Krueger — Perry.

Reserved tickets for the concert are $6 for the public and $4 for students. They may be purchased in the University Union Ticket Office on campus, at Cheap Thrills and Boo Boo Records in San Luis Obispo and at Cheap Thrills in Atascadero.

Horn workshop, part of Wekre's Poly appearance

A French horn workshop will be held in conjunction with the appearance of horn virtuoso Froydis Ree Wekre at 3:30 to 5:00 p.m. on Friday, April 12th, at Cal Poly.

A respected teacher, Wekre spent two years on leave of absence from Oslo orchestra in Norway, teaching at California State University, Northridge, and California Institute of the Arts in Valencia.

French horn players wishing to attend the workshop should bring their instruments if they desire personal instruction. Other brass players are also invited to attend.

The workshop presentation by Wekre will be free of charge and held in Room 216 of the university's H.P. Davidson Music Center.

For more information about the workshop contact the Cal Poly Music Department.

Jazz fusion artist Chick Corea scheduled for Poly Royal show

Chick Corea, jazz musician, will perform with his Electric Band in the Cal Poly Main Gym on Thursday, April 25 — the evening before the Poly Royal weekend. The opening act, as yet unnamed, will begin at 8:00 p.m.

The ASI Concerts Committee, recently critized for few concert presentations, is sponsoring the award winning jazz pianist and composer. Advance ticket prices are $9.75 for students, and $11.75 for the public.

Corea, who has played with such jazz greats as Miles Davis, Herbie Mann, and Stan Getz, has won over 50 awards from his peers, his listeners, and the music industry. He received a Grammy for Best Jazz Instrumental Group in 1978 and in 1980 he was awarded both the Jazz Album of the Year and the Top Electric Pianist award.

Though Corea has been influenced by the jazz greats, he also is exploring another stream — classical music. His compositions and performances show a wide breadth of influence from Beethoven, Bartok and Stravin-sky.

Though Corea doesn't like to label himself as performing a particular type of music, he is known as a proponent of what is called "fusion" music — a blend of jazz and rock.

He was commissioned in 1982 by the Lincoln Center Philharmonic Chamber Society to compose a work for an arts festival put on by the City of Miami. The result was his Septet for Winds, Strings and Piano. It was the opening presentation for the televised "Live from Lincoln Center" series in 1983.

Influenced by his trumpeter and bassist father, Corea began playing the piano when he was four in Chelsea, Massachussetts. He studied music at Columbia University and Julliard School of Music for short periods of time. He left them both because, as one critic wrote, "The music he wanted to play couldn't be taught in school."

After refining his piano technique and performing with traditional jazz orchestras, he began composing. Upon the advice of one of the jazz greats, he switched to the electric piano.

Tickets for the concert can be purchased at all locations of Cheap Thrills and Boo Boo Records, and the the University Union Ticket Office on campus. Ticket prices will be $1 more at the door.

Gorbachev meets with American congressmen

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev spent nearly four hours with an American congressional delegation Wednesday, twice the usual time allotted, and said it was time U.S.-Soviet relations emerged from a dangerous "ice age."

The time has come for talking, the Soviet leader said, and one of the Americans predicted he would be a "very formidable adversary" in a summit with President Reagan.

Members of the first U.S. delegation to meet Gorbachev since the funeral of Konstantin U. Chernenko, whom he replaced March 11, said they brought the new leader a letter from Reagan. They would not discuss its contents.

The congressmen said Gorbachev reaffirmed his interest in a summit, but did not say when it might be possible.

On Sunday, Gorbachev said the Soviet Union was freezing deployment of medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe until November. The White House said that was public relations.

Tass, the official news agency, quoted Gorbachev as telling the delegation:

"The time is such now that people shaping the policy of the two countries should by all means converse with one another. The world situation is disquieting, even dangerous, and a kind of ice age is being observed in relations between the U.S.S.R. and the United States. At least this was so until the most recent time."

House speaker Thomas P. O'Neill told a news conference the meeting covered arms control, human rights, trade, regional issues and cultural exchange.

"From our talks, it is apparent that real opportunities for expanded trade and cultural contacts exist."

Gorbachev received O'Neill, a Democrat from Massachusetts; House Republican leader Robert Michel of Illinois; Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., and Silvio Conte, R-Mass.

They met in the Communist Party chief's private quarters on the third floor of the huge yellow office building just inside the Kremlin wall adjacent to Red Square.

The four are the senior members of a 13-man House delegation visiting the Soviet Union.

O'Neill said the meeting lasted three hours and 43 minutes, which is nearly double the time Kremlin visitors usually get. Its length underscored the emphasis the new leadership is putting on U.S.-Soviet relations.

Reagan wants to 'meet' Gorbachev before summit

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — In an abrupt shift, the White House said Wednesday that President Reagan is ready now for a get-acquainted "meeting" with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, but that a problem-solving "summit" would require more preparation and must offer the promise of success.

For weeks, top administration officials have used the terms "summit" and "meeting" interchangeably. Robert C. McFarlane, Reagan's national security adviser, sought to put an end to that practice as he briefed reporters at a hotel 25 miles from the vacationing president's ranch.

The administration's sudden insistence on a distinction between the two terms clearly was an attempt to dampen expectations of real improvement in U.S.-Soviet relations flowing from a Reagan-Gorbachev conference.

Reading a written statement before television cameras, McFarlane said, "The president has stressed that he would welcome a meeting with the general secretary. We would also welcome a summit at the proper time and as the culmination of an extended dialogue which has produced tangible accomplishment."

"There is no predicting how long this process could take," he said. "It could be this year."

McFarlane said Reagan was ready for a get-acquainted meeting with Gorbachev on short notice but played down the likelihood that would occur in the near future.

The national security adviser said, "The president believes that the climate of the relationship is such as to justify a meeting now and for the foreseeable future, absent any dramatic change in Soviet attitudes."

He said there would not have to be a specific agenda for a meeting.

A senior administration official, speaking on condition he not be identified, said a Reagan-Gorbachev meeting in New York would be likely this fall if the Soviet leader attended the opening of the U.N. General Assembly. "It would be my best guess" that they would meet then, the official said.

'Locals Only' a hit for KCPR

KCPR's live set lets local bands gain exposure

By MARC MEREDYTH
Staff Writer

Dan Harrison, lead singer for the Santa Maria band Assault, screamed into the microphone, jumped into the air and dashed across the floor. His leather gloved hand was balled into a fist as he held it above his shortly cropped hair, his whole body tense, sweaty and trembling.

Does this sound like a radical fraternity party, or maybe a punk concert at the Vets Hall where the room smells of beer and everyone is wearing clothes you've only seen in horror flicks?

Sorry to disappoint you party fanatics, but it's only KCPR demonstrating its sound alternative philosophy in a new way: by providing an hour on Saturday evenings when local bands can play live on the air, talk to listeners and gain recognition.

The show is called Locals Only and airs from 7 to 8 p.m. most Saturdays. Toi Phillips, a fourth year architecture student and music director for KCPR, said the show began last quarter as an effort to help Central Coast bands gain public exposure.

Phillips, who coordinates the show with Assistant Music Director Chris Johnson, said band response to the show has been exciting. Phillips thinks the show has helped stimulate the music scene in San Luis Obispo.

Johnson said the show is for any type of band that wants to play and has about an hour of material. In the past, he said, there has been an industrial music band, a psychedelic band, rock bands and the punk band Assault.

Phillips said the format for the show has been to bring the band in about three hours in advance to set up and adjust their sound equipment for the air. The band then plays some of its material and is then brought into the studio for an informal interview during which listeners can call in and talk with the band members.

In the words of Johnson, the interview with Assault was "mayhem."

"Most bands don't want to talk," Phillips said. "They just want to play and get out. But not this band — they love to talk."

During the interview, and throughout the rest of the show, listeners kept calling to talk with the five members of Assault. The band was more than happy to oblige, saying that they were mainly doing the show for the fun of it, but thought it was a good chance to advertise themselves.

Phillips said the only problems with the show so far have been getting good sound from the variety of sound systems the bands have and providing enough room for them to play. Assault was using a simple stereo amplifier for power because it didn't have access to a public address system.

KCPR, besides allowing the bands to play live, uses a video camera to tape the show. "That way," Phillips said, "we have a copy for ourselves and if the band is interested they can purchase a copy for their uses."

Saturday, April 13 the show will feature the band Ill Repute, another punk band. The Stingrays will play April 20.

Players are Royals for career

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Kansas City Royals announced Wednesday that relief pitcher Dan Quisenberry and center fielder Willie Wilson have signed contracts that should bind them to the Royals for the rest of their careers.

"These lifetime contracts are in keeping with our philosophy of recognizing the achievements of players who excel in our organization," said Avron Fogelman, the team's co-owner who conducted the negotiations with the two all-stars.

Terms were not announced, but earlier published reports indicated packages being offered to Wilson and Quisenberry could pay them each $40 million over a 40-year period.

The Royals signed third baseman George Brett to what was described as a lifetime contract last year for a reported $1.8 million per year. The Royals have been negotiating a lifetime contract with second baseman Frank White. White, the oldest of the four players at 34, said last month, however, that he was unhappy with the club's offer.

All four players came up through the Royals' minor league system.

Quisenberry, 32, has been baseball's most productive relief pitcher since 1980, logging 175 saves, including a major league record of 45 in 1983. His current contract runs through the 1986 season with an option year for 1987. The Royals said the new contract begins with 1987 and runs through 1990 with individual yearly options through the year 2000.

Wilson, 29, has a .305 lifetime batting average and won the American League batting title in 1982 with a .332 mark. His new contract starts with 1986 and runs through 1989 with option years through 1995.

Fogelman said the three lifetime contracts reflect the desire of the Royals, including majority owner Ewing Kauffman, to make a commitment to winning.

"Mr. Kauffman and I recognize the longstanding relationship that has developed between our players and the fans and how vital it is to our success," Fogelman said in a prepared statement.

Giants have no fun with Padre Show

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Eric Show pitched a four-hitter and struck out a career-high 11 batters Wednesday to give the San Diego Padres a 3-0 victory and a split in their two-game, season-opening series with the San Francisco Giants.

Show, a 15-game winner each of the last two seasons, did not allow a walk. He retired 13 men in a row between the first and fifth innings, and the Giants did not get a runner past second base.

San Francisco starter Dave LaPoint gave up eight hits in eight innings, and the only run he allowed was unearned.

Kevin McReynolds singled with two out to drive in first-inning run by Jerry Davis, who led off with a single. The Padres added a pair of runs in the ninth by Steve Garvey and McReynolds.

Watson has what it takes to go distance at Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The time is now. The Masters is at hand. And Tom Watson, who has a history of rising to the occasion in golf's major events, is ready.

"I've had a couple of chances, at Bay Hill and Las Vegas," Watson said after a final practice session Wednesday over the rolling hills and extremely fast greens of Augusta National. "I didn't have a good West Coast. But I've had a few good streaks."

"I hit the ball well today. I'm putting well. Overall, I'm ready to win."

Although far from an overwhelming choice, Watson's record generally — and in this event in particular — says he's the man to beat in the 49th Masters, which begins Thursday.

"I like my chances," said Watson, 35, whose past-performance chart is punctuated by five British Open titles, a record six Player of the Year designations and five money-winning titles.

The Masters is played on a long, wide-open course that places a premium on length off the tee and putting prowess — Watson's strong suits. He has finished first twice, in 1977 and '81, and second three times in the last eight years.

Watson, however, is quick to acknowledge that the select, 77-man international field contains a wide — perhaps wider than usual — variety of potential contenders for the green jacket that goes to the winner of the first of the year's four major events.

Chief among those challengers, Watson said, are U.S. Open champion Fuzzy Zoeller, British Open title-holder Seve Ballesteros of Spain and the long-hitting Australian, Greg Norman.

"All have the length, all can putt. Fuzzy is playing well right now. And Seve has won already this year," Watson said.

Norman, however, has had an indifferent start and was forced to cut short his practice time Wednesday.

"My doctor said I have the Hong Kong virus," Norman said.

The free-and-easy Zoeller, the 1979 Masters champ who beat Norman in a playoff for the U.S. Open championship last summer, has made a remarkable recovery from major back surgery and confirmed his comeback with a victory in the Bay Hill Classic earlier this season. He has had top-10 finishes in three of his last four starts.

"I'm a streak player," he said. As to his chances this week, he shrugged. "If the putts drop, who knows? Maybe."

Mustangs drop to home games to Pomona

Next home game will have special chicken visitor

By JANET HASEROT
Staff Writer

Cal Poly scored six runs in the first inning Tuesday at home, but from there on out it was all Cal Poly Pomona.

The Broncos scored one in their half of the first on a solo home run. A double and single added another in the third, but the big blow wasn't until the sixth.

In that inning, with the bases loaded Marty Rivera hit a grand slam home run on a 1-0 pitch off reliever Steve Burch.

Pomona third baseman Mike Patterson, who had doubled in the third, ended the scoring by hitting a solo home run off Burch.

The Mustangs are 21-16 and coach Steve McFarland said the team can't do all its work in one inning.

"If you don't score in the last eight innings," he said, "you are not going to win."

"We didn't do anything to help ourself offensively. People are inconsistent. You have to forget about what the score is and go after people."

The Mustangs scored six in the first inning on six hits.

Center fielder Mark Gambardella, left fielder Jason Maas and Bob Wright had singles in the inning. Doubles were hit by Dom Constantino and Harvey Martinez.

Gambardella went 3-for-5 and Martinez was 2-for-4 on the day.

Constantino and Waltz both had two RBI's.

Wednesday's game against Pomona left the Mustangs with a 6-5 loss. Third baseman Bob Wright's fifth inning home run brought the team to five runs, but it wasn't enough to beat the fine seventh and eighth innings turned in by the Broncos.

CONNIE ADAMS/Mustang Daily

Pitcher Carl Hjerpe looks dejected as he walks away from the mound after a bad pitch.

Pitcher Mike Patterson, who doubled in the third, was followed by a hit pitch against Dave Schuster, and brought home by second baseman John Love's double. Pomona moved to the top in the eighth inning as outfielder Manes doubled. Jeff Edwards earned the winning RBI with a single.

The Mustangs top performances were turned in by shortstop Harvey Martinez who went 2-for-3 with two singles, and Bob Wright, who hit two singles and a home run.

The Mustangs travel to Pomona Friday and Saturday for three games. The next home games will be April 26 and 27 against UC-Riverside, the beginning of Poly Royal weekend. Coach Steve McFarland is excited about Friday's game as the San Diego chicken will be coming for the celebration.

STEPHANIE PINGEL/Mustang Daily

Infielder Harvey Martinez makes it safely back to first base avoiding a pick-off in loss to Cal Poly Pomona Tuesday.
