Rental rules debated

By Ken A. Forkus
Staff Writer

Cal Poly students have temporarily dodged a bullet with a proposed city ordinance on residential rental regulations.

The City Council meeting Tuesday night was packed with students — including members of the Student/Community Liaison Committee — and community members debating the ordinance.

The regulations, proposed last April by Residents for Quality Neighborhoods, a citizens group, would tie the number of occupants allowed to the number of available parking spaces. Hearings were delayed until September so students returning to the city could participate.

Students living off campus likely would be most affected by the ordinance. They traditionally room together, increasing the number of occupants per residence, because they can't afford high rents.

The public hearing was postponed until the Oct. 3 meeting of the council because of the large number of people who wanted to speak before the City Council.

Several representatives opposed to the ordinance, including Cal Poly ASI Chairman of the Board Ricardo Echeverria, who also chairs the liaison committee, asked for a 30-day grace period to unify Cal Poly students, most of whom have just arrived back in town.

The ordinance is being proposed as a solution to the traffic, noise, parking and maintenance problems within local neighborhoods. Residents are concerned over the number of students permitted to reside in a house zoned as single-family housing, most of a city's neighborhoods.

UC Davis adopted a similar ordinance to the one being proposed locally and requires homeowners to submit a business license if the rental property is housing five or more individuals.

Students face house shortage

By Leslie Morris
Staff Writer

With jam-packed dormitories, long waiting lists and sparse off-campus housing, finding a room to rent this fall can be a struggle.

There are countless students still looking for a place to call home, either on or off campus.

Robert Bostrom, director of on-campus housing, is searching for long-range solutions to the problem, but this week he is more concerned with the immediate on-campus shortage.

"Of the 80 students waiting for on-campus housing, eight women and four men have been provided with housing," Bostrom said. "Those still waiting are making temporary arrangements, sleeping on friends' couches and floors."

The housing problem has reached its peak this year with students and San Luis Obispo residents equally frustrated.

Three hundred continuing students were turned down in June for fall on-campus housing to allow new students to experience "dorm-life," Bostrom said.

There must also be at least 300 square feet per adult, one bathroom for every three adults and sufficient off-street parking for each adult minus one.

Many community members addressed the council saying the effects of overcrowded student housing in single-family residential areas has forced homeowners to relocate.

Most city council members said they

New regulations ban bikes and skateboards from the campus core. T. KESSELRING/Mustang Daily

Bike ban takes effect

The beginning of school can be confusing: dialing CAPTURE, finding classes and waiting in long bookstore lines.

This year, students can add another confusion to the list thanks to new bike regulations approved by Cal Poly President Warren Baker late last month — where to ride and park their bikes.

Cyclists are allowed only in marked bike lanes along the outer perimeter of campus and on Via Carta through the center of campus.

Bikes may only be parked in designated racks along the outer perimeter.

The new rules affect skateboarders as well. Skateboards are now prohibited from campus except for special events cleared by police.

Students illegally parking their bikes can expect to have their locks cut and their bikes impounded, said Sgt. Steve Schroeder of Public Safety.

Students illegally riding their bikes may also have them impounded.

It will cost $8 to get them back.

Schroeder said Public Safety will issue warnings this week and will begin impounding on Monday.

He said student cooperation has been good so far.

The many pedestrian/cyclist conflicts last year in the inner core area spurred the new regulations, Schroeder said. He said they were long overdue because "a lot of bikers are not careful of pedestrians."

Some students disagree.

Megan Biesiadecki, a child and family development senior, said the rule unjustly punishes cyclists.

"I think it's ridiculous that (the administration) let in so many new students that they have to do something like this," Biesiadecki said. "The pedestrians don't watch out for us any more than we watch out for them, yet we are the ones having our privileges taken away."

Biesiadecki also predicted a parking problem for bikes because "all the racks

Asbestos stops BA&E plans

Plans to expand the Business Administration and Education building came to a screeching halt this summer at a $1.2 million red light.

Materials containing asbestos were found in the ceilings, pipes and floor tile of the business building, said Douglas Gerard, executive dean of facilities administration.

"The asbestos fibers that are available in probably 90 percent of the buildings on campus are not harmful unless disturbed," said Gerard. "Asbestos is a naturally occurring mineral," Gerard said, "and if you went outside and kicked your foot in the dirt you'd likely stir up some asbestos."

Whenever construction takes place on older buildings, he said, contractors are likely to run into materials containing asbestos.

When they do, special steps must be taken to make sure the fibers are removed correctly to prevent any future potential for contamination, Gerard said.

An inspection three years ago identified asbestos only in the piping insulation, said Gerard.

Last summer, however, San Jose State University signed a contract to remodel an engineering building. The contractor suspected asbestos. His suspicions were confirmed and the job was shut down until the construction drawings could be reworked to safely get rid of the asbestos.

Since Cal Poly's Business Administration and Education building was also built in the 1940s, Gerard ordered another inspection. More asbestos fibers were found in the ceilings and floor tile.

Construction drawings have undergone

Environment needs our daily help

It's your first week at or back to Cal Poly and here's one thing to think about. The world has reached a point beyond its holding capacity. All of us are responsible for the ground we walk on, the air we breathe and the society in which we live.

Once thought to be so awesomely resilient that no human insult or indulgence could damage them, even our oceans are now crying out for help. And again we are responsible.

To all the organizations who devote their lives to the ecological effort, thanks! We may donate money for their causes and promote them through the media and this is great! Don't get me wrong; it's important to support these groups, but...

It's time we all get back to our roots and evaluate not only ourselves but the roles we play in this great land. I could tell you to grow your hair out and never cut it, stop wearing leather products and become a vegetarian before there are no animals left, but this won't help the earth.

This is a message to all! Myself more than the rest. Instead of just donating money to the organizations who are committed to a clean planet and commending people on their efforts, we need to start within ourselves.

Many companies have begun a cleanup plan already by switching to paper instead of Styrofoam, using environmentally-safe packing materials and so forth. But many others still exist that are riddled with habits and practices that are insensitive to general environmental protection.

The message to individuals is to look at how you live and decide what you can do to help. Then stop thinking about it and do something.

First off, when you are walking and pass a piece of paper, can, bottle, etc., pick it up and throw it away. If the trash can is tipped over, don't assume someone else will pick it up. Do it yourself.

We all are familiar with the question, "Paper or plastic?" at the grocery store. Next time ask for paper because it's biodegradable.

Why the push?, you may ask. Besides the safety of our environment, there is a growing problem with landfills. They are filling up fast, and in fact some are closing because they have reached their capacity. So where else can we put the waste? Outerspace?

That sounds like an idea, but realistically the next step will be our oceans. It is sometimes easy to forget just how vital blue water is to our lifestyles; let's not take that for granted. It's al ready a problem on the East Coast, as they haul huge waste barges out to sea and dump them near the Continental Shelf. But this is not really a solution either as trash does come ashore again no matter how far out to sea it is dumped.

And don't forget the San Luis Obispo environment. Just look around — this place is beautiful!

What else can you do to help the commitment to a clean planet? Recycle newspapers, aluminum, glass, cardboard and even motor oil. ECO-SLO, an organization that serves San Luis Obispo County as a full-service recycling center will offer money for all aluminum goods, brass, stainless steel, lead, computer paper, glass (including household glass) and California redemption plastic.

You can also bring in for no monetary value newsprint, telephone books and used motor oil. ECO-SLO is located at 45 Prado Road in San Luis Obispo and is open Monday through Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

For convenience, San Luis Garbage offers free crates that will be picked up on your designated trash day. The crates are for aluminum and glass only; newspapers have to be bundled separately. All you have to do is call and the rest is easy.

This is not a sales pitch; it's a strong reminder to participate in the cleanup. Remember there is no point in taking a verbal stand for the environment if we open ourselves to criticism based on the hypocrisy of our actions.

Letters to the editor

Readers unhappy with Daily's WOW issue

Editor — As a resident adviser, I was quite excited to start off the new 1989-90 year at Trinity Hall. Realizing that about 90 percent of the residents would be first-time Cal Poly students, I was happy for them because they would soon be part of a close community.

Then I came across an article by Christine Kohn (WOW issue) about her collections of past resident tales of dorm life at Cal Poly. I feel that the article was misguiding. Christine suggested to the readers that these tales were "nothing out of the ordinary." But they are out of the ordinary. So what was the purpose of the Mustang Daily in raising these misconceptions of resident community living at Cal Poly?

I believe that informing residents how to penny in your resident adviser, steal pizzas and vending food and smuggle in kegs of beer will not help me, the other 44 resident advisers, the Housing Department or the residents in building a community.

But as a resident adviser, I was taught how to approach problems in a non-threatening manner. So I suppose these "Tales of the dormside" could be OK for talks around a keg or something, but in our resident halls, all this trash was just put into the dumpster!

Rudolph L. Obispo
Business Administration

Editor — This is a San Luis Obispo taxpayer citizen's answer to your Mustang Daily Sept. 10-15 WOW issue. God, I wish summer was all year long so that we didn't have to put up with all of those alcoholic, foul-mouthed, self-centered, rude, inconsiderate, arrogant students who come and take over our town each September! Only a few years ago the students seemed to be nice, studious, mature and considerate of the townspeople.

This year after having been pushed out of line at Lucky's, almost run over on Foothill Boulevard by speeding students, and thrown to the floor when trying for a seat in our favorite restaurant — God help us if this is the future generation of America!

One Mustang Daily reporter wrote, "Road trips rescue you from the daily bullshit of S.L.O. life" (in the article "Tired of school? Road trip!"). With that attitude we wish you would hit the road! Why with that attitude did you come here in the first place? We dare you to print this in your juvenile delinquent Mustang Daily!

The S.G. Brook Family
16-year residents of S.L.O.

Editor — As a part-time Cal Poly student and mother of two college students, I was anxious to read your WOW issue. (After all, WOW is MOM upside down.) From the eye-catching cover to the informative and clever articles like "Jack's near-great adventure," (the stick figures in the photos are great) your staff used their creative talents to reach your goals with humor and facts.

But there is one article that really upset me. "From dancin' to drinkin', pukin', belchin' & slammin'," which reviews the bars in and around the San Luis Obispo area and extols the joys of getting drunk, is totally out of place. Aren't most college students under 21? Don't students have to drive home from these bars? Come on, wake up!

At least along with the eye-opening article on drugs, you've listed the alcohol-related laws and an alcohol services phone number. Thanks for that. I hope students will ignore the article, but I know I'm just dreaming.

Perturbed student hopes stolen signs will be returned

Editor — This is a letter to those who stole the "Dance 20" signs off their kiosks last weekend. Thanks for the compliment. You must think it's cool on your wall, but it's not cool to me and others who spent more hours on them than we can count. Now those hours are a waste because of you. We'll have to spend many more hours remaking them because of you. Why don't you get a clue on life? Stop taking what doesn't belong to you. If you have any integrity left, you'll return them and no questions will be asked. The theatre and dance department, Orchestris Dance Company and I would greatly appreciate it.

Techno series set

A lecture series titled "Technology and Ethics: The Rhetoric of Values in Conflict" is being sponsored by Cal Poly's Schools of Liberal Arts and Engineering during the 1989-90 academic year.

The speakers will provide "fresh insights into the topics and direct our attention to the technical and ethical questions surrounding us today," said Glenn W. Irvin, interim dean of the School of Liberal Arts.

The first lecturer will be Howard Ball, dean of the college of social and behavioral science at the University of Utah. He will speak on "National Security at All Cost: Technocratic Complicity in the Creation of Uranium 'Cancer Factories'" on Thursday, Oct. 12, at 7:30 p.m. in the Cal Poly Theatre.

Susan Duffy, a speech communication faculty member, brought her idea for the lecture series to light with the help of a grant from GTE Corp. and funds from the state lottery.

There is no charge for the lectures, which are open to the public.

Hazel Scott has been named vice-president for student affairs by Cal Poly President Warren J. Baker. In making the announcement, Baker said Scott's service to the university "has been exceptional."

Scott was dean of students for the past 15 months.

Her new responsibilities include programs in cooperative education and placement services; financial aid; health services; housing; placement; student academic services and educational equity; and student life and activities. Scott will also coordinate and oversee Associated Students Inc.

President retires

HAYWARD, Calif. (AP) — Ellis E. McCune said he will retire as head of California State University-Hayward at the end of the school year, ending the longest tenure of any president in the state's 20-campus system.

McCune, 68, has served as Hayward State's president for 22 years.

The state university system trustees this summer approved a policy that states the campus presidents, chancellor and vice chancellor are "expected" to retire from those positions when they reach age 65.

Hayward spokeswoman Ruth Carlson said Tuesday that McCune had been thinking about retirement anyway, but that the new policy "just sped him up a little bit."

McCune said his retirement would be effective next year.

Bees cool by dropping hot stools

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Scientists say they figured out why thousands of Asian bees leave their nests to defecate together, producing "yellow rain" the U.S. government once claimed was a biological weapon used by the Soviets.

By relieving themselves of hot feces equal to one-fifth of their body weight, the honeybees are able to cool themselves and their nests more efficiently, helping their offspring survive and grow, the researchers said in Thursday's issue of Nature, a British science journal.

In a 1981 speech and 1982 report, then-Secretary of State Alexander Haig Jr. asserted "yellow rain" was a Soviet biological weapon used to kill thousands of people in Cambodia, Laos and Afghanistan during the previous decade.

The claim later was discredited by scientists who proved the yellow deposits were bee droppings, although the State Department never retracted the claim, said biologist Peter G. Kevan.

The new study explains why the Asian honeybees make what scientists call "mass defecation flights," Kevan said by phone from the University of Guelph, located in Ontario about 50 miles west of Toronto.

"It can be explained by the need to prevent the temperature of bees' nests becoming so hot as to endanger the larvae," wrote Kevan and Makhdzir Mardan, a biologist at the Agricultural University of Malaysia.

Mardan and Kevan took 306 bees from six nests in Asian tropical forests before and after the insects made mass flights.

They killed the bees, weighed their gut contents and measured the amount of heat in the bee droppings.

The study established the Asian giant honeybees excrete large amounts of hot waste during the mass flights. "It's like somebody weighing 200 pounds suddenly losing 40 pounds," Kevan said, adding that a colony of 40,000 bees eliminates 1,850 calories of heat during a single flight.

reading and discussing their work.

Cal Poly Arts will also sponsor a different classic film series each quarter. The films of Francois Truffaut, who established himself as one of France's most important New Wave directors in the 1960s, will run Monday evenings during fall quarter.

Truffaut's The 400 Blows kicked off the series Monday and continues next Monday, Sept. 25 with Les Mistons and Shoot the Piano Player in Chumash Auditorium.

In addition to its series performances, Cal Poly Arts will present six Special Events throughout the year, beginning Friday with the Access Theatre Company in "Storm Reading" (see accompanying story).

The Quintessence Series begins next Friday, Sept. 29 with the Los Angeles Chamber Orchestra Winds. The CenterStage Series kicks off Oct. 4 with the Lar Lubovitch Dance Company, which the New York Times called the best contemporary dance company worldwide for 1986.

Pianist Alan Chow will begin the Debut Series Jan. 12. Chow was first prize winner of the Concert Artists Guild's International Competition in New York.

Regier said new directions Cal Poly Arts has taken this year include diversification of musical productions.

"Mostly we have presented classical music performances in the past," he said. "But the Masters of the Folk Violin (Oct. 25) and Queen Ida, for example, will offer something different."

The construction of the new performing arts center on campus, which could begin in late 1991, should drastically affect Cal Poly Arts.

"We have major goals for that," Regier said. "We can't afford to wait until the last minute to plan, since it will mean a change from a 500-seat to a 1,500-seat auditorium."

Season ticket packages for this Cal Poly Arts year offer several options. Student season tickets are available for the Quintessence Series ($40 preferred seating, $49 premium) and the CenterStage Series ($47 preferred, $56 premium).

A Select-A-Season package allows the student to choose six of the 19 events for $58 preferred, $69 premium, and the Season Sampler (choose three events) sells for $32 preferred, $37 premium.

For more information, call the ticket office at 756-1421 or Cal Poly Arts at 756-6556.

ACCESS

Marcus has dystonia, a rare neurological disorder that affects muscular coordination but not the mind.

"Because of his disability, Neil's speech is very labored and difficult to understand," said Lathim, artistic director. "His brother Roger serves as his speaking voice, as does Kathryn Voice, who artistically translates the show in American Sign Language. It's a very unique piece of theater."

Douglas, whom Lathim met in 1980, opened many doors for Access Theatre. He convinced Maria Shriver, host of NBC's "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow," to feature the theater company in a segment. Lathim also said the company recently performed at the Kennedy Center for an NBC special called "From The Heart," and presented "Storm Reading" at the historic Ford Theatre in Washington, D.C.

Access Theatre's board of directors includes such big names as Douglas, Rue McClanahan of "Golden Girls," singer Kenny Loggins and actor Anthony Edwards.

Lathim said Marcus has an addictive and comic stage presence.

"This performance destroys the preconception society has put on people who are labeled 'disabled,'" said Lathim. "Neil gives us humor and great insight in a personal and wonderfully warm way. What he has to say touches everyone on a common, human level."

The Access Theatre Company has performed at colleges before, Lathim said, and will travel to Stanford University after Cal Poly.

"'Storm Reading' plays very well to university audiences," he said. "Most college audiences are progressive, and this show is very progressive. Unlike the average Joe Public, college students are quite open-minded.

"This production has actually been changing lives and left a trail behind as we tour. People tell me they just aren't the same again after seeing it."

- Donna Taylor

"Storm Reading" will be performed Friday at 8 p.m. in the Cal Poly Theatre. Tickets are $8 students, $10 public for preferred seating; $10 students, $12 public for premium seating. All seats are reserved. Call 756-1421 for reservations.

Leadership:

A good man can handle it.

You don't have to look twice to see that this man is in charge. There is a certain strength of character, an undeniable sense of self-confidence, that says he is a leader. Men believe in him because he believes in himself. He is a Marine officer.

If you believe in yourself and would like to find out more about the kind of leaders we look for, call First Lieutenant Angus at (213) 294-3736. Who knows, we may not have to look any further than you.

keeps throughout the show limits the amount of time he can play.

"I get worn out," he said. "I can't play longer than two hours because if I did, I'd have to pace myself. I go at a ten-mile sprint, not at a 26-mile jog."

Mojo is touring to promote his most recent album, Root Hog or Die. The album features such classics as "Louisiana Liplock" and the ever-popular "Debbie Gibson is Pregnant With My Two-Headed Love Child." Nixon will also perform such favorites as "Elvis is Everywhere", "(I Want to be Stuffed) Martha's Muffin," and the ever-popular Elvis hotline song, "(619) 239-KING." The latter song has elicited tremendous response from around the nation.

"We actually set up a phone line for people to call and leave a message," said Mojo. "We've got 50,000 calls since March. We used to get about 500 calls a day, but it's trickled down to about 50 now. We've had people call and tell us that they have Elvis in their closet. We just did an interview in New Zealand, so hopefully we'll be gettin' some calls from there soon."

Mojo's no-holds-barred social commentary has brought its share of controversy. Originally, Root Hog or Die was to be titled Bush Idiot Slime. But Mojo is satisfied with the final title.

"Root Hog or Die is a frontier saying that first appears in print in Davy Crockett's autobiography," Mojo said in his press release. "It means 'get snappin' or croak.' If you're out on the frontier, you gotta build your cabin and kill some animals, grow some crops and lay in wood for the winter, or it's over. You can't just sit around on your ass. It sounds good, too. 'Root,' 'hog,' 'die'...all those are good words. And together it's even better."

Mojo will perform some new material as well, including a song called "Delta Dawn."

"Delta Dawn is guaranteed to raise the hair on your butt," said Nixon. "You'll be talkin' to Jesus afterward."

MOVIE REVIEW

'Violence' is the key word

the movie Night Game, cleverly manipulating baseball lovers with its unique title, has only a slight connection with the true sport. The actual identity of this film lies within the absorbing subject of serial murders in Galveston, Texas.

Police Lt. Mike Seaver, a former baseball player, is brought to life by veteran actor Roy Scheider. Scheider exhibits such skills through his screen character, Mike, as perpetually smoking, slowly sniffing out obvious clues and maintaining an unlikely romance with screen fiancée Roxy, played by unseasoned actress Karen Young.

Despite the fact Young appears to be 20 years younger than Scheider, she is cast as his equal in a give-and-take relationship. However, this attempt at intellectual equality, having previously missed at coor-inating ages, fails as Roxy exhibits common sense.

The murders occur systematically as you expect, each one leaving you questioning the actual brain activity of the chosen girl. The attacker chases one victim on the beach in his car. As he speeds toward her, she runs further down the open stretch of sand, never deviating from the path until she comes to an abandoned construction site, where she then decides to find hiding.

Amidst the continual violence, director Peter Masterson also decides to add senseless humor to the film. For example, the script brings to the screen Alma, Roxy's mother who somehow disapproves of her daughter's choice in men, and illustrates this disapproval through frivolous arguments designed to entertain the viewer.

In two words, don't bother.

Graphic proof of high-tech leadership.

The Casio fx-7000G $89.95.* It's the world's first programmable scientific calculator with a graphic display. It can give form to your figures, instantly drawing graphs that depict your formulas and calculations.

With a screen that measures 16 characters by 8 lines, the fx-7000G can display enough information for some of your biggest ideas. And you can store graphs and formulas, then bring them back for an instant replay.

With its 422 step memory and 193 functions—including linear regression, standard deviation and computer math—the fx-7000G lets you perform computer functions, without acquiring computer knowledge or incurring computer costs.

For additional capabilities, there's the fx-7500G ($109.95*). It has a larger memory capacity, with 195 functions.

4,006 memory steps, instant graph enlargement or reduction feature, plus a convenient horizontal folding format.

If you need even more power, our fx-8500G ($149.95*) techs you even higher, with 6,566 memory steps and 255 functions. And when hooked up with our optional FA-80 interface, it works with most parallel dot matrix printers or plotters including Casio's own models.

If you have any doubts as to who's the leader in high-tech calculators, just pick up an fx-7000G, fx-7500G or fx-8500G and draw your own conclusions.

Bomb linked to UTA crash

PARIS (AP) — A Moslem extremist group claimed responsibility Wednesday for the downing of a French DC-10 jetliner in southern Niger that killed all 171 people on board.

U.S., French and UTA airline authorities said they believe the plane, bound Tuesday from Chad to Paris, was blown out of the sky by a bomb. A U.S. team of investigators was to leave later Wednesday for Niger.

Two callers who claimed to represent Islamic Jihad but did not give their own names made their claims of responsibility in separate telephone calls to the airline and to a Western news agency.

Islamic Jihad is among several radical fundamentalist groups in Lebanon believed to be part of Hezbollah, or Party of God, the umbrella groups thought to hold 16 Westerners hostage in Lebanon, including eight Americans.

Among the passengers on the French jetliner were seven Americans, including Bonnie Pugh, wife of the U.S. ambassador to Chad, Robert L. Pugh.

UTA Flight 772 was on a flight from Brazzaville, Congo, to Paris when it crashed Tuesday shortly after making a stop in N'Djamena, Chad. Debris was scattered over a 16-mile expanse of desert about 400 miles northwest of N'Djamena.

The French army, whose troops stationed in neighboring Chad were the first to reach the scene, said the 15 crew and 156 passengers died, including eight children.

Authorities said indications are that the aircraft was felled by a bomb.

"It exploded at high altitude leaving every reason to believe it was a bomb," said UTA spokesman Michel Friesse. He said it was possible, but less likely, the explosion was due to technical failure.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman, speaking on condition of anonymity, echoed that sentiment: "The pieces are widely scattered, so it didn't crash on impact."

Poly co-op, services merge

New building to house both departments

By Jill Newhouse
Staff Writer

Student Services and Cooperative Education will soon be sharing the same new $1.5 million building under construction at the corner of Campus Way and South Perimeter.

The building, which is taking the place of staff parking, will house the offices now located in Jespersen and Heron Halls. Both halls were built in the late 1930's and have been condemned by the State of California.

Although this project is expected to be completed by the summer of 1990, Student Services cannot look forward to having more space. According to Shell Burrel of Cal Poly's Placement Center, the square footage at the new office building will not be increased.

Burrel said the reasoning behind this "odd" move is that the funds for the new building were allocated because the old building was condemned, not for expanded use or growth potential.

To go back through the administrative process and try to receive more funding for a larger building would take a long time, Burrel said.

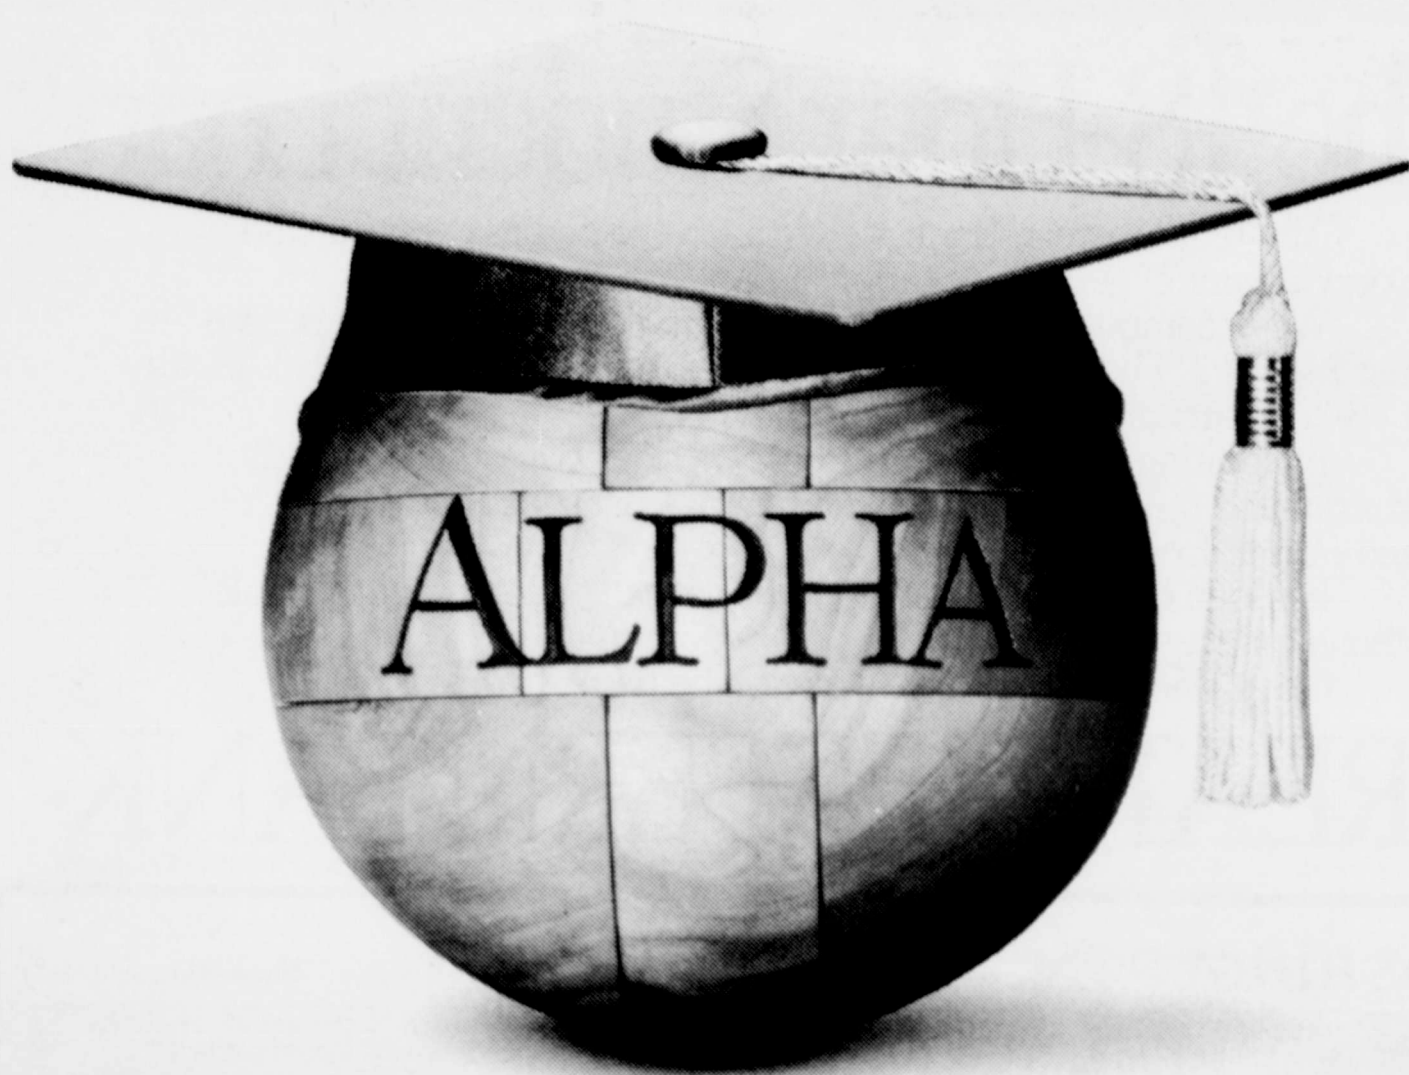

As it is planned, the new building, located across from Mustang Stadium, will provide student assistance in both temporary and permanent job placement, and will be the site for on-campus interviews with potential employers.

Plant Operations architect Rex Wolf told the Mustang Daily over the summer that plans for the old halls is not definite, although Cal Poly's master plan shows the buildings as being completely removed. Many people in administration would like to see the continued use of the buildings, although Wolf said that upgrading, rather than demolishing the buildings, "would be a very big project."

The new building will have a stucco exterior and a tile roof, similar to Jespersen, Heron and Chase Halls. The building will be L-shaped, with the center courtyard facing away from Campus Way and South Perimeter.

The Mustang Daily. Just because.

He said of the 2,795 people in the dorms, 89 percent are new students.

Recent reports from Cal Poly and Cuesta College show that student enrollment at both institutions is growing. A report from the Board of Trustees said it expects Cal Poly's enrollment to swell to about 20,000 students by the early 90s.

Building new dormitories on campus may be one alternative, Boström said.

"We're studying the feasibility, but this wouldn't happen for another three years after the decision was made, spending 18 months on design and 18 months on the construction," he said.

Other alternatives include more off-campus housing, Boström said.

For students, affordable rent and housing close to campus is becoming increasingly difficult to find.

A proposed regulation before the City Council may make the search more difficult.

Residents for Quality Neighborhoods, a citizen group spearheading the regulation effort, is urging the City Council to restrict the number of students living in single family homes. The regulation would tie the number of residents to available parking.

The issue was tabled until the council's Oct. 3 meeting.

Plans have been made to add onto the west side of the building including a large 200-seat classroom, 10 special purpose instructional rooms (most of which are computer related), 70 faculty and dean offices and four departmental offices.

Total cost has been estimated at $12.5 million, Gerard said. The asbestos-related work, however, will cost an additional $1.2 million to $1.3 million.

Asbestos fibers do not absorb easily and therefore embed into the lungs. The Environmental Protection Agency has ruled that asbestos is harmful and that steps must be taken to eliminate it from work environments.

would withhold statements until they had heard arguments from both sides. City Councilmember Jerry Reiss, however, said something must be done.

"I see things on both sides of the equation that are appropriate, and others not appropriate," he said.

Vice Mayor Peg Pinard said the influx of students attending Cuesta College and Cal Poly in the past 20 years and the lack of housing provided by these colleges are driving potential home buyers out of the area.

Public opinion will be heard at the council's next regular meeting Oct. 3.

They're Hot, They're Wild, They're On Sale.

If you plan on writing, presenting, publishing, drawing or designing, MacWrite®II and MacDraw®II software from Claris is the hottest and wildest combination available for your Mac.

MacWrite II is the hottest word processor around with footnotes or endnotes, a lightning-fast 100,000-word spelling checker, a 220,000-synonym thesaurus, multiple columns, headers and footers.

It also has word counting so you don't go one word over on that 1,000-word paper that's due first thing in the morning. And for those foreign language studies, optional international spelling dictionaries make your assignments a little less foreign.

Now let's talk wild. MacDraw II is outrageous. You can use it with virtually any course you're taking. Make overhead slides for a class presentation, or create structural drawings or architectural designs for those engineering or interior design classes— even newsletters and flyers for student-body sponsored events.

It's easy but precise. Zoom in to 3200%, rotate objects in .1° increments, measure down to millimeters, even "do dimensioning."

Put hot and wild together and things get really exciting. You can insert your MacDraw II drawings into MacWrite II. And even reduce, enlarge and crop them once they're there.

Your campus has worked out a special deal for you. It won't last forever. Get hot. Get wild. Get MacWrite II and MacDraw II now. They're on sale.

Football team opens season 2-0

By Adrian Hodgson
Staff Writer

After handily beating West Texas State 31-10 on Sept. 9, Cal Poly's football team struggled early on Saturday before beating Humboldt State 29-16.

A highly favored Mustang team looked tired and sluggish for the first two quarters and fell behind 10-0. But the team's strength and stamina came through in the second half as it took and kept the lead.

Standouts for the Mustangs so far this season include running back Todd Henderson, who has rushed for over 100 yards in each game; freshman kicker Tom McCook, who is 4-4 on field goal attempts and 6-6 on PATs; and the Mustang defense, which has allowed its opponents an average of just 33 yards a game.

However, head coach Lyle Setencich said his team's performance has been average, and that the team has played inconsistently in both games.

The unbeaten Mustangs will travel to San Angelo, Texas, to play the fifth-ranked Angelo State Rams on Saturday. Cal Poly beat the Rams 15-8 at home last year, but Setencich said that Saturday's game would be tough.

Cal Poly begins its bid for the Western Football Conference title Saturday, Sept. 30, at 7 p.m., when it plays the Cal State Northridge Matadors at home.

Soccer impressive during preseason, readies for league

By Adrian Hodgson
Staff Writer

The Cal Poly men's soccer team remains undefeated after its preseason games, much to the surprise of its coach, Wolfgang Gartner.

Gartner said that it is tough to play top Division I schools such as Stanford and San Diego State and remain undefeated.

The Mustangs most recent triumph was Saturday night, when it soundly beat Stanford 3-0 to improve its record to 3-0-3, the team's best start ever. Mark Mitchell, a junior transfer student, opened the scoring late in the first half on an assist from Amin Sedam. In the second half, the Mustangs built on their lead when Tim Hire scored his fifth goal of the season. Hire also contributed to Poly's final goal when, with a minute remaining, his free kick ricocheted off Todd Henry into the back of the net.

Poly set for Big West play
Mitchell breaks foot, out for 6 weeks

By Jay Garner

Staff Writer

Last Saturday night, all but one of the players on Cal Poly's women's volleyball team walked comfortably out of Mott Gym after an impressive victory over 14th-ranked Louisiana State University.

The exception was defensive specialist Gretchen Mitchell.

Late in the third game against LSU, Mitchell landed on an opponent's foot, severely turned her ankle and fractured her left foot in three places. She stayed in the game for three more rotations, thinking it was a sprained ankle.

"At first I thought I just tweaked it, but the pain got worse, and I asked coach to take me out," Mitchell said.

The injury will keep Mitchell, a junior, out of the lineup for about six weeks.

"The worst part is watching everyone practice and not being able to participate," Mitchell said.

Coach Mike Wilton said he will insert freshman Jennifer Jeffrey to replace Mitchell.

"We're going to miss Gretchen's experience," Wilton said. "She's been a real vital member of what we've done so far. But we're going to make the most of the situation with Jennifer Jeffrey in there, and hope that she gains experience quickly."

Wilton added that he will also play freshman Melinda Norton more with Mitchell out.

The win over LSU raised the team's record to 6-3, with Big West league play beginning on Friday at Long Beach State.

Michelle Hansen, the only senior, leads the team in kills with 167, while freshman Anja Knutsen, a former member of the Norwegian national team, is playing well with 126 kills.

Although the team is young, Wilton believes it will do well in league play.

"This year's team is as exciting as any that we've had," Wilton said. "They come to play; they really get after it, so they're fun to watch."

Campbell leads men's C.C.

The Cal Poly men's cross country team won its first meet, the San Francisco Invitational, took second at the Fresno State Invitational behind only Division I powerhouse University of Arizona and yet, Coach Tom Henderson is nervous.

"When you run real well early you start to worry about injuries," Henderson said. "When guys are running this hard, it's scary."

At Fresno, the Mustangs easily beat Cal State Los Angeles, winner of last year's Western Regionals. Cal State LA will supposedly be Cal Poly's chief rival at this year's regionals.

"They (Cal State LA) are in trouble," Henderson said. "We put five guys in front of them. Right now we feel real good against Cal State Hayward, 1-0, and United States International University, 3-0. The team came up unlucky at San Diego State, the 1987 NCAA Division I runner-up, in San Diego on Sept. 10.

The Mustangs had come from behind to take a 2-1 lead into the final minute when the Aztecs were awarded a corner kick. As the ball came across the goal mouth, goalkeeper Harry Crouch caught it, but was then pushed into the goal by a San Diego player. The referee allowed the goal, and the Mustangs were forced to settle for a tie.

Cal Poly winds up a three-game homestand Saturday at 7 p.m. when it plays Cal Poly Pomona in its first league game.

Women runners dominate

By Jay Garner
Staff Writer

The Cal Poly women's cross country team heads to the Humboldt Invitational this Saturday in search of some competition.

Competition was certainly nowhere to be found at the Sonoma Invitational last Saturday. The Mustangs blew away the rest of the field in heavy rain on a muddy course.

"We completely dominated," said Coach Lance Harter. "We virtually ran unchallenged; we could have scored all 10 of our runners (instead of the regulation five) and still won easily."

Indeed, Cal Poly scored 26 points, while the second place team, Cal State Hayward, scored 121 points.

Freshman Jamie Park led the way for the Mustangs with a time of 17:11, good for second place overall, on the five-kilometer course.

Braves win despite S.F. complaint

ATLANTA (AP) — Russ Nixon, the manager of the Atlanta Braves, vows to remember the San Francisco Giants' insult of his team. Next season's first meeting between the two teams will be rather interesting.

"I'm not blowing this off," Nixon said Tuesday night after being told by National League president Bill White that the Giants were complaining about the Braves' lineup against the Houston Astros — a team still in contention in the NL West race.

"Who's kidding who?" Nixon asked after his lineup filled with youth handed the Astros a 3-0 defeat, pushing Houston six games behind the first-place Giants. "I don't think if I had a five-game lead and the best club in the league I'd be worrying too much about a last-place club. I'm going to remember this."

"That kind of burns me up. The Giants are getting paranoid out there. I wonder if they called Cincinnati, too, and told them not to pitch (rookie Scott) Scudder, told them to throw (Tom) Browning every night."

"I guess they look like fools now," Atlanta shortstop Andres Thomas said of the Giants after the Braves snapped Houston's five-game winning streak and beat the Astros for the first time in eight tries.

Cincinnati dropped a 5-1 decision to the second-place San Diego Padres, who remained five games behind the Giants, a 3-2 winner over the Dodgers.

"Maybe they are better than the guys he's been running out there," Giants manager Roger Craig said. "Maybe Nixon knows what he's doing, and he wants to see them play. I can understand that. He wants to get a good look at them. That's why he brought them up."

"I'll call him (Nixon) a genius if they win," Craig said. "I'll withdraw it."

Nixon said White telephoned him 30 minutes before the Tuesday night game, responding to an informal complaint by the Giants, who alleged that Atlanta wasn't fielding a representative team amid a pennant race.

The complaint to White came from Al Rosen, the Giants' general manager, who apparently was concerned by Atlanta's decision to use rookie pitchers the rest of the year, rather than regular starters John Smoltz, Tom Glavine and Pete Smith.

"We talked to Bill White about it," Craig said. "He's going to check into it."

seconds behind Lori Benson, who runs for a San Francisco area club. Benson was a competitor in the Olympic trials in 1988.

Melanie Hiatt took third for the Mustangs in 17:24. The Mustangs also captured places six through nine.

The team accomplished all this without two of its best runners, senior Patti Almendariz and sophomore Teena Colebrook. Almendariz didn't run because of a sore foot. Colebrook, who is British, is recovering from an extensive racing schedule this last summer in Europe.

Colebrook will run this week at Humboldt, however. The Mustangs will need her because they will face stiffer competition in the University of Oregon, second in the nation in Division I last year.

Many of the Northern California and Oregon schools, running at Humboldt this weekend, will also participate in the Western Regionals in November. Harter therefore sees this weekend's meet as a good opportunity to get a good look at his future competition.

"We want to give a good honest effort on this course to kind of get a feel for what we are going to see at the regionals," Harter said.

Harter added that this year's team is ahead of schedule.

"So far this team has exceeded all expectations," he said.

about the West Regional."

Also at Fresno, the Mustangs knocked off Division I schools Fresno State, UC Irvine and the UC Berkeley.

Senior Tim Campbell led the way for the Mustangs in both invitationals, finishing fourth at Fresno and third at San Francisco.

"Tim Campbell is running just fabulous," Henderson said.

He added that Jim Sorenson, Steve Neubaum, Scott Peterson, Eric Ackerman and Mike Parrot are having great seasons.

The men's next race, like the women's, is the Humboldt State Invitational, where they get to run on the course where the Western Regionals will be held.

DOWNTOWN SAN LUIS OBISPO

Don't Shower Or Bathe!

At least don't take a shower or bath the way you do back in your home town.

San Luis Obispo is in the third year of a drought. We have a serious water shortage. We need your help in saving water.

Everyone is being asked to cut back water use. That means doing things differently here than you're used to. Take shorter showers. Don't fill the bath tub as deep. Don't flush as often. Don't wash your car from a running hose. Don't let water go down the drain unused.

No one knows when the rains will refill our reservoirs. So, we're all in this together. We all have to do our part to save water. Remember, Water is Life . . . Don't Waste It.

Whales' deaths end Bay Area study

VALLEJO, Calif. (AP) — Two beaked whales who survived in captivity for a record stretch of time helped marine biologists conduct ground-breaking live studies of the shy dolphin-like mammal.

Researchers at Marine World Africa USA collected first-of-its-kind film footage of the mammals and were able to record their vocalizations.

Marine researchers had previously obtained only a rare skeleton or carcass to study, said Mike Demetrios, president of Marine World-Africa USA.

Alexander, the healthier of the pair that washed up on a San Francisco beach last month, died early Monday after surviving a record 25 days in captivity.

The other whale, Nicholas, died Sept. 8 of pneumonia.

Grape growers pick up after storm

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — In a violent ending to last weekend's three-day storm, tornadoes touched down in two cities just east of San Francisco and grape growers to the north began sifting through vines to harvest undamaged grapes. The storm dashed hopes of a fruitful grape harvest in the wine country.

Free repairs offered in Ford recall

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ford Motor Co. says it will repair for no charge up to 493,000 Escorts and Mercury Lynxes with faulty emission control systems and 67,156 Tracers with apparent seat belt defects.

The automaker announced recalls of both sets of vehicles Monday. Emission control improver its were offered for the 1.9-liter 1985 Ford Escort and Mercury Lynx and the 1986 Escort, Lynx and Ford EXP.

The Environmental Protection Agency discovered excessive emissions of hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide during routine tests of 1985 models, agency spokeswoman Martha Casey said.

Senate task force to study housing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democrats have created a panel to study the nation's housing needs and recommend reforms in the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Sen. Alan Cranston of California, named to head the eight-member task force, said Monday that one of its purposes will be to prod the Bush administration to take a position on housing for the disadvantaged.

Salcido must stand trial

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) — Ramon Salcido was ordered Tuesday to stand trial for the slaying of seven people in Sonoma County's worst killing spree.

Judge Noel Owen ordered that the charges against Salcido include the special circumstance of multiple murder, which means Salcido could face the death penalty if convicted.

Public Defender Marteen Miller on Tuesday argued unsuccessfully that such charges be dismissed because the country where Salcido was arrested, Mexico, has no death penalty.

Miller also maintained Salcido was improperly extradited under a 1933 treaty signed by several countries, including Mexico and the United States.

Deputy District Attorney Peter Bumerts has said that Salcido's extradition from Mexico was approved by the attorney general of that country and has no bearing on whether Salcido can stand trial in the United States.

Salcido, 28, is charged with the April 14 murders of his wife and two daughters, his mother-in-law, his wife's two sisters and his former supervisor at the Grand Cru Winery. The pre-dawn rampage shocked the quiet communities of the wine country.

Owen scheduled Salcido's arraignment hearing for Oct. 3 before Sonoma County Superior Court Judge R. Bryan Jamar.

Library to be computerized

New system will speed up search for books

By Kathryn Hults
Staff Writer

The whole world can be at the touch of a button — at least Cal Poly's corner of it can be.

The Robert E. Kennedy Library is leaving the old card catalogs behind. Computerized card catalogs are here and will be ready for use at the beginning of winter quarter, said Paul Adalian, head reference librarian.

About 32 to 36 terminals are planned for throughout the library for public use as well as 16 terminals in a lab for instructional use. Sixteen terminals will occupy the space where the old card catalogs are presently located, and eight will be in reference, Adalian said.

The half-million-dollar venture is funded by the California State University Chancellor's office as part of a project to equip all 20 CSU campuses with online card catalogs, he said.

All books, periodicals, maps, computer software, music scores and government documents will be integrated into the catalog.

"We are even indexing all the big collections that were not indexed in the card catalogs before," Adalian said.

This will include the Library of American Civilization, covering America's history from its founding until 1917, he said.

The first step in the system's implementation is to teach thousands of students, staff and faculty to use the computers, he said.

The easiest method for using the new system is similar to using a card catalog. But users can also enter commands for specific date, language and format.

The computer can also cross reference subjects, authors and dates, he said.

"This is where the real power comes in."

The system will also be accessible by outside modems, he said.

More employees will be added when the computers go into use, he said.

The Miriam Library at Chico State was the pilot project. Its online catalogs were implemented seven years ago.

In 1985, Chico began working with the Sequent company to develop a new online catalog, the Symmetry S27. This is the system that Cal Poly is implementing, said Deborah Hunt, systems analyst at Chico State.

At first there were a few bugs in the system, she said, but they have been worked out.

"Everyone is happy with the system," she said.

Cards are no longer filed at Chico.

Cal Poly is going to keep the old card catalogs. They will be moved to the first floor lobby next to the elevators, Adalian said.

New CSU services plan adopted

By Christine Kohn
Staff Writer

A California State University student services plan will provide a blueprint for Cal Poly's educational support services during the next few decades, according to the dean of student affairs.

The plan, which was developed by a CSU Task Force and approved by trustees in June, will provide a systemwide guide for student services that are designed to help students achieve educational goals, improve the quality of student life, enhance the campus learning environment and encourage students to stay in school once they've started.

Educational support services generally include co-curricular (out of class) programs like outreach and recruitment, financial aid, child care and campus clubs.

Cal Poly officials will use the plan as a model for a "sound program," said Vice President of Student Affairs Hazel Scott.

University officials will pay particular attention to professional standards described in the plan. Although Cal Poly already evaluates student services, the professional criteria recommended in the plan will provide a new standard, Scott said.

According to Scott, Cal Poly's student services are in "good shape," with all 21 programs required by the plan. Those programs include learning assistance, health services, disabled student services and counseling.

Cal Poly also offers 10 out of 11 optional services listed in the plan, such as career counseling and placement for alumni, community-based student internships, parent orientation programs and preadmission advising.

The only service not offered by the university is for commuting students.

Candidate can't "bare" to give up

YUCAIPA, Calif. (AP) — City council candidates shouldn't necessarily bare all, say two men seeking that job.

They want a photographer who posed nude in Playgirl magazine and a swingers' publication to withdraw from the race for Yucaipa City Council.

Wesley Ford, 41, an attorney and photographer, is one of 19 candidates vying for a council seat in the Nov. 7 election in the San Bernardino County town.

Two of his opponents, Brett Granlund and Conrad Nelson, called for his withdrawal recently after receiving copies of an advertisement depicting Ford nude in the August edition of "Swingers Hot Line."

Ford reportedly appeared nude in a 1984 issue of Playgirl magazine, in which he was shown prone on a bed, on a rocky beach and with a towel draped around his neck.

"I'm getting a little old for it, though," he said. "I've got too many gray hairs now."

Ford said he also photographs nude models in his studio at home and sells sexually explicit photographs to various men's magazines, including Hustler, Genesis, Club and Gallery.

"He thinks he's getting a million dollars worth of free publicity out of this, which may be true. But most of it is negative," said Nelson, who unsuccessfully ran for the Yucaipa City Council in 1987.

Ford called his opponents "stone-throwing hypocrites" and has refused to withdraw from the race.
