Longest-held hostage released

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — American journalist Terry Anderson emerged Wednesday from 6 1/2 years in captivity in Lebanon, smiling broadly at a meeting with reporters in the Syrian Foreign Ministry.

Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent of The Associated Press, was the hostage held longest by Lebanese kidnappers.

At the foreign ministry, he wore a cardigan sweater, white shirt and his customary glasses.

"He looks real good, he looks healthy and happy and free at last," said his brother, John Anderson, live on television in the United States.

Anderson, who was flanked by U.N. hostage negotiator Giandomenico Picco and Syrian Foreign Minister Farouk al-Sharra, joked: "You're all my friends, I can't get to you all."

Picco told Anderson, "Your freedom is a victory for all." The U.N. envoy said the hostages would not have been freed without the cooperation of Iran and Syria.

At the foreign ministry, Anderson was turned over to U.S. Ambassador Christopher Ross. Syria is the traditional first stop for hostages freed from Lebanon.

Anderson told reporters: "You can't imagine how glad I am to see you. I thought about this moment for a long time and now it's here, and I'm scared to death. I don't know what to say."

He then thanked the Syrians, the Lebanese and the Iranians — as well as his sister Peggy Say, who he called "my incredible sister Peg" — who worked tirelessly for his release.

He also singled out the British Broadcasting Corp. for helping to keep the hostages informed after they were given a radio by their Lebanese captors.

Anderson appeared fit, and spoke in a strong voice, gesturing and laughing at times.

He said he was given new clothes Tuesday — along with his first new shoes in seven years. "They hurt my feet by the way," he quipped.

"I think these last 24 hours have been longer than the last 6 1/2 years."

He said he had no news of other hostages.

Anderson was held by Islamic Jihad, an Iranian-allied group of Shiite Muslim fundamentalists. He was kidnapped in Beirut on March 16, 1985.

Asked what kept him going, he said: "I was lucky enough to have other people with me most of the time. ... My faith, stubbornness, I guess.

"You wake up every day and you summon up the energy from somewhere ... and you get through the day, day after day after day."

Asked what his last words were to his captors, he rolled his eyes and said: "Goodbye!"

Poly professor wears bracelet to remember captivity, freedom

By Mark Marden
Staff Writer

Terry Anderson, the last and longest-held hostage in Lebanon, is free.

The 44-year-old Associated Press Middle East bureau chief's 2,450 days in captivity did not go unnoticed by his colleagues around the world or here at Cal Poly.

Journalism professor Jim Hayes, who has served as an adviser to AP, has been wearing a bracelet engraved with Anderson's name, his March 16, 1985 capture date and small Bible verse notation.

"The AP staff began wearing them probably within the first year of his captivity," Hayes said.

"One of the AP newsmen put it on me two years ago and said 'Here, wear this in honor of our brother who's a captive.'"

"In the beginning I was sort of embarrassed to wear it because I'm not much of a bumper-strip kind of guy. It seemed like some kind of statement."

Hayes said that gradually, as he wore the bracelet, he began to feel differently.

"I became proud of it because it made people aware of Hayes said his wife Ellen also wore a bracelet.

CSU Board puts lid on enrollment

By Travis Swafford
Staff Writer

The Master Plan of the California State University system mandates that CSU campuses accept the top third of California's students. Next year, for the first time in the history of the institution, that provision of the plan will be abandoned.

The CSU Board of Trustees voted at its November meeting to halt enrollment increases at 14 CSU locations and have only minimal growth in the remaining six campuses.

The state is not expected to allocate funds for growth in the CSU system for the coming year.

The unprecedented action was taken because the state is not expected to allocate funds for growth in the CSU system for the coming year, and the current budget is not capable of sustaining growth, according to a summary of the Nov. 21, 1991 meeting of the Board of Trustees.

Howard West, executive assistant to Cal Poly President Warren J. Baker, said the trustees' decision will not affect Poly.

"Cal Poly was already budgeted for the same number of FTE (full-time equivalent) students that we have this year, so nothing has changed for us," West said.

President Baker was out of town and could not comment on the trustees' decision. However, West said that Baker has often supported the idea that enrollment should be limited, relative to the funds allocated, in order to

City Council decides to delay earthquake plan

By Travis Swafford
Staff Writer

The fate of some buildings and retail stores hung in the balance for almost three hours Tuesday as the San Luis Obispo City Council debated an earthquake safety resolution.

The council was unable to reach a conclusion regarding the measure and decided to review the matter next month.

At issue was the proposed Unreinforced Masonry Building Strengthening Program, a result of the earthquake safety ordinance.

The strengthening program is a somewhat less stringent version of the earthquake safety ordinance, which asks counties to establish procedures of retrofitting of unreinforced masonry buildings.

The strengthening program would require owners of unreinforced masonry buildings to register with the county recorder within 30 days of adoption.

Following registration, owners must obtain an engineering report within 18 months regarding retrofitting necessary to bring the building up to county standards.

Then, in the event of a major remodel or change of occupancy classification, it would require the owner to have the necessary retrofitting work completed.

The main point of debate centered around the seismic classification under which San Luis Obispo would be labeled. Under the strengthening program, the county classifies itself as a level 3 risk. The state classifies San Luis Obispo as level 4, which requires more extensive and more expensive retrofitting to occur.

The concern expressed by several council members and members of the public was that business owners would comply with the county's standards, only to be forced to retrofit again when the state adopts more stringent regulations, expected in January 1993.

"We are talking about half a million to a million dollars we are asking these people to spend," said council member Jerry Reiss. "We had better make sure that the state is going to classify us as a level 3 area before we make them spend that much money."

Another major concern was the cost of the a possible retrofit. Dave Garth, executive director of the Chamber of Commerce, said he had talked to several building owners who would leave their buildings, rather than face the costs of the retrofit.

"Many people have less equity in their buildings than the projected retrofit would

Gorbachev warns of war if union crumbles

MOSCOW (AP) — President Mikhail S. Gorbachev warned Tuesday that the disintegration of the Soviet Union will lead to misfortune, catastrophe and war, but Russia hastened the breakup by recognizing Ukraine's new statehood.

Saying the country was experiencing a destructive "crisis of statehood," Gorbachev urged lawmakers across the Soviet Union to approve his proposed Union Treaty.

"The breakup of such a multiethnic community will bring misfortunes upon millions of our people, which will outbalance all possible temporary benefits from secession," Gorbachev said in a statement distributed to lawmakers in all 12 republics, not just those seven who have said they will sign the treaty.

Rebel troops capture Togo's prime minister

LOME, Togo (AP) — Soldiers seeking to force Gen. Gnassingbe Eyadema back to power used tanks and rockets to blast into the civilian government palace Tuesday and seize the reformist prime minister, killing at least 17 people.

Eyadema issued a statement saying Prime Minister Joseph Koffigoh was brought to him for discussions. A radio report late Tuesday said the two agreed to form a coalition government and ordered the troops back to their barracks.

The report by Togo radio did not say who would be in the "national unity government," but Eyadema and his troops clearly were in control. Koffigoh apparently remained in the custody of the rebel soldiers.

White House chief of staff resigns from post

WASHINGTON (AP) — John H. Sununu, the combative White House chief of staff whose abrasive style earned him enemies in both parties, resigned Tuesday, telling President Bush he didn't want to be "a drag on your success."

Speculation immediately centered on Transportation Secretary Samuel K. Skinner as a likely successor, although the White House said no decision had been made.

Sununu handed Bush a five-page handwritten resignation note on Air Force One while Bush was on a trip to Florida and Mississippi.

Bush accepted the resignation, effective Dec. 15, and said in a statement that Sununu would remain as a counselor with Cabinet rank through March 1.

Sununu's resignation ended weeks of rumor that he was on his way out.

Boy turns parents in for suspected drug use

WAUKESHA, Wis. (AP) — A 13-year-old boy who feared his parents' alleged drug use was hurting their health has turned them in and won praise from police.

The boy, from Menomonee Falls, contacted police last week after discovering drugs in the house. His parents were arrested Wednesday.

"It definitely took courage for the boy to come forward," Menomonee Falls police Capt. Jack Pitrof said Monday. "Our officers assigned to schools say they are seeing more kids coming forward and saying they've seen various things their parents are doing" with drugs.

Wilson proposes new logging restrictions

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Pete Wilson on Tuesday proposed sweeping logging restrictions that he said would protect both the environment and timber jobs in California forests.

"A decade of conflict is coming to an end, with it we hope the timber wars," Wilson told a news conference held under a pine tree on the Capitol's east lawn.

But some environmentalists didn't rule out the possibility of a campaign fight over another timber protection initiative next year.

Wilson was joined by environmentalists, timber industry executives and administration officials who negotiated the agreement after he vetoed the tougher "Sierra Accord."

The Wilson legislation would impose a 30-acre limit on clear-cutting, down from the current 120-acre maximum, in privately owned timberland. It would also ban clear-cutting in ancient forests.

Lawyer gets 16 years for murdering client

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — A former attorney who murdered a client who discovered he was embezzling money from her was sentenced to 16 years to life in prison.

Norman Russell Sjonborg was found guilty of killing Phyllis Wilde, 55, after she showed him evidence that he had taken $5,000 from her trust account while serving as her attorney, authorities said.

"His social status notwithstanding, (he) is truly one of the most dangerous sociopaths I have ever seen, and I say that based on my 18 and a half years on the bench," Superior Court Judge Lawrence Terry.

Rugby club ends preseason with a strong finish

Cal Poly's Rugby Club just closed its preseason play with a victory at the Cyprus Veterans Tournament in Orange County on Nov. 23.

Poly won the collegiate division, where it competed against eight teams for the title.

"The win really boosted our attitudes because we played some really strong teams," said Mike Gossett, vice president of the Rugby Club.

The club opens its season on Jan. 18, 1992 when it faces UC Santa Barbara.

"We're looking forward to a strong season," Gossett said. "It looks like we're going to have a good team again this year."

Anyone interested in becoming a member of the club can attend practice Tuesdays and Thursdays at 3:30 p.m. Practice is held at the L-shaped field located below the track.

Report shows freshmen, sophomores outnumbered at senior-dominated Poly

By Mark Marden
Staff Writer

If you're a freshman or even a sophomore enrolled at Cal Poly, consider yourself a rare breed.

A recent report compiled by Institutional Studies shows that of the 15,491 undergraduate students enrolled at Cal Poly, only 2,822 are freshman and 2,656 are sophomores.

On the other end of the scale, 10,013 juniors and seniors roam Poly's campus. Of those, 6,554 are seniors and 3,459 are juniors.

Walter Mark, director of Institutional Studies, said that part of the reason for the disparity is the way the California State University system classifies students.

"The system we're using to designate these (levels) doesn't fit very well in the curriculum structure we have on campus," Mark said. "It wasn't designed for the polytechnic-type programs we have."

Mark said the class-level designations are based on CSU liberal arts requirements.

Bachelor of Arts degrees are based on 180-unit graduation requirements while Bachelor of Science degrees require 198 units or more, he said.

"These classifications were designated under the premise that the CSU is a liberal arts system," Mark said. "There are only two or three BA programs on campus. All the rest are BS or other programs which have a unit level of at least 198 to graduate."

"In the School of Engineering most of their programs

Parking fines give Poly more than $444,000

By Patricia Egan
Staff Writer

Cal Poly collected $444,179 in revenue from parking tickets during the last school year, said Kimi Ikeda, associate director of budget and planning at Cal Poly.

All money generated by these fines and forfeitures during the school year is allocated for the following year.

Ikeda said that the university is "very restrictive as to how this money is spent."

This year 50 percent of the money was used to cover administrative costs and 50 percent was used on alternative modes of transportation, Ikeda said.

Alternative modes are programs that have been made available to students, employees and faculty so they don't have to drive to campus everyday, Ikeda said.

They include the Central Coast Area Transit free bus system for Cal Poly riders within the City of San Luis Obispo, ASI bus subsidies that provide reduced bus fares to students and faculty traveling from outside

With CAPTURE breaking down, efficient ticketing is not a priority

The Issue: The university's decision to spend $30,000 on a new hand-held computer ticketing system, while CAPTURE is in great need of a backup system.

It was an epic Cal Poly student nightmare: "...Welcome to CAPTURE...Cal Poly's touchtone user registration system...enter an action co (click)..." And then there was nothing. For more than 24 hours — from early Monday morning until Tuesday at noon — 756-7777 was just another busy signal. For more than 500 students it was more than 24 hours of stress and tension. Tear out some hair. Lose some sleep. Pray for tomorrow.

Student Data Systems, which oversees the CAPTURE system, deserves no blame for the failings. Their flexibility by creating additional CAPTURE hours on Tuesday, Wednesday and Saturday should be commended as a quick response for the convenience of students.

The problem is that like any computer system, CAPTURE will break down, and a backup system is an important need at Cal Poly.

Cal Poly collected $444,179 in revenue from parking tickets during the last school year, and has decided to spend $30,000 of it on a new, hand-held computer ticketing system for Public Safety.

CAPTURE is in need of a backup system, and $30,000 is spent on more efficient ticketing?

Perhaps the campus priorities are backward.

According to a budget and planning official, 50 percent of ticket revenue goes to administrative costs such as salaries of cashiers and parking ticket writers. The other 50 percent is used for improved transportation programs such as bicycle lanes and safety phones in campus parking lots.

Nowhere does a computer system for parking tickets fit into this budget.

If an exception is to be made, it should be made for a great student need.

A CAPTURE backup system is that great need.

CAPTURE breaks down. It has problems. It deserves money to improve its system.

Parking ticket writers do not break down. Collected revenue of $444,179 shows that the system is plenty efficient. It does not need money to improve its system.

The budget it has requested is full...no other money is available at this time...enter your next request now...

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Unborn children aren't 'parasites'

In response to R. Wayne Ball's commentary (Dec. 3) on the abortion controversy, we are appalled at the choice of words in describing the fetus — a living, growing human being. Your portrayal of this tiny human as a parasitic product of conception is disturbing. You then go on to state that you are a "loving, caring father." How can you claim that you are at once a great father and at the same time that your children are parasites?

Contrary to your opinion as stated in the article, the human fetus is a unique individual from the moment of conception. It does not just become a "functioning independent human being" at the moment the "umbilical cord is cut." What is this magical transformation that takes place that allows a parasite to become a human being through the use of a scissors?

We also disagree with your statement that a "non-consensual pregnant female" has "ten lunar months of involuntary servitude." The fact is that the female does have a choice. The misconception is in the idea that the choice is to be made once the woman is pregnant. Abortion is not an acceptable option. The primary choices consist of whether or not to have sex and whether or not to utilize contraceptive devices.

If we all valued human life inside the womb as much as we value it outside of the womb, we would all see abortion for what it is: MURDER.

COMMENTARY

Blood lust runs through the nation

By Jack Healy

The will to kill prevailed in this country on September 25. Shortly after 3 a.m., the State of Georgia strapped down Warren McCleskey — for the second time that night — and sent enough electricity through his body to kill him.

Mr. McCleskey's case embodies an appalling range of failures in our criminal justice system. His death signals a shameful turn away from human rights protection and humanitarian norms. But I believe that some day U.S. citizens will look back with horror at September 25, 1991, recognizing the full importance of Warren McCleskey's execution and demanding that nothing like this happen ever again.

With your help, that day of enlightenment will come before the passage of too many more dark and bloody years.

Racial discrimination and blatantly unconstitutional process marked Warren McCleskey's conviction and sentencing. His final appeal for clemency and last hours were no less confused and hectic.

One spokesperson for the Georgia Department of Pardons and Paroles described the final hours as "chaotic."

Justice Thurgood Marshall's assessment of the case, delivered in the early morning hours of September 25, was: "In refusing to grant a stay to review fully McCleskey's claims, the Supreme Court values expediency over human life. Repeatedly denying Warren McCleskey his constitutional rights is unacceptable. Executing him is inexcusable."

A Georgia jury convicted Mr. McCleskey, a black factory worker, of killing a white police officer during an armed robbery in 1978. The case against him as the triggerman was largely based on witnesses of questionable reliability.

One of the other holdup men, who subsequently was charged with a lesser offense, fingered McCleskey as the gunman who shot Officer Frank Schlatt. A prisoner held in the cell adjacent to Warren McCleskey had confessed to the crime.

Warren McCleskey's lawyers filed appeals resulting in two landmark Supreme Court decisions. In its 1987 McCleskey v. Kemp ruling, the court accepted evidence of statewide racial discrimination in Georgia's judicial system.

Lawyers showed that in Georgia, people convicted of killing white victims are four times more likely to receive the death penalty than any other category of defendant. Blacks charged with killing whites are the most vulnerable to execution.

Yet the Court ruled by a slim 5-4 majority that "apparent disparities in sentencing are an inevitable part of our criminal justice system." In other words, statistical proof of systematic racial discrimination was insufficient grounds for staying Mr. McCleskey's execution.

Mr. McCleskey's second Supreme Court appeal resulted from facts uncovered after enactment of the Freedom of Information Act. Quite unexpectedly, lawyers discovered in 1987 that the prisoner who had testified against Warren McCleskey was a police informant.

He had been placed in an adjacent cell, and prosecutors had dropped the charges against him in return for his testimony in the McCleskey case.

Prosecutors had withheld the informer's 21-page statement from defense lawyers. The McCleskey jury was never told that the witness before them was an informer.

The Supreme Court ruled this year in McCleskey v. Zant that judicial "procedure" takes precedence over the facts. The court decided that Mr. McCleskey's lawyers hadn't shown sufficient reason for not addressing the informer issue at an earlier hearing, even though the new evidence had not become available until mid-1987.

The court, therefore, denied Warren McCleskey's appeal on procedural grounds, not on the merits of the case.

Georgia officials chose to kill Warren McCleskey this fall, despite impassioned domestic and international protest. Nelson Mandela called Mr. McCleskey's execution "a tragic miscarriage of justice."

Warren McCleskey was the 155th person put to death in this country since reinstatement of executions in the late 1970s.

There will, I fear, be much more killing before the United States joins the growing number of countries which prohibit this abhorrent practice.

Jack Healy is the executive director of Amnesty International.

Chick Corea to 'elektrify' Cuesta

'Outrageous' show drops in for final stop of band's '91 concert tour

By David Bock
Editorial Staff

Jazz composer and pianist Chick Corea doesn't know what it means to 'tickle the ivories.'

He only knows what it means to dominate them.

Local jazz enthusiasts will have a chance to learn the difference Monday night as Corea and his Elektric Band will be on hand at the Cuesta College Auditorium to perform their high-powered brand of jazz.

"There's no question that it's going to be a super high-energy show," said Chris O'Connell, KCBX DJ and host of "Morning Cup of Jazz," San Luis Obispo's popular daily radio jazz program.

"This is the last concert of the (band's) tour, and it's going to be outrageous."

O'Connell contends that Corea is one of the premier jazz musicians in the world.

"I think his musical sensibility is unique," he said. "I don't think there's anyone else who has the musical sensibility he has. And you really hear it come through — definitely in his solo playing — but I think even more so in his composing ... he's really one of a kind."

Concert-goers can expect to see two 45-minute sets of hard-driving electric jazz highlighted by Corea's fierce keyboard soloing.

Backed by his outstanding band — all accomplished solo performers in their own rights — Corea will deliver a full package of his Latin-influenced, contemporary jazz fusion.

Saxophone player Eric Marienthal, a member of the five-man Elektric Band, said playing with Corea is like a dream come true. He said he's learned a lot from playing with the 50-year-old pianist/keyboardist, particularly about improvising.

"He's such a great improviser, especially in terms of how fresh he can be," Marienthal said. "I've learned a lot about how to be more creative in my soloing."

Marienthal said another one of Corea's strengths is his skill as a composer.

"He never stops creating," Marienthal said. "Chick's music is very unique. It's really a phenomenon for somebody to be so prolific and maintain such quality over such a long period of time."

Marienthal, who's played on the last four Chick Corea Elektric Band releases, is joined in the band by John Patitucci (bass), Frank Gambale (electric guitar) and Dave Weckl (drums).

Corea began playing piano at the age of four, and began his ascent to jazz greatness in the '60s by playing with a number of key players, including Herbie Mann and Stan Getz.

In the late '60s, Corea was almost instantly elevated to jazz stardom by joining Miles Davis and recording with him on some of the jazz trumpeter's most historically important albums such as "Bitches Brew" and "In a Silent Way."

A few years after leaving Davis' band, Corea formed Return to Forever, a key group in the evolution of the electric jazz-fusion movement. Until the band broke up in 1980, it's lineup changed frequently, with most members moving on to have substantial careers of their own: Stanley Clarke, Al DiMeola,

Lenny White, Airto Moreira.

In 1986, Corea formed the Elektric Band, which has just released its fifth recording, "Beneath the Mask," on the GRP label.

In press material, Corea said of the new recording, "I made a conscious attempt to make an Elektric Band album that is closer to what we normally do in performance — to expand on the feeling we've experienced playing live, especially over this last year."

"This band has a certain kind of message, a certain kind of energy in its live performances, that I wanted to get across."

Corea is a Grammy award nominee, and his name continually appears on Downbeat magazine's Reader's Poll.

Marienthal said during the Cuesta concert the band will perform songs mostly from its new release, as well as several Elektric Band classics such as "Got A Match?"

In addition, the band will play a few songs in honor of jazz trumpeter and composer Miles Davis, who died earlier this year.

Marienthal hinted that "something special" was planned for the concert but would not say more. And neither would O'Connell.

O'Connell did say, however, that whatever the surprise is, it would "make this particular concert that much more poignant, profound and carry that much more weight."

The concert, which begins at 8 p.m., is being sponsored by the San Luis Obispo Jazz Federation, the Cuesta College music department and KCBX. Tickets range in price from $20 to $13. Call 546-3198 for information.

Warren Miller ski flick comes to Poly Theatre

By Amy Koval
Staff Writer

I guess Warren Miller is some guy from Southern California who has made feature-length ski films for 42 years running.

This I found out last week after I was handed a "sneak preview" videotape of the film and told to review it. Obviously, I needed help.

So I researched a little, then decided to let others in on the preview. They seemed excited to get a chance to catch Miller's latest work, "Born to Ski," which will be playing at the Cal Poly Theatre Friday and Saturday nights at 7 and 9 p.m.

First, a summary. Warren Miller is recognized as the most popular ski filmmaker in the United States.

He was born and raised in Hollywood and began skiing when he was young. After teaching two executives how to ski one day, he convinced them to lend him a video camera to photograph skiers on the slopes.

Not too long after that, Miller created his first feature-length ski film. That was 42 years ago.

Now, "Born to Ski" follows in typical Miller fashion. It is premised on the idea that Miller is traveling the globe to find people who are as into skiing as he is. Along the way he finds them, but he also finds snowboarders, mountain bikers, windsurfers, rollerbladers, bungee jumpers and parasailers.

If Miller has been known for ... silliness, adventure and travel in his films, he has most definitely reaffirmed his style with "Born to Ski."

"Born to Ski" is not just about skiing.

As usual, Miller narrates as he and his sidekicks bring the scenery of places such as Canada, Chile, Yugoslavia, France, Japan and Switzerland to the screen, and take viewers with them down challenging runs. And of course, there are "crash-and-burn" sequences.

And now, the commentary.

One of my fellow previewers was annoyed. He said that the film, sponsored by Nissan, is indicative of the fact that Miller has taken the corporate bait, and the film does display a big-money corporate flair. The film is also sponsored by American Airlines and Visa.

"Warren Miller has entered Yuppiedom," the political science senior said, explaining that the old Warren Miller would have packed up a Volkswagen van and headed for the wilderness. Now he drives a Pathfinder and sleeps in plush cabins.

But another student disagreed. Warren Miller is still the same, he said, and he still has the same sense of humor. He added that skiers who have never experienced Miller should wait no longer to try him out.

So who's right?

If Miller has been known for — and commended for — silliness, adventure and travel in his films, he has most definitely reaffirmed his style with "Born to Ski."

Then again, if Miller's audience has come to embrace the idea that he is a bohemian-type guy who's into roughing it not only on the slopes but as a way of life, they may be disappointed.

The "Born to Ski" press information says Warren Miller is a man who "looks at the world through 14-year-old eyes." So the key to walking out of the theater with a smile must be to do the same — leave the ugly, smug political science cynicism behind for a moment and just enjoy the damn thing.

Thomas J. (Macaulay Culkin) and Vada Sultenfuss (Anna Chlumsky) chat on the steps in "My Girl."

'My Girl' charms with young newcomer

By Brian Volk
Staff Writer

If you are tired of the void left in your gut after paying exorbitant prices for shallow acting, look no further. "My Girl" delivers.

The movie, which opened Nov. 27, delivers tears and laughter all rolled up into that one significant time in our lives — the birth of adolescence.

Directed by Howard Zieff, "My Girl" stars Dan Aykroyd, Jamie Lee Curtis and "Home Alone's" Macaulay Culkin. The story relates how an 11-year-old tomboy named Vada Sultenfuss, played by newcomer Anna Chlumsky, learns about and overcomes her youthful confusion about death.

The movie starts with Vada leading her younger friends on a paid tour of her home, which doubles as her father's mortuary, to see a dead person. The catch is that the "dead" person happens to be her zombie-like grandmother, who with one motion, sends the kids screaming and flying out the door.

It takes no time for the viewer to become absorbed in the fun-loving and never-boring character of Vada Sultenfuss.

If there was one surprise in the film, it was how Chlumsky pleasantly out-charmed her more famous counterpart, Culkin, who played the role of her best friend and "blood brother," Thomas J.

The story is intertwined with contemplations of the playful and adventurous pair as they ponder the many questions and mysteries of adult life confronting them as they come of age.

Pedaling through the streets, hanging from trees and nosing through old junk in the garage, the two actors did a fine job of reminding the older viewer of the energy and curiosity of childhood.

Also during the movie, Vada deals with family matters.

Vada, stricken with guilt, is convinced that her father is mad at her for taking the life of his wife and stealing the happiness he once had.

Vada never knew her father was ever happy until Shelly DeVoto, played by Jamie Lee Curtis, enters the family's life.

Curtis plays a cosmetologist who accepts the job of "beautifying" the dead prepared by the eccentric Aykroyd.

Aykroyd and Curtis have rekindled the spark they created playing opposite each other in "Trading Places," but viewers will be pleased to discover a serious and talented side of Aykroyd that was never emphasized until now.

I liked this movie immensely, despite some of the somewhat out-of-place remarks made by Chlumsky (a habit writers have in trying to make the child sound too funny).

"My Girl" is a film made for those who have experienced adolescence and those who still have yet to experience it — making it a film for everyone.

SLO, Morro parade holiday cheer

By Cindy Lee
Staff Writer

Jingle bells and sleigh bells will soon be ringing in San Luis Obispo and Morro Bay.

Ready or not, the Christmas season has arrived.

Morro Bay and San Luis Obispo have planned enough events to fill the shopping days before Christmas with plenty of holiday cheer.

This Saturday, Morro Bay is hosting the 1991 lighted boat parade and Christmas tree lighting.

The Christmas tree lighting begins at 4:30 p.m. at the city park in Morro Bay, located on the corner of Harbor and Morro Bay boulevards. There will be choirs, cookies, a band, coffee, hot apple cider and a special visit from Santa.

Mayor Rose Marie Sheetz will do the honors of officially lighting the tree at approximately 5:15 p.m.

The lighted boat parade will begin at 7 p.m. and will run the length of the Embarcadero in Morro Bay.

Recommended spots to view the parade and take pictures are the parade's entry spot at Tidelands Launch, the Morro Bay Yacht Club, where judging will take place, the North Tidelands Pier and the turning point and end of the Embarcadero. Other recommended spots include restaurants with balconies along the waterfront.

The lead boat, a Coast Guard cutter, will begin the parade lineup at about 6:30 p.m. at Tidelands Launch.

Vicky Alfano, Morro Bay's Cultural Arts and Services Coordinator, said the boat parade is a unique event.

"It's something different," she said. "It's the only event of its kind on the Central Coast."

Not to be outdone by the goings-on in Morro Bay, San Luis Obispo is planning its own set of events to celebrate the Christmas season.

Floats, bands, carolers and Santa Claus will bring the Christmas spirit to life in the streets of San Luis Obispo when the annual Christmas Parade is held Friday.

The parade, following a "Twelve Days of Christmas" theme, will wind its way through the decorated streets of downtown and end at the 200-year-old Mission San Luis Obispo de Tolosa.

On Saturday and Sunday, the Mission Plaza will feature local artists and their fine crafts. More than 100 booths of unique gifts and fresh-baked goods will be set up.

For those who are looking for a bit of the performing arts during this busy season, the Civic Ballet of San Luis Obispo will perform its annual showing of Tchaikovsky's Christmas classic, The Nutcracker, Dec. 12-15 at the Cal Poly Theatre.

Another holiday concert, from the San Luis Obispo County Symphony, takes place this Sunday.

Lynn Block, from the Business Improvement Association which is sponsoring the parade, said that from Dec. 9 through Dec. 23 different artists, including puppeteers, string quartets and jugglers, will be performing downtown each night.

Block also said that for the holiday season, between Nov. 29 and Dec. 25, two hours of meter-free parking will be offered downtown.

have a 210-unit requirement," Mark said.

"So now we're a whole 30 units more than what that classification system was designed to define."

Mark said many students in the upper two categories would fall out of the upper levels if the system was based on calculating levels by one quarter of the 198 or more unit requirement.

"It would be a more accurate reflection of the time students have left to get their degree," he said.

Also, Mark said, the CSU system requires the number of juniors and seniors to be at least 60 percent of total enrollment.

"The 60 percent rule is intended to give priority to junior college transfer students," Mark said.

Mark also cited the struggling economy as a possibility for why seniors are taking their time at school to finish up or taking minor courses.

SLO bike committee wants student input

City group circulates questionnaire

By Jeff Krump
Staff Writer

Anyone who has complaints about biking in San Luis Obispo can air their opinions in a questionnaire being distributed by the City Bike Advisory Committee of San Luis Obispo.

The City Council created the City Bike Advisory Committee to help the council spend approximately $400,000 that the city put aside to improve biking in the city.

"We're trying to get suggestions for improvement, dangerous roads, where more racks could be downtown," said City Bike Advisory Committee Member Craig Anderson.

Committee chairman Richard

Marshall said money will also be used for education programs and promotional activities.

Marshall said the 10-member committee consists of five city employees and five members of the general public.

The questionnaire is available at Cal Poly's Robert E. Kennedy Library, at the circulation desk and also at the information desk in the Administration building, Anderson said.

Marshall said the surveys can also be picked up at local bike shops and through bike clubs.

"We think a lot of students would be interested in this," Anderson said.

"Students are a major group but we are also looking at employees who bike to work,"

STEVEN J. MUELLER/Mustang Daily

A trio of bicyclists on Foothill Boulevard courageously exercise their right to turn in a busy lane.

Marshall said.

The gold-colored survey consists of four questions and the postage is already paid

"Just fold it and put it in the mail," Anderson said.

The questionnaires will be collected on December 15, said

Anderson.

"We're hoping by January or February we'll see the results of this (survey)," Anderson said.

the city limits, the bike safety program, vehicle enforcement, the escort service that operates in conjunction with campus fraternities and emergency phones to promote safety incentives to people walking or biking to campus.

The other 50 percent paid for administrative costs like partial salaries of cashiers and students who process parking tickets, the cost of having the county process overdue tickets and other miscellaneous costs for supplies necessary to ensure payment of violations.

Last year's parking ticket revenue was also used to purchase the new, hand-held computer ticketing system for Public Safety. Administrative costs will now also include the maintenance of the new system.

The total cost for the new system was approximately $30,000, said Cindy Campbell, a Cal Poly parking administrator.

Campbell said Cal Poly Public Safety issued 38,377 parking tickets last year.

She anticipates that the number of parking tickets issued for this year will decrease slightly because of the new computer system.

"The machine slows us down a little," Campbell said.

The hand-held ticket machines double the time to generate a ticket compared to hand writing them, she said.

The cost for the parking violations of unauthorized handicapped parking and illegally parking in a bike lane increased this year, Campbell said.

Despite the decrease in the number of violations that will be issued this year, Ikeda said the revenue generated by the parking tickets on campus will continue to increase.

CITY COUNCIL

cost," Garth said.

Destruction of historic buildings was also a concern expressed by council members. Under the proposal, some buildings could be found unsafe and require destruction.

"We may cause wholesale demolition of buildings that have survived 100 years with the stroke of a pen," said council member Peg Pinard.

Due to the lack of consensus, the council decided to delay implementation of the program until the state designates the area's seismic level.

it's over with.
"But I don't know what I'm going to do with the bracelet," Hayes said. "I've never taken it off for any reason."

Some have suggested sending the bracelet to Anderson.

"I think he has enough to worry about without getting a bunch of bracelets in the mail," Hayes said.

Hayes said the AP bureau in Los Angeles has kept a red and white banner in their office changing the date daily, counting each day of Anderson's 6 1/2 years of captivity.

"They're probably celebrating down there now," Hayes said.

The small Bible verse notation etched on the edge of the bracelet is from Hebrew 13:3.

Hayes looked it up.

It reads, "Remember them that are in bonds, as bound with them; and them which suffer adversity, as being yourselves also in the body."

"What that verse reminds you of is that you have to think about everyone who has been confined," Hayes said.

"Terry Anderson is a wonderful human and we ought to be happy that he's free, but a lot of people in the world aren't free yet."

maintain quality education.

The current proposal calls for an enrollment increase of only about 2,000 students to be absorbed by the Dominguez Hills, Hayward, Los Angeles, Northridge, San Bernardino and San Marcos campuses, according to Colleen Bentley-Adler, the public affairs officer at the Chancellor's Office.

All other CSU campuses will not increase enrollment figures next year. Approximately 12,000 qualified students are expected to be denied admission to the CSU system.

After the trustees' latest meeting, Chancellor Barry Munitz expressed reservations about the bleak financial situation facing the CSU system.

"This is a survival budget, one that meets only the very basic educational needs of the CSU," Munitz said in Stateline, a CSU newsletter.

At the meeting, trustees expressed concern regarding the quality of education in the CSU system.

"We have to choose between quality and access in this age of declining resources," said trustee John Kashiwabara in the newsletter. "What we are choosing is quality."

The budget approved by the trustees for the 1992-93 year asks the state for $1.77 billion, a 7 percent increase over 1991-92.

The proposal has been forwarded to the state for review. The final budget will be unveiled in January.

The minimum growth proposal comes after the combined CSU campuses had to cancel 4,000 class sections this fall, lay off or not rehire 3,000 faculty, lay off approximately 900 staff, delay new equipment purchases and defer needed maintenance throughout the system, according to Stateline.
