Beyond the belly

By Britt Fekete
Daily Staff Writer

One of the first things Mindy Chairez learned about "belly dancing" was that the form of Middle Eastern dance has much more to do with beauty and grace than it has to do with wiggling bellies.

She was 16 when she saw beautiful women, draped in scarves and jewelry, gracefully moving their bodies to Middle Eastern music while they danced in a downtown Hillsburg, Calif. cafe.

As she stood there staring at the dancers through the cafe windows, Chairez knew she was hooked.

"They just looked so beautiful, and I was like 'I want to do that,'" she said.

From that moment at the little cafe sprang the ornamental horticulture freshman's true love for what most people recognize as "belly dancing."

Chairez quickly signed up for lessons and, upon coming to Cal Poly, enrolled in Mary Donnelly's World Dance class.

She has learned the basic foot, hip and arm movements and has familiarized herself with the rhythms of Middle Eastern music.

She said the hardest part of learning the dance was isolating her body, training it to only move one part at a time. Most of the movements in this style of dance use the hips, and Chairez said at first she felt a little ridiculous and awkward about moving her hips in such an unnatural way.

"I found muscles I didn't know I had," she said.

Despite her love for the art form, Chairez said there is a negative stereotype associated with Middle Eastern dance. She said some people, especially younger men, only look at the dancers' bodies, missing the beauty of the dance.

"I think in general this dance is a misunderstood dance. I like being a part of it just so that I can help people understand what it's really about. It's a cultural dance, a really beautiful dance," she said. "I just wish peo-

Iraq agreement reached

By Robert H. Reid
Associated Press

UNITED NATIONS — The Security Council reached tentative agreement Monday on a resolution warning Iraq of "severest consequences" if it violates an arms inspection deal.

The council began meeting in the evening to vote on the resolution.

Annan, in a rare speech to the council, said it was now up to the Iraqis to honor the agreement and determine "whether the threat to international peace and security has been averted for all times."

"With today's Security Council resolution, however, the government of Iraq fully understands that if this effort to ensure compliance through negotiations is obstructed, by evasion or deception, diplomacy may not have a

Bodyguard remembers Princess Diana's voice after fatal car crash

By Audrey Woods
Associated Press

LONDON — The only survivor of the car crash that killed Princess Diana says he remembers her calling out the name of her boyfriend Dodi Fayed after the impact and that their driver did not appear drunk.

"I have had flashes of a female voice calling out in the back of the car. First it's a groan. Then Dodi's name is called. It could only have been Princess Diana. I was conscious, and so was she," bodyguard Trevor Rees-Jones said in an interview with the tabloid Mirror published Monday.

It is the most extensive public comment to date from Rees-Jones, who was severely injured in the Aug. 31 crash that killed Diana, Fayed and their driver Henri Paul in Paris.

French police say Paul was legally drunk when he died. Doctors say Diana was unconscious and had no last words.

The bodyguard's remarks are sensitive because his employer is multimillionaire Mohamed Al Fayed, father of Dodi, employer of Paul and owner of the Ritz Hotel, where the driver was seen drinking before the crash. Rees-Jones will be questioned again by the French judge investigating the accident in the coming weeks, his lawyer said.

Soon after the crash, Al Fayed said he had conveyed Diana's "last words" to her family from a nurse at the Paris hospital where the princess died.

In November, Dr. Frederic Mailliez, a French doctor who treated Diana at the scene, said she had been semiconscious and muttering, but did not say "anything precise."

Friends and relatives of the princess also have denied Al Fayed's claim the couple had planned to marry. He caused another uproar last month when he said he believed the crash was the result of an anti-Islamic conspiracy.

Diana's family says the many speculative reports are upsetting for her sons, Prince William, 15, and Prince Harry, 13.

Rees-Jones confirmed in a statement Sunday that he approved the text of the Mirror interview.

He said that after psychiatric treatment, his memory had improved and he remembers two cars and a motorbike chasing Diana's Mercedes after it left the Ritz.

Health fair hosts holistic healers

By Britt Fekete
Daily Staff Writer

More than 40 guests will converge in Chumash Auditorium to lecture and share knowledge on topics like acupuncture, herbology, massage therapy and yoga at the first Holistic Healing Alternative Health Fair, to be held tomorrow from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The fair will feature guest speakers, information booths and demonstrations of products and services to educate and offer information on alternative ways to heal the body and keep it healthy.

Participants in the free event include the Yoga Center, Stress Busters and Foods For The Family.

What began as an idea for a senior project, sparked during a summer hike in the mountains, has finally become a reality for the three physical education and kinesiology seniors who came up with it.

Michelle Muench, Anne Remmers and Amy Chaffe have been putting the fair together since the beginning of fall quarter.

"Anne and I were on the green tortoise (a bus that has been around since the '60s and had the seats removed and replaced with couches). We were leaders for a backpacking trip to Stanislaus. We were both going into our sixth year and figuring out what we wanted to do for our senior project," Muench said. "We basically came up with it before school started in the fall and took it off the ground from there by ourselves. We then had Amy come and join us."

Muench, Remmers and Chaffe agreed that the most important aspect of the fair is to educate students and the community about the areas of alternative medicine. They said they hope the fair will help people open their minds about the medicinal opportunities that exist beyond taking pills.

"Part of my philosophy is just the fact that students have that quick-fix in their heads where they want that quick pill to make them feel better so they can keep going. A lot of alternative medicine is about preventative care and keeping your body healthy so you don't have to go to take antibiotics," Remmers said.

Bringing the event to its final stages has been a non-stop process for the three women, who called the project a challenge because much of the planning and recruiting of participants was something they hadn't done before.

Muench said the process included four separate mailers and hundreds of calls, as well as proposals for grants. She said they also had to attend board meetings and make presentations to get funding.

Chaffe said the most frustrating part of the project was when she typed a proposal and was turned down, and then had to redo it to make it look more professional.

"People do grant proposals for their senior projects, and we had to do them before our senior project. I think if we added up all the hours, it's been totally monopolizing all three of our lives," Remmers said.

Muench said they invited about 100 companies and practitioners to the fair. The list of participants was a conglomeration of names taken from the phone book, New Times, Hopedance and their own contacts from projects done through their major.

The three said they wanted to find people who would come to the fair to share their knowledge, not for a monetary benefit.

"We didn't want this to be any kind of an event where the practitioners came to make money," Remmers said. "None of the practitioners are allowed to really sell anything, it's more of like a dona-

Gas prices lowest in 28 years

Associated Press

SACRAMENTO — Back in the good old days of cheap gasoline in 1970, a gallon only cost 34 cents. It's now lower than that in real dollars, says a state agency.

The statewide average price for California unleaded reformulated gasoline on Monday dropped to $1.10 a gallon, said the state Energy Commission.

In some Los Angeles County stations, the price has been cut to below $1 a gallon for the first time since December 1991, the commission said.

The 1970 price of 34 cents, when adjusted for inflation, becomes $1.27 in today's dollars, the commission said.

The statewide average was $1.44 a gallon last September.

Gasoline prices are lower in the Los Angeles area than in the San Francisco Bay area because of fiercer competition and more gas stations in Southern California, the commission said.

The price might fall even more in the next few weeks, because supplies are high since Californians haven't driven much this winter due to El Nino storms. In addition, there have been a glut in world oil markets and mild winter weather in the rest of the country causing low demand for heating oil.

But the commission has bad news for people planning summer driving vacations: Prices are expected to rise by Memorial Day weekend.

ple could see it for what it is."

Mary Donnelly, owner of the company Chairez dances for, agreed that some people see Middle Eastern dance in a negative light. She wants to help change this image.

"It is a misnomer to use the term 'belly dancing' (to refer to the style I teach), because very little of the dance incorporates movement of the stomach," she said.

She said that this term is derogatory because it assumes that the style of dance she teaches is cabaret or burlesque, meaning dances performed in a nightclub.

Donnelly said her style, which is more folkloric and less cabaret, does have common roots to belly dancing, and that some of the movements are similar. However, she stresses that in her style, dancers wear more clothing.

Donnelly models her dance techniques and movements after those used in Turkey, Egypt, Persia and Afghanistan. She blends steps from all of these cultures because it creates a gypsy-like style, first introduced when the gypsies of Northern India traveled from the Middle East to Spain. She said she also adds a little bit of flamenco to provide a variety of dance steps.

"I try to bring in an element of every culture I revere. I revere each step for its authenticity," she said. "I see this dance as a prayer, as offering a gift to the audience, an appreciation of being able to do this (to dance)."

The elementary school teacher and dance studio owner began dancing in the mid-1970s.

"I fell in love with the music, the art form, the costumes, the beauty and the gift of it all," she said.

Donnelly was in her early twenties when she started taking lessons. She said it took two years of practice and determination to become familiar with the music and the body movements. She said she brings this experience to her own students when she tells them to stay dedicated and have fun with dancing.

Chairez and Donnelly were brought together after Chairez saw a flyer for World Dance on campus and went to a lesson. After practicing with Donnelly's beginning class for a few weeks, Chairez moved to the advanced class.

The weekly class of 15 students she now attends has been a positive experience for Chairez.

"I look forward to class every week," she said.

Chairez also looks forward to performing and dressing in costume, which consists of a long skirt, scarves, a midriff vest, lots of jewelry and a head wrap. She likes being in costume because it makes her feel like she is on stage.

Chairez's eyes lit up as she recounted one of her performances at a Middle Eastern restaurant in Napa. While dancing with her hometown group, Chairez performed a solo glass dance, where she danced on top of three overturned glasses.

"It's really easy to fall off and so if you fall off, you really make a fool out of yourself," she said. "I was so nervous about falling, and then I did good, it was a lot of fun. There was a huge turnout and there were people blocking the streets watching me. I did this dance and everyone loved it. They were talking to my teacher and telling her how impressed they were."

A new cycle of classes begins Tuesday, March 10 at 7 p.m. A free lesson will be offered Tuesday, March 3 at 2074 Parker St. in San Luis Obispo for all those who want to learn. For more information call 473-9508.

IRAQ from page 1

second chance," Annan said.

But agreement on the resolution came only after several council members insisted on guarantees that it would not give automatic approval to a military attack if Iraq breaks the accord.

Diplomatic sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said China became the last of the 15 members to agree to the much-revised text.

"This is a very clear, strong resolution that we are very pleased with that will now go into force," U.S. Ambassador Bill Richardson said before the vote.

Since last week, the British and Japanese, who sponsored the resolution, have circulated several versions in an attempt to satisfy all council members. The original draft warned Iraq of "severest consequences" if it violated the accord.

That was softened Friday to

"very serious consequences," but, in an apparent attempt to placate Washington, the "severest consequences" phrase was reinserted into the text on Monday.

But the difficulties encountered in reaching a consensus cast doubt on the Clinton administration's claims that if Iraq violated the deal there would be strong international support for military action.

During lengthy meetings throughout the day, envoys from such countries as Brazil, Costa Rica and Portugal, which normally support the U.S. stand against Iraq, made clear they opposed any resolution that would give Washington a blank check for an attack if Iraq doesn't honor the accord.

"It is very clear that only the Security Council has the authority to approve an armed military action," said Costa Rican Ambassador Fernando Berrocal Soto.

The United States has maintained that it has sufficient authority to use force under several resolutions enacted since 1991. But France, Russia, China and others dispute that interpretation.

In Baghdad on Monday, Iraqi Deputy Prime Minister Tariq Aziz told CNN the proposed resolution is an attempt by the United States and Britain to lay the foundation for an attack.

The resolution would endorse an agreement reached last week in Baghdad by Secretary-General Kofi Annan that allows U.N. inspectors to visit eight presidential palaces. The Iraqis had placed the palaces off-limits, calling them sovereign sites.

The inspectors are trying to determine if Iraq has complied with U.N. orders, issued at the end of the 1991 Persian Gulf War, to destroy all long-range missiles and nuclear, chemical and biological weapons.

MCI denies overcharging

By Jeannine Aversa
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Most MCI customers are now paying less for service, the nation's second-largest long-distance company told federal regulators Monday, rejecting accusations that it is overcharging callers.

The company responded to comments by Federal Communications Commission Chairman Bill Kennard last Thursday that customers of AT&T, MCI and Sprint appear to be paying more than they should because the companies may not be passing along reductions in government-regulated fees.

Last year, the FCC ordered a $1.7 billion cut in the access fees that long-distance companies pay to local companies for connecting calls. Long-distance companies promised to pass along the savings to their customers.

Kennard questioned whether AT&T, MCI and Sprint are doing that and he ordered them to give the commission detailed information about their rates and how the savings from the reductions are being used.

MCI, in fulfilling that request Monday, said that by the end of June all of its share of the industry-wide access fee reductions — $756 million — will have been passed along to customers. The reductions went into effect last July.

The reductions are being used to offer customers 5 cent-per-minute calling on Sundays.

On top of the access reductions, MCI customers by June 30 will have saved $467 million from rate cuts and other promotions the company made to respond to competition.

Cal Poly Culture Fest was a fake

Editor,

This letter is in response to Andi Joseph's article on Culture Fest. I would like to ask her if she was at the same event that I was. I was at Culture Fest all day and I saw nothing that would promote the cultural diversity at Cal Poly.

Our MEXA table was not selling food, we were trying to distribute flyers and information to people in order to inform them on issues concerning Xicanos at Poly and around the world. People were not interested in discussing the real issues here at Poly. They were just interested in the free show and the so-called "ethnic food" being sold.

What I witnessed was a fake show put on by Cal Poly. Cal Poly, in order to appease students of color, felt they had to put on this "show" of cultural diversity so that people didn't have to feel as guilty for the pathetic retention and recruitment of students of color. Even the opening speaker, Mayor Settle, did not stay for the event. He probably had better things to do.

Response to "Playing democracy at Cal Poly," — March 2

Editor,

I would like to clarify the editorial in Monday's Mustang Daily concerning the releasing of the names of the candidates planning to run for ASI positions this spring. Candidates had until 5 p.m. Friday, February 27 to submit their papers. The Student Life and Activities Department is responsible for administering the election.

Denise Campbell, associate vice president of student affairs, is not the person responsible for providing this information. The gentleman who oversees the election specifically was at a conference, and the person Denise referred Mustang Daily to was not contacted. As a practice, once the applications have been received, our office conducts an eligibility check. This process began Monday morning and was completed by Monday afternoon.

Argument was logical and not defensive

Editor,

Just a note to say thanks for printing one of the few, logical, non-emotional letters written about evolution ("Logically looking at evolution," Feb. 25). And a big thanks to Dan for taking the time to write such a letter. It's refreshing to hear some arguments with good solid backing instead of "the Bible says so" or "wouldn't you rather have been created?" and also an argument without a defensive or accusatory tone.

Well done!

My fellow students, do not be fooled by this event. Cal Poly feels that it can put on a once-a-year show and then forget about the real issues concerning our people, whether Xicano, Black or Asian. When ASI does put on Culture Fest next year maybe they can be honest with themselves and say "Cultural Diversity does not exist at Cal Poly!" I invite you to do the following to figure out the truth, don't just take my word for it: Go talk to admissions and ask them how minority enrollment is going to be way down next year and the year to come. Go look around at all the departments and ask for a list of professors of Xicano, Black, Asian or Native American backgrounds. Look at the low number of administrators of color and you will realize the truth. Go ask for a copy of ASI's budget and see how much funding "cultural" organizations receive compared to others.

The truth is that Cal Poly is a white, male-dominated institution that feels that by putting a few token administrators in high positions, that maybe they can get us to believe that this school actually is diverse and that the administration will actually try to combat the discrimination and racism that exists at this institution. But honestly, that is not going to happen here.

In closing, I would like to say that students of color need to become informed. We cannot remain ignorant to the reality here at Cal Poly. We need to stop being complacent and stop fighting for the crumbs that we are being fed. If you want to get a real dose of reality take a look at the incarceration rates for Xicanos and Blacks compared to their college attendance rates. If you want another dose of reality come to the Xicano Youth Conference on March 7 and learn about the real issues concerning Xicanos and build some consciousness in the process.

Remember, people fought, cried and died for us to have the opportunity to be here. Let us not forget about those people.

A dividing line between the living and the dead

By Jon Wilson

The point of the following letter is not to stand on a pedestal and preach. I am simply throwing out an idea that I would like an answer to. This is not rhetorical. There is no dogma presented (hopefully). I am attempting to use the forum of the opinion section of Mustang Daily to receive input from my fellow learned students and from the respected faculty.

There exists a great mystery that isn't apparent to everyone.

People are preoccupied with the standard mysteries: does God exist?

Are there aliens out there? Is abortion right? One thing that has not been considered is whether we have a reason to be asking any questions in the first place. If we pursue matters which are outside of ourselves then we should first solve all the mysteries inside of ourselves.

It makes sense to have your foundation inside yourself. But what kind of foundation is possible? Scientists have been examining what our foundation or structure is, trying to discover the mystery of life. But why is there a mystery? We all feel like we are alive, it seems normal to us. Why are scientists so confused?

They are confused because it doesn't make sense. As we make more and more discoveries, we learn that there is less and less room for magic. Just like with the Loch Ness monster, we seem to be draining a dark lake in search of a mythical beast. What happens if we reach the bottom and find nothing? Where is the foundation to what we have always assumed?

In order to answer the question of "what is the secret of life?" we must first determine if life even exists.

What do we consider alive? Why do we call a blade of grass alive and not a car? A car seems to be a lot more complicated and it also seems to accomplish more than grass mate object self-perpetuating stimuli.

We must admit to ourselves that with rapidly advancing technology, inanimate matter can be put together to fit into our mold of what we consider living. If we can produce life out of metal and rocks, then what is life? Where is the dividing line between the living and the dead? My car is bashed up but it still runs. Is it still living? If it gets more bashed up then it might not run. Is it now dead?

The only mystery left concerning human existence is "where did the programming come from?" We don't need to worry about souls because I have just shown that they aren't necessary for living beings, so why look for them? The only thing necessary is a source for the seeming perpetual stimuli. Some might say that God is this source. He might be the only thing alive, for what is created by physical means cannot be alive. Life implies some kind of magic, some kind of consciousness, something that organizes matter. Does matter organize itself? Can evolutionary science prove the possibility that our currently advanced programming could have stemmed from much simpler programming? But if there is simple programming then how did that come about? I don't know.

I'm not trying to answer spiritual questions. I am simply proposing that we might not be alive. I think that until we know if there is such a thing as life then we should consider whether or not we are really living at all. I'll leave it up to the biology majors.

Researchers find inner ear difference between lesbians, straight women

By Paul Recer
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Researchers say they have found the first strong evidence of a physical difference between lesbians and straight women—a finding that the inner ears of gay women work more like those of men.

The discovery adds new support to the theory that sexual orientation may be predisposed before birth.

The origin of homosexuality has long been a matter of contention. Some believe it to be a matter of choice, but others—including many gay people—say it is not choice but biology.

Previous research has found that two parts of the male brain are different in gay and heterosexual men. Other studies have found that some genes differ between gay and straight men.

In the study to be published Tuesday in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences, researchers at the University of Texas, Austin, said they found the inner ears of female homosexuals have undergone "masculinization," probably from hormone exposure before birth.

"Their auditory centers have been masculinized and the presumption is that so have the sites in the brain that direct sexual preference," said Dennis McFadden, the lead author of the study.

It has yet to be proven, however, that there is a specific site in the brain that directs women to be lesbians, he said.

Dr. Michael Bailey of Northwestern University, said the research is "compelling" and may be "consistent with the biological origin of lesbianism."

"The most likely interpretation," he said, "is that this represents some kind of effect of early hormones on the developing fetus."

Bailey cautioned, however, that the research will not be accepted as valid until others replicate the experiment.

Sandra Witelson, an expert on brain anatomy and sexual orientation at McMaster University in Ontario, Canada, said the study supports the theory that lesbianism may be "related to early factors in brain development."

The inner ear difference between homosexual and heterosexual women was detected using a test that measures the function of the cochlea, a key sound amplifier in the inner ear, said McFadden, a professor of experimental psychology.

The cochlea amplifier in women is more sensitive than that of men, giving women an increased ability to detect very soft sounds in a very quiet room. The test measures a very slight sound that the cochlea makes when responding to a soft clicking sound.

Females, with their more sensitive cochlea, respond more powerfully to this test than do men, said McFadden. This is true even among infants.

To test for differences between the sexes, the researchers recruited more than 200 adults divided into four groups: homosexual women and men, and heterosexual women and men. Some from each of the four groups were later identified as bisexual. The sexual orientation of the subjects was determined by questionnaire.

The results, McFadden said, indicated that lesbians had click-responses that were significantly weaker than those of heterosexual women. The signal was weaker still for all males, both gay and straight. Bisexual men and women were in the middle, although McFadden said there were not enough of these to draw firm conclusions.

FAIR

tion of their time."

The project, which cost $1,600, was funded entirely by donations. Sponsors of the fair include ASI Programs Board, which donated $500, Student Community Services, which donated $500, and the Multi-Cultural Center, Career Services and Exercise Science Health Promotion. A $300 ASI President's Grant was also donated.

Remmers said that feedback from those who were invited to participate has been positive.

"We've been turning practitioners down, which we never thought would happen," she said.

She said they have had so much interest that people unable to attend are already asking about next year's fair.

Muench said she is excited about passing the torch to anyone wishing to plan the fair again next year. She said she would recommend that the fair be held either later in the evening or on the weekend, so more people from the community could attend. Remmers said the next fair should be easier to put together because the groundwork will have already been established.

Chaffe said they all worked well together, and didn't really have any problems.

"If something had to be done, whoever had time would do it," she said.

"It's neat. Everybody talks about working together in projects like it's a nightmare. People have a fear of working with groups, and it worked really well (for us)," Remmers said.

Jerry Whitaker, registered physical therapist and owner of Stress Busters in San Luis Obispo, said he is excited about participating in the fair.

"The purpose of the fair is obviously to educate the public on what alternative health is about, and the many facets available and the use of holistic medicine," he said. "Health is the one thing people say money can't buy, and this is an opportunity for people within the community and health providers to get together."

The practitioners will lecture in the east and west wings of Chumash.

Cal Poly	3
Evansville	1

Cal Poly eeked out a victory in their first tournament game. Smith went the distance, giving up five hits and no earned runs. Leilani Limary blasted a two-run homer in the sixth to put the game out of reach. Christina DeWeese collected two hits and one RBI for Evansville.

Arkansas	0

Knipfer struck out the side in the bottom of the seventh to end the game on Sunday after it was postponed on Saturday at six and one half innings due to darkness. Knipfer twirled a one-hit shutout and recorded 13 strikeouts. Tammy Kincaid took the loss for the Razorbacks. Kincaid also mustered her team's only hit.

Cal Poly	4

The second time out Sunday afternoon against the Razorbacks, Knipfer continued to throw strikes. She tossed a three hit shutout, including eight strikeouts. Jennifer Bottoms took the loss in the circle for Arkansas. Cal Poly was led by Kasey Poet and Limary, who each had two hits and scored a run. Poet also had an RBI.

Cal Poly	3
Evansville	2

Cal Poly used two hits from Kelly Sack and Duncan to notch their fourth victory of the tournament. Sack also had an RBI and scored a run. Evansville was led by DeWeese who had two hits and one RBI. Knipfer came on in relief of Smith to record the victory for Cal Poly.

Cal Poly finished the tournament undefeated. The host team, UCSB, also finished undefeated, but the two teams didn't face each other all weekend.

The two will have a chance to show off their skills against each other this Saturday when the Mustangs return to Santa Barbara to take on the Gauchos.

Spalding wins golf ball case

By Ron Sirak
Associated Press

Spalding's Top-Flite ball will now be on the shelf instead of being shelved.

A judge on Monday ruled against Callaway Golf Co. and said there was no consumer confusion created by Spalding's advertising campaign.

"She complimented Spalding on innovative marketing," John

Hoagland, managing director of the golf ball division for Spalding, said about the ruling by Judge Alicemarie Stotler.

The lawsuit, filed last month in U.S. District Court in Santa Ana, Calif., by Callaway Golf Co. against Spalding Sports Worldwide, Inc., asked for a court order stopping Spalding from using Callaway's trademarks and images on its packaging.

TIW Systems is a world leader in the design and manufacture of equipment and systems for satellite communications. We have earth stations and antenna systems installed in 23 countries on five continents. We currently have the following positions open in our Antenna and Communications Systems Divisions in Santa Clara, California.

Structural Engineer

A strong background in structural and mechanical design is key in order to develop large steerable structures. Education must include a MS degree and study of both design and theoretical analysis of structural and mechanical components. Practice of CAD systems and experience with finite element analysis are desired. Strong written and verbal communication skills are also required. Please reference Job Code: SE/EC

Servo Control Engineer

Duties include the design, alignment and testing of control systems for large communications earth station antenna and scientific instruments. This position requires a BSEE and approximately 2-5 years experience with servo controls, analog and digital design and familiarity with RF circuits. The ability to work independently and have excellent customer interface skills is important for final sell-off of equipment. Domestic and international travel is required. Please reference Job Code: SCE/JD

Digital Controls Engineer

Duties include the design, alignment and testing of digital control systems for large communications earth station antenna and precision telescopes. This position requires a BSEE with experience in accurately controlling the angular position of large assemblies. Experience should also include subsystem modeling and performance analysis for response and pointing accuracy. Please reference Job Code: DCE/LB

Systems Engineer

For this position, duties include preparing proposals and documentation, designing earth stations and systems, and integrating and testing digital satellite communications networks for integrated voice, data, and video-conferencing services. Experience with the following is a plus: configuring satellite networks using both preassigned and demand-assigned access using SCPC and TDMA technologies, with particular emphasis on earth station design. Please reference Job Code: SE/LB

Microwave Feed Engineer

Are you interested in designing large microwave antennas and related components (such as receivers and transmitters)? If so, we'd like to meet you! We need a sharp Electronic Engineer to assist in the design and development of microwave feed components for Cassegrain and prime focus reflectors in waveguide, coax and stripline. These feeds operate at frequencies from 300 MHz to 50 GHz and include multiband applications. Background must include a BSEE (MS Preferred) and up to one year of experience. Please reference Job Code: MFE/KG

TIW offers competitive salaries and a comprehensive benefits package, including a 401(k) with company match.

We will have a representative from TIW Systems on campus Tuesday, 3 March 1998. Please feel free to drop off your résumé referencing the appropriate job code. ## Baseball splits games with SFSU Kept off its own home turf due to poor field conditions, the Cal Poly baseball team traveled north to take advantage of the sunshine last weekend. The Mustangs split a doubleheader with San Francisco State at Maloney Field.

Cal Poly	16
San Francisco State	4
Cal Poly	4
San Francisco State	4

The Mustangs are now 5-11 on the season, while San Francisco State is 4-9-2.

In game one, the Gators held a two run lead, 3-1, before the Mustangs scored nine runs in the eighth and added five more in the ninth for a 16-4 victory. In the eighth inning, second baseman Steve Wood hit a solo homerun to left field to start the rally. After Wood, 12 more Mustang batters stepped up to the plate.

For the Mustangs, Wood recorded seven RBI on three hits and scored three runs. Designated hitter Brian Cassenego and second baseman Matt Elam also had three hits while centerfielder Andrew Watt picked up four RBI on two hits.

Pitcher Mike Zirelli grabbed the win pitching eight innings, giving up nine hits, four runs, seven strikeouts and no walks to improve his record to 2-4.

Game two ended short when the game was called because of darkness in the sixth inning. But four innings was all San Francisco needed to go in the lead and a win. The Gators trailed by one before scoring three runs in the bottom of the fourth to earn a 4-2 victory. With runners on first and second, Tony Johnston singled to third. A throwing error by Mustang third baseman Darrin Reisman scored both runners to give San Francisco the lead.

Gators Johnston and Joey Mead each had two hits while Amador Solis picked up two RBI. Ryan Reed came in on relief for San Francisco to pick up the win as he went three innings giving up two hits, no runs and recording three strikeouts with two walks. Cal Poly's Luther Salinas got the loss pitching five innings, giving up six hits and four runs.

Welk, French win PAC-10 Championship

Daily Staff Report

The Cal Poly wrestling team had a successful weekend at the PAC-10 Championships at Cal State Fullerton.

Facing four of the top teams in the nation, Arizona State, Oregon, Cal State Bakersfield and Oregon State, Cal Poly managed to claim two of the coveted championship slots.

Senior Craig Welk grabbed first place at 150 pounds and junior Mike French was named champion at 190 pounds.

Five of the top finishing Mustangs will head to the NCAA Championships in three weeks to take on the rest of the top finishers in the nation.

Last year, eight Mustangs finished in the top six and seven of them went on to the NCAA Championships. This year Cal Poly will send less wrestlers to the championships in Cleveland, Ohio, but each of the individuals are ranked higher than last year.

Last year Welk finished fourth at the PAC-10 Championship at Arizona State.

This year,

Welk came into the match at 25-6 on the season and ranked ninth in the nation. One problem was he would have to defeat his toughest rival in the final round Sunday night to come out on top. Welk decisioned Warren McPherson from Stanford in the first match, 5-3. He then advanced to the final round defeating Darryl Christian from Oregon, 3-2.

In the final round Welk faced Steve Blackford from Arizona State. Blackford defeated Welk three times earlier this season. Welk owed those losses to illness, injury and a missed call during a match.

Welk picked the decisive match to defeat Blackford, winning 4-3 and claiming first in the 150 weight pound class.

Four weight classes later, French was set to improve his placing from last year, when he finished 3rd.

This time French, 22-6 overall, reached the final round and found himself claiming a championship title.

In his first match, French decisioned Jake Harmon of Arizona State 2-1 in overtime. Next he tackled Jonathan Dyreyes of Cal State Fullerton, 2-0. His final match with the championship on the line pitted him

Mike French

Craig Welk

Place	Name	Weights
6th	Cedric Haymon	134 lbs.
1st	Craig Welk	150 lbs.
2nd	David Wells	158 lbs.
3rd	Brian Bowles	177 lbs.
1st	Mike French	190 lbs.
4th	Gan McGee	275 lbs.

against Shane Zajac of Oregon State, who has been on the heels of French in the PAC-10 rankings all season.

French decisioned Zajac 6-2 and captured the top spot in his weight class.

Cal Poly junior David Wells, 19-7 overall, could smell the championship at 158 pounds on Sunday night, but it wasn't meant to be.

Wells decisioned Steven Duran from Cal State Fullerton 12-3. Then he earned a 6-4 decision over Kirk White from Bakersfield.

His last obstacle was Sean Morgan of Oregon. When the two met earlier this season Morgan managed to defeat Wells.

This time he managed to do it again winning a 3-2 decision. Wells finished second, three places above his fifth place spot last year.

At 177 pounds, senior Brian Bowles finished third place after an impressive set of matches.

Bowles decisioned Sanders Freed from Oregon State 5-3 and then fell on a technical fall 25-10 to Doug Lee from Oregon. In the consolation bracket, Bowles fought his way through to the final round where he faced Freed again and earned a 5-4 decision to take third place.

Cal Poly heavyweight Gan McGee finished fourth after losing two disappointing matches. McGee lost his first match to Rich Polkinghorn of Oregon and fell to him in the final round of the consolation bracket by a 3-1 decision.

Cedric Haymon also finished impressively at sixth place, losing to Corey Caywood of Bakersfield in his final match up 6-3.

Both McGee and Bowles will travel to the PAC-10 championships with Welk, French and Wells.

Softball wins first games; leads tournament

Daily Staff Report

In one weekend the Cal Poly softball team managed to capture five straight wins and turn their record around.

The Mustangs, 5-6, finished undefeated at the U.C. Santa Barbara Mini Tournament this weekend.

Pitcher Desarie Knipfer posted three wins, while Kelly Smith helped the Mustangs add two more from atop the mound.

Cal Poly also hosted their first home game last weekend. The Mustangs defeated Mississippi State 5-2 on Thursday.

Cal Poly	5
Mississippi State	2

Cal Poly scored four runs in the top of the first inning off Mississippi State starting pitcher Autumn Anderson en route to a 5-2 win over the Bulldogs. The game was originally scheduled to be played at Santa Barbara as part of the UCSB Mini Tournament, but was moved to San Luis Obispo as a single game only.

With the bases loaded in the top of the first inning, Cal Poly's Kelly Duncan plated two runs with a lined shot into left that was misplayed by Mississippi left-fielder Aimee Judeman. Duncan would later come around to score two batters later when junior Leilani Limary slapped a two-bagger to center to give Cal Poly a 4-0 lead.

The Mustangs added one more run in the top of the seventh inning. A two-out double by Duncan scored Anna Bauer from second after she also doubled to center.

Knipfer struck out seven Bulldog batters and walked only two.
