Senior project becomes a community celebration

BY SEANNA BROWDER
Daily Staff Writer

Four Cal Poly child development majors have organized a Week of the Child for San Luis Obispo. The students — Donna Henley, Marla Geller, Melinda Young and Janice Hnath — have planned events and seminars through April 11 as part of their senior project.

"Children have no one to represent them," said Donna Henley. "People need to become aware of the opportunities available to children in the community. There is more than just school.

The women have been planning for this since October 1, 1979.

"It has taken a lot of time and work, more so than a research paper," said Marla Geller. Organizing this was definitely hard work but seeing everything fall into place has made me feel hard work but seeing everything fall into place has made me feel...""
More than friends

The American-Iranian hostage dilemma, and Russian crises in Afghanistan, have been eye-openers. They have not only exposed deep resentment of Americans by Middle East countries, but illuminated flaws in our partnership with allies.

Throughout these crises a majority of U.S. allies have been giving half-hearted responses to American pleas of coherence and unity in international policy. The administration has asked allies to support boycotts of Russia and Iran.

But, ho-hum, allies had more important things to consider: Would they alienate the Ayatollah Khomeini and bring his wrath? Where would they get supplements from lost Iranian oil? What would happen to their own country?

Japan has bluntly stated it refuses to go along with any oil boycott. It imports more than 90 percent of its oil and has claimed the loss of Iranian oil would be too great a favor, and for what?

France, with a troubled economy and government, would seemingly need to be drafted before it pitches in to help during the crises.

Germany fears Russian rebukes; its support has been mostly behind the scenes. A return to the Cold War has real meaning for Germans, who have fought long for a relaxed border in East Germany.

England alone has consistently backed the American boycotts of Iran and Russia. With no fewer troubles than France, England has spoken out against Khomeini and international terrorism.

What it boils down to is a poor show of cohesion inside NATO and among other American allies. That is reflected by inability to decide on any form of action. Consequently, the Soviets or other countries can play on ally disunity.

Talk of boycotts was shrugged off by Russia and Iran. The Soviets issued threats of repercussions to European neighbors.

But, if NATO and other free-world allies are to be taken seriously, they must start acting more like partners and less like fair-weather friends.

Letters Apart from the news

In his letter, Gartenberg charged the KCPR news department with prejudice because of a story we ran during one of our newscasts. The story told of the arrest of Los Angeles of a rabbi and 13 students for disturbing the peace.

While we do not intend to enumerate here all of the considerations that go into the decision to use any particular story in a given newscast, we would like to make this one point: there is no logical connection between the use of any valid news story (which this one most definitely was) and the personal feelings of those who report that story.

For example, if a story on Watergate is run, does that demonstrate that the broadcaster who does the story is anti-Republican? We think not. As a matter of fact, there were some people in this country (and still are) who charged that the media was out to get Nixon. We would hate to think that Gartenberg occupies the same mental realm as these people, but he has certainly done nothing to make us think otherwise.

Strong language? Yes! We are all offended at being called anti-semites.

and some more so than one of the KCPR news directors, whose orthodox Jewish family fled Russia at the turn of the century to escape those very anti-semites.

Gripes
'How-tos' of complaining told
BY KATHY McKENZIE
Daily Stall Writer

If you expect to get satisfaction when making a complaint to a store or business, there are three basic steps to take, according to a Cal Poly home economics teacher. Start at the lowest level of authority and work up; don't give up; and assume there's an answer to your problem.

Prudence Zalewski, who has taught at Cal Poly for four years, teaches a class titled "Consumer Role of the Family," in which students find out what they need to know about their rights as consumers. Zalewski said certain steps should be taken by students with consumer gripes. First, students should talk to the salesperson who originally helped them. If there is no response, the student should take down the salesperson's name and go to the manager with the problem.

At this time, a student may also register a complaint against the business with the Tri-Counties Better Business Bureau in Santa Barbara. The BBB's address is P.O. Box 746, Santa Barbara, CA 93102.

The student should keep on trying to get a response from the company, if necessary, write the company president. If there is still no action taken, the student should call the Consumer Fraud Unit of the San Luis Obispo District Attorney's office at 549-5600.

- Consumer's Resource Handbook available free by writing the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 522 G, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

More books for consumers can be obtained from the university library in the consumerism section, said Zalewski.

But, she said, it's important for students to research before they start shopping, especially when they make their first big purchase, such as a car or stereo.

"This is the worst time. The student is usually not informed about warranty rights, and type of product to buy," she said.

With inflation and shrinking value of dollar, said Zalewski, more important than ever for the student to be aware of what can be done and what consumer rights are.

"You can't let it lie anymore," she said. "If you're going to take no for an answer, you're going to be very disappointed."

The Mustang men's tennis team achieved a decisive 8-1 victory over Cal State Northridge Friday in the Mustang's last match before the conference tournament, which begins Thursday at Cal Poly Pomona.

The Mustangs were tied with Dominguez Hills and Northridge for second place before the matches on Friday. Cal Poly's win over Northridge should put the team in a strong position going into this week's tournament.

"We wanted the match a little more," said Mustang Coach Ken Peet. "It was very important for us."

Mustang number one singles player Robb Chappell won his match, 6-2, 7-6, despite twisting his ankle in a match against Long Beach.

"I had no problem with my ankle. I didn't have to move much in the match," Chappell said. "It was a strange match for both of us."

Chappell was playing with an unfamiliar racket and his opponent from Northridge, Rich Bennett, was ill. Bennett and his doubles partner Phil Siordia had to forfeit their doubles match to Chappell and Martin Dydell because of Bennett's illness.

The Mustangs beat Northridge 6-3 at the Santa Barbara Tournament earlier this season. Cal Poly Coach Ben Pen said he had expected Northridge to be a much tougher team to beat at this meeting.

Cal State Northridge Coach Phil Munroe thought his team would be stiffer competition, too.

"Cal Poly played smart. They stayed in the matches, they were patient. Cal Poly kept hitting the ball back to us until we made mistakes that's the way the game's played. They waited until we beat ourselves," Coach Munroe said.

The Northridge coach said he did expect his team to win the first three singles matches, but the victory in fifth singles, Mike Goldowitz over Poly's Andrew Weber 7-5, 6-0, came as a surprise. "I thought we'd take all first three singles. I didn't expect us to win fifth singles, the only match I didn't expect, and we got that one," Munroe said.

"I think Weber has a good chance at an individual title in the tournament," the coach from Northridge said.

The Mustangs begin tournament play Thursday at Cal Poly Pomona. The team will play for individual conference titles and as well as for points for the team title. Currently, Cal State LA is first in the conference.

Two cagers tabbed all-stars

The Cal Poly women's basketball team's two players from Calgary, Alberta—Laura Buchhing and Collin Finney—were named to the AIAW's All-Regional Squad it was announced Monday.

Buchhing and Finney, who were the heart of Coach McNeil's team which earned its first-ever trip to the AIAW Western Regionalals this season, were two of only 11 players named to this year's team. Sophomore Buchhing, who participated in the Olympic team tryouts in March, paced the Mustangs in every important category last year, including a 17.2 game average.

Finney proved to be the most consistent member of the team, averaging 11.5 points in SWC games to earn herself a spot on the All Conference team.

The men's volleyball team, fresh off a fine performance against San Diego State Saturday, tangled with the tough University of Hawaii team tonight at 7:30 in the Main Gym.

The Mustangs extended the San Diego State Aztecs to five games before bowing out in the fifth game. Cal Poly took the first and fourth games 15-12 and 15-8 but lost the first game 15-9 and the third game 15-10. The Aztecs and the Mustangs were deadlocked midway into the fifth and deciding game, but San Diego pulled away to take the clincher 15-8.

The Mustang baseball team, which had been floundering at the plate for most of the season, exploded for five hits and 10 runs to win the series. Lizzy Levine reached the plate by coming home on singles by Yoshihara and Gayle Wilkinson. Langrock was again awarded the win as she struck out two Arizona State players.

With the Mustangs winning streak ended on Saturday, as Cal State Fullerton won the tournament title. Pitcher Rhonda Keiser was scheduled to start for the Mustangs, but was unable to because of an injury. Marlene Rymer sat on the mound for Poly, but was later moved to that duty by Langrock.

Iran prepares for 'holy war'

Ayatollahs Rubollah Khomeini urged Iran on Tuesday to rejig their Islamic state and begin a "world-devouring plundering" America, and the Tehran government began mobilizing the people for a "holy war", of belit-tightening and possible rationing to grapple with economic woes.

President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr declared there was "no reason to worry" about the U.S. economic embargo against Iran, but added that Iran would need an extra effort to resist the pressure.

In a message to the nation, Khomeini said President Carter's anti·Iranian policies were "a dream that will come true", and warned the U.S. economic sanctions were "no reason to worry".

Cuban unrest, trouble

WASHINGTON (AP) -- President Carter, shifting gears from the Iranian stalemate, on Tuesday, began holding talks with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat aimed at persuading Sadat to send negotiators to Israel to work out guidelines for away.

As they met in the Oval Office, diplomatic sources said that an agreement on an autonomy plan could be wrapped up during the Sadat visit and Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin's trip here next week.

All key issues, including how much authority the Palestinians are to have, remain unresolved with the May 26 target date for an agreement only five weeks away.

Carter's hope is that he can work out guidelines for both Egyptian and Israeli negotiating teams in his in their 357th day of captivity in the hands of young Moslem radicals.

He said a decision on their fate still must await convening of the new Iranian Parliament, which may be months away.

When Carter announced the break in U.S.-Iranian diplomatic relations and the virtual trade black-out, Monday, he said "other actions" might be taken if the hostages were not released "promptly".

U.S. Officials were not ruling out a naval blockade of Iranian ports or other military action. The Carter administration also sent strong signals to U.S. allies Tuesday that it expects some help in the economic offensive, but there were no signs of immediate cooperation.
