Poly Royal attendance totals remain an unfinished project

Even with brightly colored balloons tied to her baby's stroller and her husband smothered by the jungle of plants held in his arms, Mary Crumley did not stand out in the Poly Royal crowd. "I've lived here for three years and I'm disappointed that I never came to Poly Royal before. I just never thought it was that big of an event," said Crumley, a Los Osos resident.

Don Mc Caleb, director of public affairs, said the information on the attendance at Poly Royal 1980 is still coming in.

He explained car counters were stationed at all campus entrance roads. The number of cars is multiplied by 2.8, a figure provided the Automobile Club of Southern California. Also taken into consideration is the number of cars parked off campus and the number of people taking buses. "Our general impression is that the attendance was larger than last year," Mc Caleb said.

He said last year attendance was 100,600.

Crumley, her husband Bill, and their five-month-old child Billy, were standing in line at the Dietetics Club falafel stand waiting to grab a quick bite before they headed back to Los Osos.

"All this food is outrageous," she said. "It's hard to decide what to have next."

There were 82 food and drink booths scattered around campus.

"I would like to have stayed longer," Crumley said. "Three hours was not enough time to take everything in."

It was obvious what her favorite exhibit was from the armload of greenery her husband was struggling with.

"I thought the ornamental horticulture exhibit was exceptional. Not only was there a wide variety of plants to choose from, the prices were reasonable."

Campus clubs are required to submit financial reports of their profits within the next two weeks. according to Harvey Blatter of the ASI business office. He said the final figures should be ready by late May or middle June.

Crumley said the tractor pull was not what she thought it would be, but she did enjoy it. "I expected two tractors playing tug of war. I thought they'd be regular farm tractors. I didn't realize they were modified."

It was just really impressed with the whole thing. The student participation is great. Some of them must be pretty dedicated to devote so much time and effort to Poly Royal and go to school at the same time," she said.

Campus police: Poly Royal ran well

University police arrested three men Friday on charges of public drunkenness at Cal Poly's Intercollegiate Rodeo.

Gregory Peterson, Russell Bosley, and Robert East, all reportedly from Santa Barbara, were taken into custody and transported to the county jail.

Public Safety Director Richard Brug said there were the only arrests over the Poly Royal weekend.

"There was a considerable amount of drinking on campus," Brug said. "But, most of it was just poured out."

Brug said there were fewer emergencies this year compared to previous Poly Royals and contributed this to better planning and cooler weather. The mild temperatures and cloud cover reduced the number of people who fainted, Brug said. A team from the fire department patrolled the campus in a pick-up truck to respond quickly to medical emergencies.

Most of the force worked 14 to 16 hours overtime, Brug said. He estimated the total overtime cost for the department at $2,100.

University police were assisted by sheriff's deputies for crowd control at Saturday's Emmy Lou Harris concert. The deputies were hired and paid by the ASI Concert Committee, Brug said.

ROTC students assisted in parking and traffic flow through the campus. A minimum of parking citations were issued.

Brug said, "Last year, my first year here, was chaos for me," Brug said. "This year was much smoother."

Sartre thought highly of self-creation. His strict construction of the idea left no room for another, larger creator. He abandoned God in his youth and stayed an atheist the rest of his life.

In the '50s when everybody turned to Sartre, Sartre turned to Marx. Marxists and existentialists have always feuded, like the Hatfields and McCoys, over the relation of man to society. Later on, he even repudiated some of his earlier works of existentialism such as Being and Nothingness. Some of Sartre's champions have said he was trying to bridge the fault; it's probably truer to say he just jumped the creek.

He dismissed the Soviet state, though, after seeing Stalin's work first-hand. During his last 15 to 20 years, he sided and supported small, impatient radical groups.

And here we are getting closer to the man. There is a pattern to his life: pushed ideas and systems until they were realized in the practical, everyday world; then, dissatisfied with the compromises and imperfections, he dropped them for other plans.

This suggests either petulance or the curiosity of an unfulfilled search. I think it's curiosity—curiosity and courage. Changing camps is a brave thing for a man who lives for ideas. It would have been much easier to bask in the reflected glory of his earlier works.

With His Own Way: that would be a good epitaph for Sartre. He kept searching, and that's what's important. It's the searching, as much as what's sought, that drives us all forward.

Today is Tuesday, April 29, 1980.

Yesterday's high temperature was 55 degrees, and the low temperature was 48 degrees. Today's high temperature is expected to reach 60 degrees, with a low of 50 degrees. The chance of precipitation is 10 percent.

There were 246 days left in the year.

The potential jury members knew about the case, how much they knew, how they felt about the case, and whether or not they had formed an opinion on the case.

Of the total sample surveyed, 73 percent said that they had received information about the death from newspapers. The most frequently cited newspaper was the Telegram-Tribune.

If this had happened in Los Angeles there would be no question of pre-trial publicity. There would have been little said about such an event, maybe a little blurbs somewhere in the newspaper but nothing like what went on here, said Shaffer. "There would be no need for a change of venue.

The media should be allowed to present this to the public. If it means a change of venue in a trial then it's a price we pay."

Decision on job to wait

BY JAY ALLING
Daily Student Writer

A decision on a future job is the concern of student activities officer Rick Shaffer, who met with San Luis Obispo Mayor Lynn Cooper April 13 to discuss student-related problems.

R-1 zoning, which allows more than three unrelated students to live together in one house, is an issue on the city council at this time. It is an issue that needs to be brought up to the city council in order to get student-related problems handled.

The senior biology major said the mayor understands the citizens' need to control their neighborhoods and agrees time action is necessary. But Cooper also expressed his opposition to the way R-1 zoning is executing the control that is needed.

"I think the mayor has won the most logical about R-1 zoning," Shaffer said. The mayor understands the needs of the students as well as the other community residents.

Shaffer and Cooper discussed the idea of a Greek work to eliminate some of the problems with fraternity parties. The Greek work would be an area available primarily to fraternity and sorority who do not already have roommates and would like to build or move into existing homes.

Scholtz said he and the mayor support the idea. "I think it would be beneficial to Cal Poly," the student said.

Scholtz said they are waiting for an answer from the CSUC's Chancellor's office as to whether or not apple orchards can be used for non-academic purposes such as the Greek row.

He said he feels in the long run the row would eliminate some of the city's problems on student parties. Scholtz and the mayor also discussed Cal Poly's Homecoming parade and the possibility of more community involvement. "The parade is really the right right now," Scholtz said.

He and Cooper would like to see the Elks or Lyon Club join with a fraternity or sorority to sponsor a float.

Student pursues grade issue

BY ROSEANN WENTZ
Daily Student Writer

A group of architecture students who say they have a question on one of their final papers was unhappy about the administration changing the location of the trial.

Charles Mistretta, who taught Architecture 309 in the winter quarter, has met with several students and made some changes in the grade. But these changes were made, due to correcting errors in adding scores or in grading on previous tests, and not in response to complaints about the final, said Monte Drignan, student spokesperson.

The controversy began at the first meeting of Arch 309 lecture for spring quarter on April 3. Twelve architecture majors from the class last quarter showed up to ask Mistretta questions about their grades. Mistretta never arrived at the class, being on vacation.

Mont Drignan was then chosen by the group of students to be their spokesman, and he proceeded to contact the ASI officers.

ASI officers denied 9-percent raise

BY JIM MAYER
Daily Student Writer

Six ASI officers were denied a 9-percent raise by the student senate Wednesday night, an action that amended the proposed 1980-81 budget.

The $810,477 budget was presented for consideration, a two-week process that allows for suggestions and students to contest the budget before the president's approval.

The president, vice president, finance chair, internal affairs advisor, and two external affairs advisors were denied the 9 percent increase in their grants-in-aid taxable income, which is the equivalent of a salary.

The total increase for all officers amounted to $425. The officers did, however, receive an 8-percent increase in benefits, mandated by state law.

Rose Kranz, ASI president, supported the pay increase. Kranz said the raise would be consistent with those received by other student-held jobs on campus, even though the salaries are considerably less.

The salaries are to discourage officers from holding part-time jobs, she said.

"To maintain this rationale you must increase the wages to a supportive level," Kranz said.

Tom Cregger, senator from the School of Social Sciences, said ASI officers perform a service, so the Drop your guard for a minute. Even though you’re in college right now, there are many aspects of the Army that you might find very attractive.

Maybe even irresistible. See for yourself.

MED SCHOOL, ON US

You read it right.

The Army’s Health Professions Scholarship Program provides necessary tuition, books, lab fees, even microscope rental during medical school.

Plus a tax-free monthly stipend that works out to about $6,450 a year. (After July 14, it will go up to $9,000 a year.)

After you’re accepted into medical school, you can be accepted into our program. Then you’re commissioned and you go through school as a Second Lieutenant in the Army Reserve.

The hitch? Very simple. After your residency, you give the Army a year as a doctor for every year the Army gave you as a med student, and under some conditions, with a minimum of two years’ service.

INTERNSHIP, RESIDENCY & CASH BONUSES

Besides scholarships to medical school, the Army also offers AMA-approved first-year, graduate and residency training programs.

Such training adds no further obligation to the student in the scholarship program. But any Civilian Graduate Medical Education sponsored by the Army gives you a one-year obligation for every year of sponsorship. But you get a $9,000 annual bonus every year you’re paying back medical school or post-graduate training.

So you not only get your medical education paid for, you get extra pay while you’re paying it back.

Not a bad deal.

A GREAT PLACE TO BE A NURSE

The rich tradition of Army Nursing is one of excellence, dedication, even heroism. And it’s a challenge to live up to.

Today, an Army Nurse is the epitome of professionalism, regarded as a critical member of the Army Medical Team. A BSN degree is required. And the clinical spectrum is almost impossible to match in civilian practice.

And, since you’ll be an Army Officer, you’ll enjoy more respect and authority than many of your civilian counterparts. You’ll also enjoy travel opportunities, officer’s pay and officer’s privileges.

Army Nursing offers educational opportunities that are second to none. As an Army Nurse, you could be selected for graduate degree programs at civilian universities.

ADVANCED NURSING COURSE, TUITION-FREE

Younger tuition, pay and living allowances. You can also take Nurse Practitioner courses and courses in many clinical specialties. All on the Army.

While these programs do not cost you any money, most of them do incur an additional service obligation.

A CHANCE TO PRACTICE LAW

If you’re about to get your law degree and be admitted to the bar, you should consider a commission in the Judge Advocate General Corps. Because in the Army you get to practice law right from the start.

While your classmates are still doing other lawyers’ research and other lawyers’ briefs, you could have your own cases, your own clients, in effect, your own practice.

Plus you’ll have the pay, prestige and privileges of being an Officer in the United States Army. With a chance to travel and make the most of what you’ve worked so hard to become. A real, practicing lawyer. Be an Army Lawyer.

ROTC SCHOLARSHIPS

Though you’re too late for a 4-year scholarship, there are 3-, 2-, and even 1-year scholarships available. They include tuition, books, and lab fees. Plus $100 a month living allowance. Naturally, they’re very competitive. Because besides helping you towards your degree, an ROTC scholarship helps you towards the gold bars of an Army Officer.

Stop by the ROTC office on campus and ask about details.

UP TO $170 A MONTH

You can combine service in the Army Reserve or National Guard with Army ROTC and get up to $6,500 while you’re still in school.

It’s called the Simultaneous Membership Program. You get $100 a month as an Advanced Army ROTC Cadet and an additional $70 a month (sergeant’s pay) as an Army Reservist.

When you graduate, you’ll be commissioned as a Second Lieutenant, but not necessarily assigned to active duty. Find out about it.

A BONUS FOR PART-TIME WORK

You can get a $1,500 bonus just for enlisting in some Army Reserve units. Or up to $2,000 in educational benefits. You also get paid for your Reserve duty. It comes out to about $1,000 a year for about 16 hours a month and two weeks annual training.

And now we have a special program to help you fit the Army Reserve around your school schedule. It’s worth a look.

A SECOND CHANCE AT COLLEGE

Some may find college to be the right place at the wrong time for a variety of reasons. The Army can help them, too.

A few years in the Army can help them get money for tuition and the maturity to use it wisely.

The Army has a program in which money saved for college is matched two-for-one by the government. Then, if one qualifies a generous bonus is added to that.

So 2 years of service can get you up to $7,400 for college, 3 years up to $12,100, and 4 years up to $14,100. In addition, bonuses up to $3,000 are available for 4-year enrollments in selected skills.

Add in the experience and maturity gained, and the Army can send an individual back to college a richer person in more ways than one.

We hope these Army opportunities have intrigued you as well as surprised you. Because there is indeed a lot the Army can offer a bright person like you.

The survey was conducted over the telephone by six Cal Poly students hired by Shaffer. Each interviewee was asked 25 questions related to the Smith-Foster trials.

Shaffer has conducted surveys of this type before for Ernst. Shaffer does social survey research, impact assessments and demographic analyses through his business, Impact Research Associates.

The survey initiated a new policy in the 1980-81 budget requiring organizations to operate on 10 percent less funds than the previous year. This 10 percent will be augmented back to organizations that can justify a need for more funding.

Nick Foistiere, finance committee chairman, said the 90 percent policy provides more flexibility in the distribution of funds, makes funds available for new programs that provide a mechanism for phasing out programs.

Copies of the budget are available in the ASI office. Changes can be suggested through school councils or to the senate directly.

Broncos whip Poly nine

BY VERN AHRENDES

A team wins a division championship with flawless execution. The Cal Poly Pomona baseball team showed why it leads the California Collegiate Athletic Association by winning two of three games from host Cal Poly San Luis Obispo.

The Pomona Broncos executed flawlessly in the three-game weekend series, winning 11-1 and 3-0 behind a pair of brilliant pitching performances. The San Luis Obispo Mustangs sandwiched a win in between the two losses. A solid nine-inning outing by Mark Silva and a clutch hit by Bob Parr sparked the 3-2 come-from-behind win.

The Mustangs, under coach Berdy Harr, now stand 9-15 in CCAA action and 15-25 overall, including a 9-1 thrashing of Westmont last week.

Silva worked nine tough innings in the second game, scattering nine hits for his fourth win of the year. Silva utilized an effective fastball in striking out 13.

Pomona drew first blood in the fourth inning of the second contest as Ken Foster doubled in Randy McFarlin. The Mustangs knotted the game at one-all in the bottom of the seventh when Bob Weirum doubled off the wall and later scored on Paul Hertler's double. The hit extended Hertler's hitting streak to 13.

He added one more hit in the second game of the twinbill upping the skein to 14. Pomona came right back in the eighth on a run-scoring single by Mike Ashman for a 2-1 edge. But, in the bottom of the eighth, the stage was set for Parr's game-winning heroics.

Frank Silva started the rally off by drawing a walk from Pomona hurler, Alan Fowlkes. On a hit-and-run, Dave Kirby singled, scoring Silva and tying the score at two apiece. Fowlkes loaded the bases seconds later when he walked Weirum.

Parr, who had riddled the Pomona defense with four hits in his first six trips to the plate in the series, battled Fowlkes to a two-out, three and two count. With the runners going, Parr blooped a triple into the right field corner to drive in the final three runs.

In Pomona's two wins, it was the Mark Border-Bandy Schauer show with help from John Hotchkiss and Pat Cronin. Hotchkiss drove in five runs while Cronin drove in two and created havoc on the bases.

Hertler's scratch single in the seventh inning spoiled Border's bid for a no-hitter in the series opener. Parr lined a single to right sending Hertler to third and later scored on Ball White's fly ball.

Schauer let his defense do the work for him en route to his shutout victory. The scrappy left-hander kept his sinker low behind the plate in the series, baffling the San Luis Obispo hitters with four hits in his first six trips to the plate in the series, battled Fowlkes to a two-out, three and two count. Playoff birth hangs on Poly win

Win Coach Lance Lemar's women's track team traveled to the NAIA Western Regionals, split a weekend, and returned to campus with four berths earned. Coach Lemar's girls, with 44 points, finished third in the meet. The Mustangs registered 3 points in the league finals, just 16 points behind the three-time defending champion Matadors, Cal State Los Angeles, though they garnered first place in six events, finished a distant third with 96 points. It was a total team effort, said Coach Lemar, "Every person we took scored. That's a phenomenal Teamwork, as we were prepared and things just fell into place.

"People were in awe of our performance," said Coach Lemar. "The people had a right to be in awe. Last year the team compiled a mere 22 points and Coach Lemar remarked that the other teams did not expect Cal Poly to improve dramatically—at least not 145 points worth. Lemar attributed the vast improvement to teamwork and a desire in each of the athletes to improve herself. Though it was Northridge who won the meet, it was the Cal Poly squad which shone the brightest by unexpectedly logging firsts in six events. Not surprisingly, Maggie Keyes paced the Mustangs by grabbing top prize in two events and setting league marks in the process. Senior Keyes joined around the 800-meter course in a 2:07.7 time to pick up 12 points and a 4:20 in a 400 to win the 1,500 meters.

Freshman Sue Oran left the rest of the competition behind to win the 10,000-meter run with a time of 37:54 to break a third league mark. Eileen Kraemer continued to dominate the middle distance events, clocking in a 9:47 to place first in the 3,000. Dave Anderson heaved the shot put 41-3 to notch a first. Sheila Baillie registered a first in the "S" anyone for a playoff spot. Six, a third with 4-3 to notch a first. The loss dropped Eymer's record to 3-4 another strong three hit ball game.

Prospects dim for Poly gridders

While pandemonium promises to prevail at the National Football League college draft today, with a team batting for the top names in college ball, Cal Poly football Coach Joe Harper expects his players might go in the late rounds.

But Dickens, the Mustang's UPI All-Pacific Coast defensive mention running back, headed Harper's list. Dickens, who might be chosen by the pros, Dickens, pressed into the starting tailback position when Louis Jones went down with an injury, churned out 1,177 yards for the Mustangs last season and scored 10 touchdowns.

Intensive tackle Greg McConnell, who paced the those with 68 tackles, and Mike Baily, who anchored Mustangs offensive line at the guard position, also mentioned by Harper as possible draft picks.

right hand. Their replacements, Martha Eymer and Sue Letson, played excellent ball.

In the ninth inning of the first game, Letson tagged a single to center field and then was sacrificed to second by Cross. Kelly hit a ground shot to the shortstop who made a good error to first base. Letson was later able to score on the throwing error.

Shelia Langrock, 10-11, went the distance for the Mustangs to get the win, allowing one run on seven hits and striking out three.

In the second game, Martha Eymer did the pitching for the Mustangs, giving up only three hits in 13 innings it was a fine pitching performance by Eymer who forced them to miss all of last season with an injury.

For five innings, Eymer pitched a perfect game as she stifled the Gauchos best. But in the sixth she walked the lead-off batter, struck out the next, then gave up the only Gauchos hit in regulation for a single to center field. Cal Poly got its run in the fourth inning when Phyllis Hickey hit her fourth home run of the season over the left fielder's head. The Gauchos struck back in the 12th inning on Lori Sanchez's solo home run to right field. The loss dropped Eymer's record to 3-4 another strong three hit ball game.
