Jarvis swings his tax-cutting ax

BY JOHN KELLER
Co-Editor

Mayor Lynn Cooper said he was dumbfounded by Howard Jarvis' latest barrage against the state education system.

"I can't read them," he said, "I believe in education, but if you pay all your tuition, I, as a taxpayer, still pay more than you do. I bought the building and the ground that put the college there for you. I'm paying $2,000 so you can get in there for $1,200, and I'm not going to pay anymore.

Daily: I've heard that part of Proposition 9's appeal is that it helps the little guy without much money. How does tuition help a poor family who can't afford to send its children to college? Jarvis: I was from a poor family. I worked my way through four years of college. I worked an afternoon shift at the Utah Copper Co., 365 days a year for four years. I rode an inter-urban train for 18 miles to college and I paid all my own way, I got straight A's in all my grades.

Now, I don't expect guys your age to have that many guts, because you don't have a hell of a lot in the schools these days, but I expect you to do something to pay your way because I think I've paid all I want to pay for kids going to college. I don't think you should get a free ride.

Daily: Estimates are that if Proposition 9 were to pass, minority students will be knocked out of the CSUC system.

Jarvis: I wish there would be and especially a lot from foreign countries. We could cut 100,000 foreign students—legal and illegal aliens going to school here—mooching on us and get them the hell out of here.

All you say doesn't make any impression on me because you're inferring that if you go to Cal Poly you'll get an education. I don't believe it, because they don't give you one. They give you a bunch of garbage.

Daily: What about, for example, minority students, who plan to go to Cal Poly, who can't afford tuition, and who are already working to help their families?

Jarvis: Good for them. They have to work too. I think that as long as the school system is not producing education, that when I pay $50,000 a year in taxes, I don't get any education for it. I don't think they should get a scam. The school system is not an education institution anymore. It's a political Mafia for money. The only difference between the school system today and the Mafia is that the schools steal more money than the Mafia.

I don't like it—I wish we had some bright people, both Democrats and Republicans, and that's why Proposition 9 is going to pass in California about 3-1.

Daily: Why does their public figure support help you, but having Gov. Brown against you not worry you?

Thanks for Jarvis

Editors:

I would like to take this opportunity to sincerely thank you for providing us with Howard Jarvis' commentary on the state of education in this country. After reading that Mr. Jarvis was a "straight A" student, it is truly a comfort to know that I will graduate from this university in June with "a bunch of garbage" rather than an education of the caliber that Mr. Jarvis received.

It is horrifying to think that this man can, and will, have such an impact on the state of education in California if we just sit back and watch. Please, all of us must get out and take a stand on this issue, AND VOTE OUR POSITION in the June election. If we choose to sit back and be idle on this issue, then certainly we deserve whatever the outcome is.

Clarification

Editors:

Regarding Jim Hendry's April 25, 26 article "The Year in Concerts... from David Grisman to TOTO"—just a few points of clarification. First, while the ASI Concerts Committee has been very successful in providing this campus with a diversity of well-run first-class concerts, the credit for the success of our events lies with the University Union Board of Governors and the concert was "organized and run by the ASI Fine Arts Committee."

This committee too works on a volunteer basis. Several members from the Concerts Committee and other organizations assisted the evening of the performance. The planning of the concert, from the signing of the contract to the catering for the band members, was an ASI Fine Arts operation. We are very grateful for the band's accomplishments and feel we deserve proper credit.

Second, the article lists David Grisman as proceeding Count Basie during Kaleidoscope. Count Basie was Feb. 4 and David Grisman Feb. 9.

400,000 elderly citizens giving up. (Proposition 13) passed, they'd lose all state benefits—that was a lie. They said it was a lie, and it was a lie. Jerry Brown, after Proposition 13 passed, said it was the best thing that ever happened to California. After saying the previous six months it was the worst thing. So I'm either lying one place or the other. And, of course, they lied about the state surplus. They said it was $1.5 billion, and I said it was $6.5 billion, and it turned out to be $6.5 billion.

Daily: People are also saying Proposition 9 is for the rich, that it's regressive.

Jarvis: People are saying Proposition 9 is for the rich, that it's regressive because they look at certain items. I believe it is better for the poor, particularly at Cal Poly. (You're) from Cal Poly. God, if you pays your taxes, you're doing good. The people in the school system told you, most of it goes to the teachers. They don't want to give the students and schools any more money. They don't want to give the teachers any more money.

Jarvis: Proposition 13 didn't cut it any either, because that's all it is. It didn't cut it any. The only thing it did was cut the business inventory tax. The only thing it did was cut the business inventory tax. That's all it did. It didn't cut it any. They didn't cut anything. They didn't cut the teachers any. They didn't cut the students any. They didn't cut the schools any. They didn't cut the teachers any. They didn't cut the schools any.
Drama meeting
Cal Poly’s drama society, Alpha Psi Omega, will meet today in Room 212 of the H.P. Davidson Music Building at 11 a.m. Members are urged to attend. The meeting is also open to interested non-members.

Diving clinic
The Cal Poly Athletic Department is now offering a free diving clinic, open to all students regardless of experience. Basic instruction in the fundamentals of springboard diving will be given every Tuesday, Thursday and Friday through the end of the quarter from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. The clinic will be at the pool behind the main gym.

Cal Poly PALS
Cal Poly’s PALS program needs male volunteers to devote three to four hours a week as a Big Brother to motherless or fatherless children in the San Luis Obispo area. If you are staying through the summer, please call 546-1395 or stop by Student Community Services for more information.

First coffeehouse
ASI Special Events Committee presents the first coffeehouse of the quarter. Featured will be some San Luis Obispo musicians in a warm, mellow atmosphere. Coffeehouse will be brought at 8 in the Mustang Lounge and cost is 50 cents.

Sickle-cell
The Social Sciences Council is sponsoring an open forum between senate candidates and all members of the Division of Social Sciences today at 11 a.m. in UU 216.

Supreme Court expands rights
WASHINGTON 'APi -- The Supreme Court, putting another dent in the doctrine of sovereign immunity today broadly expanded an individual's right to sue the federal government.

By a 5-4 vote, the court fashioned a new rule weakening the federal government's defense against lawsuits seeking damages based directly on a constitutional violation.

The government must now only point to alternative methods of getting relief but also must show that Congress has provided an alternative remedy which it explicitly declared to be a substitute for recovery directly under the Constitution, the court said.

Specifically, the justices said federal prisoners still suffer cruel and unusual punishment may sue the government for damages.

There will be a payback by Poly Royal today from 11 a.m. p.m. in Room 112 Engineering East.

Fire hazards increase during legal burnings

Debris-burners must get a valid permit from the CDF and follow its provisions. There must be an adult present at the fire until it is out, and the proper clearance, people, tools, and water to prevent the fire from going out of control must be provided.

Whale Rock opens for fishing

May hikes planned by ASI Outings

A new activity of a hard fought legal battle between the City of San Luis Obispo and the San Luis Obispo Men's Colony, the Whale Rock Reservoir, is about to open.

In 1978, the fishing Supreme Court case opened the Whale Rock Reservoir to anglers and to establish a new and significant sanitation area, according to city planner Terry Sanville.

The Whale Rock Reservoir is composed of representatives from San Luis Obispo, the San Luis Obispo Department of Water Resources and Cal Poly, which utilize Whale Rock Reservoir for public recreation.

We went fishing on opening day of trout season about ten years ago, said Parsons.

The city tried to get a mooring order against the club and the sportmen, but a cross suit was made to the Supreme Court and won.

The people opposed to fishing in the lake are concerned with the purity of the drinking water, said J.H. Fitzpatrick, secretary of the Whale Rock Commission. Fitzpatrick cited determination of the water as a natural consequence of public recreation.

Glenn sparks, conservation aid for the Department of Fish and Game said, "Legally they can't close it. It's an open body of water."

He indicated that people pay money for fishing licenses which entitle them to fish.

Sparks said that anglers will be pleased with the "trophy fishing" in the reservoir.

"In essence, it will basically be a steelhead lake," he said.

There are both land-locked steelhead and sucker fish in the reservoir, according to Sparks. They are now in the process of trapping the suckers which are relatively worthless "garbage fish," said Sparks.

The California Conservation Corp is in the process of building a trail and an application for a federal grant in the works, said Sanville.

Sanville said, "There's no specific schedule for the opening of the reservoir but we're hoping by the end of the summer."

But, Parsons noted, "I suspect that it will be a good fishing season when it opens."

Seven fires in San Luis Obispo County in the last two weeks have been caused by debris-burners who let their fires go out of control, according to a news release from the California Department of Forestry.

Ma Jones allowed baby to grow up to be cowboy

BY DAVE BONTA
Daily Stall Writer

"Mommas don’t let your babies grow up to be cowboys," crooned country-and-western singers Waylon Jennings and Willie Nelson.

Cal Poly rodeo team member Johnny Jones has reflected on Jennings’ advice. He knows his father, Waylon Jennings, has had his earlobe cut off then sewn back on.

The elder Jones has known is due in part to his own hard work and the presence of his father. Jones said his father never really forced him into rodeo competition, but instead provisioned him with the opportunity if he wanted it. He took advantage of that opportunity when he competed in rodeos for the first time as a sophomore in high school.

But Jones still said, rather nonchalantly, that his mother isn't really worried about him getting hurt. Jones’ mother has witnessed rodeo injuries before, as her husband is former steer wrestler Johnny Jones Sr., and perhaps has come to realize injuries are part of the sport.

In any case, the younger Jones is aware of the occupational hazards of wrestling 550-700-pound animals and is now embarking on a rodeo career which may lead him to the world championship in steer wrestling—a title his father won in 1979.

The 19-year-old from Morro Bay is currently ranked number one in the nation in steer wrestling and at one time this year was top-ranked in calf roping too.

The success that Jones has known is due in part to his own hard work and the presence of his father. Jones said his father never really forced him into rodeo competition, but instead provided him with the opportunity if he wanted it. He took advantage of that opportunity when he competed in rodeos for the first time as a sophomore in high school.

Step #2.

A career in engineering. You took the first step when you enrolled in college.

The notion of seeing your ideas become reality was probably a major factor in your decision to become an engineer.

Now comes the second step. Deciding where you’re going to put your ideas and training to work.

Ten years ago, Advanced Micro Devices had no products, zero sales and eight of the best people in the business.

Today, Advanced Micro Devices has more than 600 products, over $200 million in sales and 8,000 of the best people in the business.

We want more.

If you’re an engineering degree candidate with a solid state physics background, we want you.

You’ll work for the fastest growing integrated circuit producer in the nation. You’ll work with engineers whose ideas have become reality.

Step to the head of the class. Join Advanced Micro Devices.

Advanced Micro Devices will be on the Cal Poly campus May 5, 1980. Contact the Career Planning and Placement Center for more information.

Joining a marathon race during the final stages and pretending to win is getting to be a deliberate procedure for some people, but one Cal Poly professor almost did it unwittingly.

Dr. Rob Logan, an associate professor of journalism, was visiting friends in Pebble Beach on April 20 and decided he'd go for a run. During the course of his outing, he became disoriented and began to head toward what he thought was his friend’s home.

Shortcutting through a thick hedge, he was startled to find a group of about 40 people looking at him and applauding. He was even more amazed when a man stepped forward to shake his hand and photographer's welcoming committee noticed that not only was he not wearing a number, he was dressed in full. "I'd had so many things on my mind," he said, "that he was not even in the race to begin with."

Ruggers drop season finale

The Cal Poly Rugby club, beset by injuries, dropped their season finale on Saturday.

The Mustangs battled St. Louis for most of the first period, but Mike Piekko went down with a collateral fracture and Cal Poly had no one experienced to fill the void.

San Luis City capitalized on the opening to put six points and assure the win.

Though Cal Poly lost, Coach Kerry Stevens noted several positive points about his team’s play. "Everyone played a good game. The defense played better than we have in the strength all year."

Prof wins race—almost

Last year Jones finished fourth in steer wrestling at the national finals. He will be looking to improve on that performance come June at the finals in Bozeman, Montana.

Jones said he is considering turning professional at the end of his senior season, which he feels is probably the point where I was happier to be picked at.

San Luis City capitalized on the opening to put six points and assure the win.

Though Cal Poly lost, Coach Kerry Stevens noted several positive points about his team’s play. "Everyone played a good game. The defense played better than we have in the strength all year."

Logan admitted the whole occurrence was an "amazing coincidence" and he was not inspired by the West German man who appeared to beat Frank Shorter in the 1972 Olympic Games marathon. "It is unknown, however, he saw Rosie Ruiz to the finish line in the Boston Marathon last week.

AN OPEN LETTER TO HOWARD JARVIS

Mr. Howard Jarvis, Chairman
California Tax Reduction Movement
6365 Wiltshire Boulevard - Suite 350
Los Angeles, California 90048

Dear Mr. Jarvis:

Over the last weekend, your interview in the Cal Poly Royal edition of the Cal Poly Mustang Daily in San Luis Obispo was called to my attention again and again.

To say that I am chagrined and disappointed in your attitude and language is to put it mildly. Without any provocation, you insulted and maligned the university, its students and faculty, and the County and City of San Luis Obispo, using a most vulgar kind of language.

Both the county and the school are in the 29th Assembly district, which I represent, and while they need no defense from me, I cannot let your sourmiserous and completely uncalled for attack pass without comment.

You owe every student and faculty member at Cal Poly and every resident of San Luis Obispo County an apology.

Regardless, however, I believe you have hurt the chances that Prop. 9 has of passing in the 29th district. Many of my constituents already are questioning my support of Prop. 9 because they identify it closely with you.

You have left me no alternative but to explain to them publicly that while I continue strongly to support Prop. 9 on its merits, I do not in any way support or condone what you have said or the manner in which you said it.

There are many excellent reasons to support Prop. 9:

increasing state surpluses literally demand a tax cut;

the money it will leave in taxpayers' pockets and the stimulation it will bring to the state's economy;

a real chance to cut waste in state spending;

But, it will be difficult for voters clearly to distinguish between the merits of Prop. 9 and your irrelevant comments.

I strongly urge you to apologize immediately to the faculty and students at Cal Poly and to residents of the county. It is important that Prop. 9 pass. Outbursts such as yours in the Mustang Daily will not help.

Sincerely,

Carol Hallett
Mrs. Carol Hallett
