Graduation 1980: getting out at last
Symbolic defeat

On June 17 the Public Transportation Company of San Luis Obispo voted to strike down the 7-cent bus token discount formerly given to the ASI, and require ASI to dole out the usual 35 cents for each token it purchases.

In these troubled times, with the menace of inflation clawing threateningly at the door, and welfare lines growing longer, a 7-cent bus token rate hike seems insignificant. Indeed, the increase, which will probably mean each Cal Poly student must pay 20 or 25 cents for a token instead of the current 15 cents, will not force students to camp on street corners, begging passersby for spare change.

But the bus token decision did mark an important symbolic defeat for Cal Poly students.

When the Public Transportation Company sold tokens to the ASI for 28 cents, it was engaging in a type of price discrimination; it was giving a rate break to a group which it viewed as deserving.

This mode of price discrimination is common in the transportation industry, for it recognizes that a sizeable percentage of students, as well as senior citizens, do not own a car nor can they afford paying 70 cents each day to ride a bus.

So when the Public Transportation Company stripped the ASI of its reduced rate privileges without increasing the $2.50 monthly pass price for senior citizens or the rate charged to the general public for a single bus ride, it said in essence that the financial plight of Cal Poly students is not significant enough to merit a bus token rate reduction.

It would not be as disturbing that the Public Transportation Company turned its back on the needs of students if such was an isolated instance. But this is merely another in a line of decisions made by a San Luis Obispo group which works to the detriment of Cal Poly students.

The relationship between the university and the city, is, to put it bluntly, parasitic. The city thrives off the increased commerce and prestige Cal Poly brings, and the students derive most of their basic needs and much of their entertainment from San Luis and its surrounding community.

For such a parasitic relationship to exist between both the university and the city, the two must coexist in harmony. The bus token increase is a symbol of this relationship's breakdown.

When the livin' is easy

Welcome to summer quarter 1980. You're in for an experience.

For those who haven't been around at Cal Poly during summer before, you may be in for a shock. Example: there are no tours.

At Cal Poly, you ask? How can there be no tours? Well, there aren't any. There are no lines. There are crowds. There is traffic. New students are exposed to the city instantly.

But back to summer. Summertime in San Luis Obispo is, in many people's minds, closest to perfection. It gets hot—usually up into the 100s by final weeks—but beaches are close and the customary SLO winds help everyone feel fairly cool. Students and teachers alike dress to beat the heat, and the informal atmosphere spreads to every department on campus.

It is uncommon for a summer quarter class to start out with forty people and end up with ten. Students add and drop classes using the same ease with which they put on or kick off their Beachcombers. All of a line is not uncommon. In fact, it is expected.

Look around you. Gone are the half-hour waits for french fries at the Burger Bar, and extinct are the busy南海as that we suffered all through fall, winter and spring. No crowds of fellow students crowd the walkways between classes.

New students who start at Poly during the summer are confused and bewildered when fall quarter begins. All of a sudden, there's all these people. There are lines. There are crowds. Traffic is new. Students are exposed to the city instantly.

When the student body has grown from 9,000 to 10,000, the city thrives off the increased commerce and prestige Cal Poly brings, and the students derive most of their basic needs and much of their entertainment from San Luis and its surrounding community.

For such a parasitic relationship to exist between both the university and the city, the two must coexist in harmony. The bus token increase is a symbol of this relationship's breakdown.

Sudden, getting a tan is of more interest than Chem 121.

Added benefit: clothing is kept at a bare minimum during these months. Girls and guys alike scurry the scenery much more appropriately dressed.

At any rate, welcome back, everyone. Enjoy the summer while you can. If nothing else, it will be unique. But don't get too spoiled, for it will all go back to normal—crowded—when September rolls around.

I mean, if you have to go to school in the summer, you might as well do it around here.

Racial inequality?

Editors:

The interview with James Patton in the June 3 Mustang Daily demands a reply.

Mr. Patton states that USSR's goal is to attain equality. That's fine with everyone. But he doesn't cite evidence of existing racial inequality other than: "walking by and not looking at you (come on, be reasonable)." aggressive action is not a con-.

triction of his views—discrimination in favor of minorities and employment (but the laws written today prevent such discrimination).

Mr. Patton gives vague references to "ignorance" and "oppression" but no evidence. I will concede the opposite view: in our society, it is generally to your advantage to be a "minority." This is because, contrary to what Mr. Patton believes, the laws in existence today are geared to help non-whites.

But why must there be this agitation? Why must we have groups like this which serve only to widen the gap between the races (i.e. "stirring things up," labelling all whites as one-dimensional, or falsely accusing the administration of unfair hiring practices?)

Examples he gives of how as being detrimental to him are long gone and don't fit today's world. Categorize and demand, that example, that the Cal Poly specifically have "black instead of the best available?

I don't downgrade any because of the color of their skin. It's only when people unite and coalitions against them—without apparent reason, the become resentful.

Council accepts fare hike

Cal Poly bus commuters will probably pay 5 to 10 cents more in September for discount bus tokens as a result of a 7-cent increase in the volume discount price for tokens, approved in concept by the San Luis Obispo City Council on June 17.

ASI Program Director Stephen Adams said Monday that the five-year 28-cent price paid by the ASI for tokens will jump to 35 cents—"probably sometime in mid-August." The ASI is the fiscal year ending June 30 will have sold 104,500 of the quarter-sized blue tokens to students, faculty and staff for 15 cents each.

The discount tokens and bus passes are subsidized by the state through the fees and fortuitous fund accrued from campus parking citations. For each token sold for 15 cents, the state chips in 18 cents. For the 1980-81 fiscal year, Adams has requested a 15 cent state subsidy for each 35 cent token, leaving 20 cents to be paid by commuters.

The total state subsidy requested by Adams for the 1980-81 discount bus program is $32,002, almost double last year's figure.

Adams and Director of Business Affairs James Landreth said the amount of money available for the 1980-81 program will not be known until July 1. Landreth added that based on a preliminary assessment, the $32,002 figure would not be available.

Adams said if his request was not met, then he would meet with ASI student fees to hammer out a discount program based on the available money.

"I would like to sell tokens for 30 cents," Adams said, but "it looks like it will go up."

The ASI has no bus tokens available now. Adams said and has no funds with which to buy more from the city.

"There was a run on tokens the day after the story about the price increase was in a Telegram-Tribune June 18," Adams said.

Adams hopes to have tokens for sale on July 2 at regular 15 cent price when program's funding formation is available.

Sprinter picked as Nigerian Olympian

Cal Poly sprinter Rowland Sial Sial, a native of Asia, has been named to the Nigerian Olympic Committee for that country in the 1980 Summer Olympics in Moscow.

Sial Sial, one of the top sprinters and hurdlers in the region, placed fourth in both the high hurdles and the 200 meters in the Division II finals 1978, his first year at Cal Poly, after capturing first in the California junior college high hurdle title in 1977.

Sial Sial, who has one year of eligibility left for Cal Poly, holds the school record in the 100 meters (10.16) and 110-meter high hurdles (13.7).

Students protest rape suspect release

A petition bearing the signatures of 207 Cal Poly dorm residents has been sent to state legislators Carol Hallett and Robert Nimmo protesting the early release of $10,000 bail of a rape suspect.

The suspect, 27-year-old Eddie Gaines of Atascadero, was arrested for the alleged rape of a 21-year-old North Mountain dorm resident. He was charged with rape with possession of a .38, two-inch revolver and burglary. The alleged rape reportedly occurred at 4:30 a.m. June 8.

Gaines was released on $10,000 bail within hours of the arrest, according to university police investigator Myra Sheehan.

The petitioners are angry that the bail set for burglary, $10,000, is greater than the bail which would have been set for rape, $2,500. Sheehan said state law prohibits bail stacking.

"In our opinion," says the petition, "the violation of a person is far more severe than the violation of property." The suspect is a part-time peace officer at the California Youth Authority facility in Paso Robles and has been suspended of his job, Sheehan said.

County prosecutors were in court at presstime and were unavailable to confirm Gaines' arraignment and preliminary hearing. Sheehan said she was told a preliminary hearing would be held by July 3.

"It's the way the courts work," she said. "They’ll drop it.

962 MONTEREY DOWNTOWN SAN LUIS OBISPO
President of PG&E speaks in SLO

BY ELISA WILLIAMS

Mustang Staff Writer

With preliminary testing scheduled to start at Diablo Canyon nuclear power plant this fall, the president of Pacific Gas and Electric Company said Monday that PG&E is now working to establish a good neighbor policy with the San Luis Obispo community.

Speaking to the San Luis Obispo Rotary Club, Barton W. Shackelford said the debate over the licensing of Diablo Canyon is over. It is now time, he said, to educate the public on the nation’s energy situation and Diablo Canyon’s role in it.

PG&E will be stepping up community relations to inform San Luis Obispo residents about Diablo Canyon’s role in their lives, Shackelford said. It is hoped that this will ease some of the tension concerning nuclear power in the area.

All forms of energy must be utilized to meet future energy demands, Shackelford said, but the political instability in the Middle East makes it imperative that dependence on the use of fossil fuel in the U.S. be decreased.

Although the opposition to Diablo Canyon has gained some positive safety benefits, the delay in starting operation of the plant has cost a tremendous amount in terms of finances and international standing.

While stressing Diablo’s safety, Shackelford said nuclear energy is California’s best energy alternative because of the many problems associated with coal-burning plants. He said coal-burning plants cause air pollution that their clean-up systems have not been proven.

dermatologist and researcher at the Temple University School of Medicine at Philadelphia. But UVA radiation, while more safe than the other wavelengths, may be one of the contributing agents in the aging and wrinkling of the skin, says Dr. Charles Fishman, another San Luis Obispo dermatologist.

According to Parrish’s spokesman, however, no conclusive evidence on the aging effects of UVA radiation has yet been determined by researchers.

As for claims that tanning is healthy, Fishman says, “It is not going to help anybody’s health” unless that person works in the sun a great deal and needs the ion protection.

“If people want to tan that badly they cannot find the time to go in the sun and be willing to take the risks . . . then that is their decision. But they ought to be made aware of the true risks,” Fishman states.

They can tan more cheaply by getting in the sun during the early morning or afternoon sunlight when natural radiation predominates, noted both Stein and Fishman.

One famous sun worshiper, however, has his own view of that advice.

“It’s just not the same as a clinical philosopher,” Zonker, the celebrity tanner of "Doonesbury" fame.
Child development lab gets "dinosaur"

BY LORI ANDERSON Mustang Staff Writer

There's a dinosaur hanging around the play area of the child development lab. Dennis Potts, a sophomore architecture major said, "The dinosaur was built for Poly Royal as part of the 'Transition through Time' run." After the Poly Royal weekend, the dinosaur named Deano for the architecture department team, George Handson, was stolen by one of the architecture labs.

Potts said Alpha Rho Chi put out flyers in search of the missing dinosaur and eventually discovered him in one of the labs. Once Deano was recovered, he was hidden in the slide library of the architecture building until an auction was held to sell him to the highest bidder.

"We've been doing alot on dinosaurs," said Potts, and some of the children have taken a special interest in the prehistoric beasts.

Adam, a five-year-old student, said, "I wish that thing was alive."
