make the opportunity to discuss hike in fees

BY DAVE BRACKNEY

A possible increase in ASI fees will soon be discussed by the ASI senate, it was announced Wednesday. Finance Committee Chairman Roger Mann told the senate he will submit his proposal for a fee increase at its next meeting, scheduled for Dec. 3.

If passed, the increase would be the first since 1977. Many senators feel that because of inflation, the increase is necessary and justified to maintain many ASI services. The amount of the proposed increase is unknown at present, but is expected to be debated extensively by the senate.

In addition to an ASI fee increase, Mann said the Finance Committee is "exploring" the possibility of increase in football ticket prices by 25 cents next season. The revenue created by the increase would be received by the Cal Poly Marching Band. Mann said the additional revenue would be used to cover the cost of new band uniforms.

In other matters, the senate again debated possible changes in the General Revenue Sharing program. Under this program, students voting in ASI elections would be allowed to donate one dollar of their ASI fee to the campus club or organization of their choice. Many senators, as well as ASI President Willie Huff, favor continuing GRS as a way to spur student interest in ASI.

Some senators, however, feel GRS is unfair to students not belonging to any clubs or organizations. Others oppose GRS on the grounds that it is one dollar "too little" to get apathetic, uninterested students to vote.

ASI to discuss hike in fees

The results of the Campus Hunger Coalition’s ‘Skip-a-Meal’ program were “fantastic,” according to the coordinator of the event.

Shelly Mulvihill, a Hunger Coalition member, said she was pleased with the student participation in the program. Of the 904 people who signed up to skip dinner on Nov. 20, 868 followed through. On campus residents accumulated $737.90.

“We figured we’d lose at least 100 people,” said Mulvihill.

The “Skip-a-Meal” program involved students with meal plans—most of those being dorm residents. Mulvihill coordinated the event with the cooperation of the Cal Poly Foundation Food Services. She complimented the Food Service’s cooperative efforts.

For each person who skipped dinner the Hunger Coalition will receive 85 cents to cover food costs. Mulvihill said the money will be sent directly to Crop–Church World Services to be placed in the Cambodian Refugee Village and Stenner Glen. Mulvihill said about 200 students were expected to participate.

The purpose of the Hunger Coalition is to get involved in education and action on the issues of world hunger,” she said.

Drive to unionize dorm’s resident advisors fizzes

A chance for representation by a state employees’ union is being largely ignored by Cal Poly resident advisors, despite general agreement that job improvements are necessary.

A two-and-a-half hour meeting Friday afternoon among resident advisors, resident directors and housing department administrators produced a general agreement that improvements in resident advisors job could be made, but also produced a deadlock in specific improvements and the means for achieving them.

And a meeting for only resident advisors is not allowed to hold other jobs, including working at the desk, he said.

On the possibility of room and board instead of salary, Bostrom said it has tried in the past and the students seem to take the job more seriously if they see a paycheck.

On the issue of health cards, Bostrom said it would be too expensive for the housing department to provide an annual health card for every resident advisor because they have single coverage.

He said he does not want the advisors to work extra desk hours, because it would take away from the time they are available to residents. Resident advisors are not allowed to hold other jobs, including working at the desk, he said.

Robert Bostrom, head of Cal Poly housing department, said these proposals wouldn’t work.

But the resident advisors don’t seem to take the job more seriously if they see a paycheck.

I don’t know if a union would do much good,” said Cynda Clary, a senior resident advisor. “Most R.A.s are only in the job a year—to be effective you need people who will be around longer—”

Robert Bostrom, head of Cal Poly housing department, said these proposals wouldn’t work. He said he does not want the advisors to work extra desk hours, because it would take away from the time they are available to residents. Resident advisors are not allowed to hold other jobs, including working at the desk, he said.

On the possibility of room and board instead of salary, Bostrom said it has tried in the past and the students seem to take the job more seriously if they see a paycheck.

On the issue of health cards, Bostrom said it would be too expensive for the housing department to provide an annual health card for every resident advisor. He said the housing department already loses $1,000 per year per resident advisor because they have single coverage.

“Seasonal employment is not an issue any more,” said Settle.

Many senators, as well as ASI President Willie Huff, favor continuing GRS as a way to spur student interest in ASI.

“As long as most R.A.s belonged, the union could represent them,” he said. “Seasonal employment is not an issue here.”
Poly clubs bring country to city on Farm City Day

BY JIM MALONE

Hundreds of city-folk got an opportunity Saturday to pet a pig, hug a goat, spin wool into thread, and get acquainted with the world of agriculture at the 25th Farm City Day celebration at Madonna Road Plaza in San Luis Obispo.

The shopping center was turned into a state fair midway by the 23 clubs and organizations from the Cal Poly School of Agriculture and Natural Resources which vied for the best exhibit booth award. First-place winner was the American Society of Foresters display of the tools of the forestry trade and an exotic hardwood collection.

The sounds of squealing pigs, mooing cows, roosters and sheep greeted shoppers as they passed the petting zoo sponsored by second place-winners the Collegiate Future Farmers of America. Across the way youngsters beamed as they enjoyed a pony ride, sponsored by the Cal Poly Cutting and Reining club.

For those into the thrill of victory, the clubs held the Farm Olympics, testing skills at cow-chip tossing, milk-chugging, pick-up pushing, and tobacco-spitting. The Collegiate FFA group took first prize.

Co-sponsors and Madonna Plaza Merchants association donated prizes for all the award winners. The idea behind Farm City Day is to "let the people of San Luis Obispo get in touch with the agriculture around them," said senior Keith Selnick, chairman of the Collegiate FFA exhibit committee.

Craft sale

There's a sale of student-made wares in the Craft Center in the University Union Dec. 4-5 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Info: Michelle Martin, 541-0472.

Assistant needed

Those interested in being internal affairs assistant to the ASI President should apply by Dec. 9 in U.U. 217A weekdays.

Help wanted

The yearbook staff needs a business major to develop the marketing plan for the 1981-1982 yearbook as a senior project. Info: Cathy Randell, 543-8538.

CD meeting

Family internships and the 430 lab will be discussed at the Child Development Club's Dec. 2 meeting at 7:30 p.m. in Sci. North 206. Info: Donna Anderson, 544-1195.

Birth control

The campus Health Center offers birth control workshops for men and women every Tuesday from 3 p.m. to 4:30 p.m., every Wednesday from 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m.

SAM

The Society for the Advancement of Management will install officers at their Dec. 4 installation banquet. Buy tickets through Dec. 2 in the BA lobby from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Info: Matt Thayer, 544-8582.

Senator needed

Those interested in being an ASI senator representing the School of Human Development and Education should apply by Dec. 9 in U.U. 217A weekdays. Info: Katherine Schott, 541-6118.

Baker review

President Warren Baker will review "At the Pleasure of the Board" by Joseph Kaufman at noon tomorrow in the Staff Dining Room for the Books at High Noon program. The book deals with the duties and responsibilities of a college president.
Biologist Daniel Botkin blamed environmental management failures on tinkering with nature.
The audience watches the screen as John Wayne races through cross-fire, risking his life to save a fellow soldier from certain death. Just as the enemy is on the verge of victory, Wayne's troop arrives to defeat the attackers and Wayne emerges a hero.

According to Political Science Professor Carl Lutrin, not only is the audience entertained, but form attitudes toward war which have been molded by the film. "Hollywood has created a climate which has conditioned our thinking about war," said Lutrin. "I think people know more about war by films, especially John Wayne films, than by books.

This belief gave birth to the class, "Politics through Films," being taught next quarter by Lutrin. Students enrolled in Political Science 270 will study American war movies, learn the history and politics of the different wars and analyze the biases contained in war films. These biases shape the public's feelings about war and peace, said Lutrin, adding that it is essential to look at Hollywood's depiction of war to see how it has shaped public opinion.

Lutrin will introduce students to films which show both positive and negative aspects of war. Some war films, such as They Were Expendable, starring John Wayne, were war efforts portraying a patriotic attitude toward war, said Lutrin.

Other movies, such as The Young Lions, starring Marlon Brando, take a harsher look at war. Instead of the heroism of John Wayne, the film shows a tremendous amount of suffering.

Lutrin said students will be expected to view and discuss films, keeping in mind the type of response the film was trying to receive from its audience.

Lutrin studied defense for his master's and doctorate work, and has found war films to be a tremendously popular, commercial success for the film industry. He said their appeal will remain undiminished in the future. "Film is an escape," said Lutrin. "The more alienated we become, the more impersonal society becomes, the more people want a hero." This hero will continue to be found in war movies, he said.
Stanford Cardinals hold off Poly for women's basketball triumph

BY VERN AHRENDES
Sports Editor

After jumping out to a 17-point halftime edge, the Stanford Cardinals had to hold off hard-charging Cal Poly to claim the championship of the Cal Poly Classic women's basketball tournament.

The Cal Poly women rallied with too little too late as the Cardinals held on for a 64-59 victory.

The clutch offensive play down the stretch by Laura Buehning and Collen Finney anchored the comeback.

"The second half of the game was the first time that I've had to pull in the strings," said Poly coach Marilyn McNeil.

The tournament answered a number of questions that McNeil needed to clear up.

Cal Poly pulled within two points of the tournament championship with 46 seconds left when Finney netted a 15-footer. A key bucket by Stanford captain Debbie Gore on an offensive rebound and a blocked pass by Louise Smith stalled the Mustang comeback.

Buehning led the Mustangs with 23 points. Stanford's Smith had game-high honors with 26 points. Finney chipped in 16 counters and Carolyn Cran dall added eight big points off of the bench.

Cal Poly gained access into the championship game with wins over Fresno and Santa Clara. Finney exploded for 22 points in Poly's 58-55 win over Santa Clara. In the Fresno game, Finney led Poly with 20 points and Buehning netted 19.

The Mustangs travel to Davis this Friday to take part in the U.C. Davis Tournament.

Khomeini blamed

BY TOM KINSOLVING
Staff Writer

Comparing Iran's Ayatollah Khomeini to the Rev. Jim Jones, some local Iraqis gave a vehement response to last week's campus speech denouncing Iraq.

The November 19 talk was entitled "The truth behind the Iraq-Iran conflict." A featured speaker Hamed Elmujahidi, who called the Iraqi government an unstable, illegitimate regime in an imperialistic plot to dominate the Middle East, Elmujahidi's charge that Iraq is brutally oppressive angered Cuesta College student Amer Hanna.

"No way," he said. "Our government is working for the people. Iraq is working for the Arab good."

Amer said intense modernization in his country has provided opportunities and education for the Iraqi people. He said the Iranian regime, in contrast, is repressive and that Khomeini is coercing Iranians in the war. Amer said Iran is the true belligerent in the two-month-old war, he said bombs planted by Iranian agents killed innocent people in Iraqi theaters and universities months before the outbreak of the Iraq-Iran war.

Amer said his sister, who was in the Ragnar University computer center around this time, witnessed an Iranian gunman shoot five students in the computer center.

"When the United States was bombed by Japan in 1941, what happened?" he said. "It went to war. This is what's happened between Iraq and Iran."

He accused the Iranians of being blinded by an allegiance to a tyrant worse than the Shah, someone willing to let them die for his inflated pride.

Amer said his father, Hikmet Michael Hanna, is a high official in Iraq's water projects organization now visiting his son. Hikmet called Elmujahidi's anti-Iraq statements "90 percent lies," comparing the speech to a Joe McCarthy attack.

"The Iranians are obsessed with Islam," he said. "Their country has no democracy or freedom. Now they're trying to undermine our development."

Hikmet said Khomeini's war against Iraq is a personal vendetta. While remaining in exile in Iraq years ago, the Ayatollah was finally forced to relocate in France, due to the Shah's pressure on the Iraqis. He is still angry at Iraq, according to Hikmet.

Poly student Najla Jallow called Elmujahidi's speech "irrational."

"He couldn't cite any evidence of any Iraqi internal conflict," she said. "I was just in Iraq and never saw any demonstrations nor any martial law in effect."
Mustang poloists win CCAA championship

BY VERN AHRENDES

"How about them Stangs," was ringing across the Cal Poly campus during the weekend and for a good reason.

The season came down to two days for the Cal Poly men's water polo team and it made the best of it as it snuck in the back door and wrapped up the California Collegiate Athletic Association (CCAA) conference championship. The Mustangs were ready to play as they collected wins the first day of the tournament over Loyola, 30-5, and tournament favorite Riverside, 16-13. The loss threw the tournament into a turmoil as three teams had one loss.

The last game of the season saw River­side against San Diego State. If Riverside could win, Los Angeles would lose and Los Angeles would lose with the most wins in one season with 15 and won its first CCAA tournament in its 18-year history. Cal Poly's 15-8 record tied the school's best season record as it finished seven games over the .500 mark.

Poly worked its clfame around the tandem of Bill Cadwallader and Steve Wright. The two top scorers on the Poly team responded by scoring 16 goals apiece during the two-day tourney.

Cadwallader netted five goals against San Diego State, four against Loyola and four in the Riverside game. Wright finished the season as the leading scorer with 27 goals.

Wright, Cadwallader and Bernie Birnbaum were named to the CCAA All-League team for Cal Poly.

"You have to give a lot of credit to the success of this team this year to assistant coach Paul Cutino," Haf­ferkamp said. "He kept this program aloft the last couple of years and now we have a stack of letter­ters from people wanting to come and play for us." Hafferkamp succeeded in his original plan to put the program back on its feet and he gave seniors Wright, Ron Hensel, Chris Axelgard and Bill Morgan, who have weathered three tough seasons, the chance to exit as champions.

"It was an unbelievable. The program went from almost being dropped from the athletic department in September to its first ever CCAA championship last week," said first-year coach Russell Haffer­kamp.

"Talent wise, we should not have been in either the San Diego or Riverside games but we beat them both easily.

"In the process of winning the tournament, Cal Poly set two team records and tied another. Cal Poly finished with the most second ranked defense in Division II as it gave up only 58.8 points per game.

Returning to the hard­court for Mustang coach Ernie Wheeler is co-CCAA most valuable player and all Pacific Coast guard Jim Shultz. Shultz broke the season assist record with 257 last year.

All-CCAA team members Ernie Wheeler in the backcourt and forward Bob McIntosh will be key members of the squad.

The Cal Poly men's basketball team opened its season this Friday night against visiting Notre Dame in the main gym at 7:30 p.m.

The Mustangs have a tough act to follow this year as they hope to im­prove on last year's 22-7 California Col­legiate Athletic Association championship, home record of 13-1, and its season assist record with 257 last year.

The fatal mistake had already been made as the Mustangs lost this weekend to Sacramento State, 24-19, in an upset in proportions to Alabama's loss to Mississippi State on the Division level.

If the committee was to follow its performance in the past weeks, Cal Poly's loss to Sac State should have drop­ped the Mustangs right out of the top 10 and out of contention for a spot in the playoffs.

But, the committee cannot back down from its position and you can be sure that there will be irate football fans from Davis, Northern Colorado, Virginia Union and Nebraska-Omaha crying "rape" this week.

Last week, the No. 5-ranked Troy State team lost to No. 3-ranked Jackson­ville State, 13-8, and Troy State tumbled right out of the top ten and Jacksonville State dropped one position to No. 6 as the Mustangs muscled their way into the No. 3 spot.

I don't mean to take anything away from the ac­complishments of Joe Harper's '80 Cal Poly football team. The win over Santa Clara, Northridge, Cal Poly Fresno and Boise State were impressive to say the least but to lose to a team that was 2-7 is sloppy.

There is no denying that the team that played Sac State was not the same one that had rolled off five straight wins but that all I am asking is for the committee to be consis­tent. It set its foundation by handling Troy State so rude­ly but why does it pamper Cal Poly?

The football fans at Davis, Troy State and Omaha have a right to know.

"I am asking is for the committee to be consist­ent. It set its foundation by handling Troy State so rude­ly but why does it pamper Cal Poly?"

Senior Ron Hensel (left) finished his collegiate career as a champion as the Cal Poly men's water polo team claimed the conference championship. Hensel scored 10 goals in four games to aid the championship effort.

Recycle the Daily

Sports

Guards lead Poly

The Cal Poly men's basketball team opened its season this Friday night against visiting Notre Dame in the main gym at 7:30 p.m.

The Mustangs have a tough act to follow this year as they hope to im­prove on last year's 22-7 California Col­legiate Athletic Association championship, home record of 13-1, and its season assist record with 257 last year.

The fatal mistake had already been made as the Mustangs lost this weekend to Sacramento State, 24-19, in an upset in proportions to Alabama's loss to Mississippi State on the Division level.

If the committee was to follow its performance in the past weeks, Cal Poly's loss to Sac State should have drop­ped the Mustangs right out of the top 10 and out of contention for a spot in the playoffs.

But, the committee cannot back down from its position and you can be sure that there will be irate football fans from Davis, Northern Colorado, Virginia Union and Nebraska-Omaha crying "rape" this week.

Last week, the No. 5-ranked Troy State team lost to No. 3-ranked Jackson­ville State, 13-8, and Troy State tumbled right out of the top ten and Jacksonville State dropped one position to No. 6 as the Mustangs muscled their way into the No. 3 spot.

I don't mean to take anything away from the ac­complishments of Joe Harper's '80 Cal Poly football team. The win over Santa Clara, Northridge, Cal Poly Fresno and Boise State were impressive to say the least but to lose to a team that was 2-7 is sloppy.

There is no denying that the team that played Sac State was not the same one that had rolled off five straight wins but that all I am asking is for the committee to be consis­tent. It set its foundation by handling Troy State so rude­ly but why does it pamper Cal Poly?

The football fans at Davis, Troy State and Omaha have a right to know.
Poly volleyball squad secures regional berth

BY BEVERLY BRINTNALL
Staff Writer

The Cal Poly women's volleyball team will play the University of Pacific in the AIAW Division I Western Regional playoffs this Friday at 12:30 p.m. in Santa Clara.

The Mustangs are seated seventh in the regional tournament and lost earlier in the season to second seated UOP 16-18, 15-13, 15-10.

The Poly spikers completed their regular season last Saturday with a three game victory over U.C. Irvine 15-5, 15-10 and 16-14.

The Mustangs finished with a 10-2 record in Southern California Athletic Association matches and a 29-8 overall mark.

"Words cannot express how proud I am of these girls," said Coach Mike Wilton. "We knew we must win and we had to play tough."

The Mustangs now hold the school record for the most wins for a Cal Poly volleyball team.

Cal Poly is ranked tenth in the nation and will be playing the top six teams in the nation at the regional tournament, said Wilton.

"We were an unranked team this year, and I think this shows the skill we have," he said.

As strategy goes for the playoffs, Wilton says, "We will play one game at a time."

Other matches in the regional playoffs will be top seated USC against eighth ranked Stanford, third seeded University of Hawaii against sixth seeded San Diego, and fourth ranked UCLA will play fifth seeded Santa Barbara.

Editor's note: Cal Poly is ranked above Stanford University in the Western Regionals but Stanford is ranked above the Mustangs in the Division I standings. Stanford is ranked No. 9 and the Mustangs are 10th despite having two wins over the Stanford Cardinals this season.

Five teams from the Western Regional will advance to the national tournament with the possibility of one at-large team receiving a bid.

Other matches in the regional playoffs will be: top seeded USC against eighth ranked Stanford, third seeded University of Hawaii against sixth seeded San Diego, and fourth ranked UCLA will play fifth seeded Santa Barbara.

Now comes Miller time.

Sacramento State had nothing to lose and luckily the Cal Poly Mustang football team did not either.

In the long run, the Cal Poly Mustangs could regret being on the short end of an upsetting 24-19 loss to the visiting Sac State Hornets.

On the other hand, the loss just might be the needed thing to shake up the Mustangs and put them back on solid ground before opening the first round of the Division II playoffs against visiting Jacksonville State.

The Bettmann Archive

Sacramento State came ready to play and it made its season with the win. The Hornets dominated the game with a controlled running game.

Cal Poly took a 10-7 lead into the half after Greg Speicher scored from one yard out and Tom Veszella connected on a 26-yard field goal.

Sac State scored three touchdowns in the second half to claim the triumph. Junior runningback John Farley scored two of the touchdowns.

One bright spot for the Mustangs was senior quarterback Craig Johnston. He completed 10-33 for 241 yards. Tim Hanifin was on the receiving end of five passes for 92 yards.

The Mustangs excelled through the middle weights as Chris Delong finished second at 134, Chris Cain finished third behind Barksdale at 142, Pat O'Donnell was runner-up to O'Donnell at 150, Craig Troxler was third at 158, Bill Ambler was fourth at 167 and Curt Wiedenhoefer placed second at 190.

The Bettmann Archive

543-9593
Carter naturally responded to Kennedy’s remark by resorting to Cold War lingo—"he questioned Kennedy’s patriotism.

But Kennedy’s remarks about the Shah were not out of character for the Massachusetts Democrat—Kennedy has always spoken his mind without worrying about political fallout or opinion polls. In May 1971 the Nixon Administration conducted a wholesale arrest of thousands of demonstrators and inconvenienced lookers in Washington, D.C., in what was the most massive official violation of civil rights since the occupation of Japanese-Americans during World War II. While other Democratic leaders disassociated themselves from the ‘lawless’ demonstrators, Kennedy gave total sympathy to a generation frustrated about an expanding war in Southeast Asia, a generation that was a product of Iran’s own lawlessness.

When Nixon threatened to defy a Supreme Court order to surrender the Watergate tapes, Kennedy alone took the floor of the Senate to declare that any country stands for anything, it stands for the principle that no man is above the law.

It was Kennedy who stood before a silent American Legion audience to call for full amnesty for war resisters who flouted the country. ‘If the war was wrong...then they were right,’ he said. Before an angry, egg-tossing crowd in Boston, it was Kennedy who told them to go home and obey the school bus law.

For over a decade, Kennedy has demonstrated courage far above any other Democratic leader. If his critics are ready to abandon their affinity for Carter-like ‘moderates’ who rely on rhetoric, images and hollow promises, they will find a leader in Edward Kennedy who’s name we punch on the ballot, but does not actually count for the man of place in a so-called democracy if a election.

As the hostage crisis became part of the American consciousness beginning in November 1979, it was Kennedy who stood alone for rationalism amid a sea of panic hysteria. While condemn ing the Iranian militants’ actions, Kennedy noted the Shah had formed ‘one of the most violent regimes in the history of mankind’ and had ‘stolen umpteen billion dollars’ from the Iranian people. Kennedy warned that America feared of a public considered invincible:

‘If you lose the war...the rest of the world will worry about political fallout or opinion polls. You’ve raised the consciousness of the stu dent body concerning local environmental issues; second, there’s proof that it is not difficult to write letters to government officials to let them know our concerns. Writing officials is one of our rights as citizens, and surprisingly few people take advantage of this opportunity. For those of you that did not have a chance to write to Secretary Andrus, there is still time to send him your thoughts concerning this issue. You should try to have your letter in to him by the middle of December. His address is: Secretary Cecil Andrus, Department of the Interior, Washington, D.C. 20240

By SYNDIA M.A. BARKATT

A few hours before the polls closed on the West Coast last Tuesday, President Carter had already made his contribution to democracy. With the news that he had declared the winner—by a landslide—this year’s presidential election.

It seems that there is something out of place in a so-called democracy if a winner can be declared—and by a landslide—at the expense of the electorate. We vote for president, our vote does not act as a mandate for the people who’s name we punch on the ballot, but does not actually count for the man of place in a so-called democracy if a election. It is time that a system set up two goals: first, that a major party is ready to abandon its affinity for Carter-like ‘moderates’ who rely on rhetoric, images and hollow promises, they will find a leader in Edward Kennedy who

Editor: I would like to take this opportunity to address all the students, faculty, and staff who write letters to support our fight against offshore oil drilling in the Santa Maria Basin. The 519 letters which were collected surely will gain the Secretary Andrus’ attention, which was the main goal of this letter-writing campaign. In addition, I believe we reached two other goals as well: first, I feel that we’ve raised the consciousness of the student body concerning local environmental issues; second, there’s proof that it is not difficult to write letters to government officials to let them know our concerns. Writing officials is one of our rights as citizens, and surprisingly few people take advantage of this opportunity. For those of you that did not have a chance to write to Secretary Andrus, there is still time to send him your thoughts concerning this issue. You should try to have your letter in to him by the middle of December. His address is: Secretary Cecil Andrus, Department of the Interior, Washington, D.C. 20240

The program is geared to serve senior citizens of the San Luis Obispo and sur rounding communities, and we are in dire need of a few volunteer students who might be able to devote a few hours per week in serving needy seniors of the community.

We have no money to pay the volunteers, but there is a great deal of satisfaction to be gained by serving in some capacity with our program. Assignments are made on a one-to-one basis with an opportunity for the volunteer to choose a type of work being done or the area in which service is to be performed.

Any student wishing to serve should give me a call at 544-2333.

BY MARK LAWLER

Cecil Rospaw
Editor
Andrew Jowers
Managing Editor
Tom Johnson
Editorial Assistant
Karen Houtsone
Editorial Assistant
Joe Shier
Copy Editor
Vern Anderson
Law
Julie Archer
Photography Major

Advertisement rates on request, 555-4144
Mustang Daily office, Graphic Arts Building, Room 205

State University of New York, Utica

California Polytechnic State University, San Luis Obispo

Page 8

BY CYNTHIA BARAKATT

Jan 18, 1980

The last votes have been tabulated, the races have been decided, and Campaign ’80 is over. The aftermath of this year’s election, however, has left one question unanswered: Will Senator Edward Kennedy become the leader of the Democratic party?

Unlike most of this year’s presidential candidates, Kennedy waged a respectful campaign based on rather than rhetoric; he remained loyal to his liberal convictions rather than make promises for political gain.

On the issue of the economy, Kennedy proposed clear answers while other candidates called for tax cuts and voodoo economics. Kennedy proposed to stop the nonsense of inflation cold by calling for an immediate freeze on wages, prices, profits, dividends, interest rates and rents.

To reduce the country’s dangerous dependence on foreign oil, the Massachusetts senator also called for gas rationing. He said it would be better to sacrifice a little gasoline than to shed American blood by defending OPEC pipelines. The other candidates all agreed, but they did not have the nerve to say so.

Circulation............. Julie Westover
Sports Editor............ Vern Ahrendes
Editor.................. Andrew Jowers
Typographies Mgr........ Dan Parkinson
Web Manager.............. Mike Tillsich
Advertising Manager...... Sara Kachadoorian
Printed on campus by University Graphics Systems
Typographers Mgr. Mike Tillsich

To those of you that did not have a chance to write to Secretary Andrus, there is still time to send him your thoughts concerning this issue. You should try to have your letter in to him by the middle of December. His address is: Secretary Cecil Andrus, Department of the Interior, Washington, D.C. 20240

Senior outreach volunteers needed

Editor: Our program is geared to serve senior citizens of the San Luis Obispo and surrounding communities, and we are in dire need of a few volunteer students who might be able to devote a few hours per week in serving needy seniors of the community.

We have no money to pay the volunteers, but there is a great deal of satisfaction to be gained by serving in some capacity with our program. Assignments are made on a one-to-one basis with an opportunity for the volunteer to choose a type of work being done or the area in which service is to be performed.

Any student wishing to serve should give me a call at 544-2333.