UPD honored for participation in NOAA weather program
The University Police Department has received the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration "Honored Institution Award" for 50 years of participation in the Weather Observation program. Historically, UPD took daily rainfall and temperature readings from the NOAA weather station located near Building 4 and forwarded monthly reports to NOAA and the National Weather Service. Approximately four years ago, UPD Officer John Edds integrated computer and wireless communication technologies to facilitate automated, real-time reporting of weather data. That data is accessible on the UPD Web site at www.police.calpoly.edu and is used by a variety of people and organizations.
