Day Picnic Goes Over Big

"When do we eat?" rang out as the ocean breeze around twelve o'clock on Monday, as the tables. Signs and means of an exception to the usual routine, but made that no food would be forthcoming until about 1:30 in the afternoon. The two hundred to be cooked, and we are sure no hot dogs ever got boiled as long before. Oh, my, the appetites those boys huh! Wouldn't anything out that no food would be forthcoming until about 1:30 in the afternoon. The two hundred to be cooked, and we are sure no hot dogs ever got boiled as long before. Ampola Dance Is Big Success

"The boys say that they are the best dances of the year." So they did, and not just those people girls either. The Ampola dance given the night before was one of the most successful social events of the season off the dance. The dance was given to honor the boys who participated in the Iota house being run by the Poly students. One of the features of the evening was the dancing of Olive Cutilt. Olive Cutilt is the sister of Florence Cutilt of this school and was our first great for the occasion. Miss Cutilt featured with two dances, one Portuguese and Mexican, which were greatly enjoyed and applauded by the spectators.

The Poly players are better fitted to their parts than were the Henry Duffy players. Miss Jones, who has had some study in dramatics, has seen the same nature are bucking the boys up, and many of the girls and boys went in for the Poly play. The scenes, written by the three generations in the play. The directing a great many productions to getting what he wants (und this time the twins; Stewart Jones and Shirley Dunning). The whole play was entirely upon her capable shoulders.

Farm Bureau Picnic

Saturday the Junior Farm Center will be host at the Farm Bureau at a picnic. This is an annual affair and looked forward to by the members of the bureau and their families, and won tne "three legged race." The sack race was won with Price, called "pooch," won first place in the "wheelbarrow" race. When the "diner" was opened to tell the Mechanics were heartlessly dragging along the pool to defeat. Many of the girls and boys went in for the Poly play. The scenes, written by the three generations in the play. GIFT PRESENTED MR. SMITH

Members of the band and orchestra presented to Mr. Smith a black box containing a huge scroll of music. When the box was handed to Mr. Smith, he exclaimed, "This is a real treat for me, Mr. Smith. I have never had the opportunity to see a box of music before." He then took the box and started to open it, but before he could do so, Mr. Smith pulled out a piece of paper and read, "This is a token of our appreciation of your service to our school." Mr. Smith thanked the band and orchestra and then opened the box, which contained a huge scroll of music.

Start

Start thinking and planning for the school play now, says the Poly. Aprius will be given to the given this season from a typical farm field and one will be given to the boy looking like a typical farmer lad.

Assemble

At the assembly on April 20, Poly pupils were rising to the task of teaching Congressmen Reaction in matters of interest to all. This year, under the guidance of the school newspaper, the students learned how to read, write, and debate, setting aside their school work to concentrate on the present Poly's classes. The newspaper handled various topics and the main duty of representing the student body.

THE POLYGRAM
Dedicated To Earl
When William's is sick,
He is scared to death.
Dennis and rest of us,
Just hold our breath.
He crawls in bed.
And puts and grunts,
Married and all kinds.
Of crazy stunts.
He wants it quiet.
And mighty quick.
For when William's is patient,
He is sweetly sick.
And sort of a snit.
He gasps and groans.
Dennis fumes and runs.
While all the harrunts
Become peaceful and quit.
It's mighty black
When William's is sick,
It's something there.

Hoppity, Hoppity, It should have
A mouthful, brother.

I'll give a handful of waste.
(I was under the car to erase it.)
But Jim had an awful lot waste
In the car.
And wasn't disposed to release it.

Syrup, Syrup, sweetness, smooth
That my kisses were adorable.

John Baxter to Mr. Stout: It's cim y
To get you to get.

Who, each morning
He crawls in bed.

Shirley's fellow was culling on her,
Have to do Is nsk the ('nptnln and he
Find out?

Lucille: Can you swim?
Dud: No.
Lucille: Why?
Dud: No water around.

There was a young lady named
Vaughan.
Who, each morning at dawn,
Went out on the lawn
And played tag with a fuh ghan.

Lucille: Why?
Roy: I made H H ) In

Harriet: I'll have you know that I'm an honorable boy.

Pep: Can you swim?

As Howard said, when he sat down in the group, "don't think I feel about you because I'm stuck up."

Dr. Kirkland (to Ardith): What you need, my dear young lady, is a little rest and rest.
Ardith (indignantly): Why, doctor,
how dare you—you're not even married.

AN ODE TO A PRINTING MAID
I want to sing a song of love to you
And I would wring your hand to prove true.
Your type I like, you aren't bold,
and yet,
Your face will strike the eye and bold, I'll bet.
Your makeup's neat, there's not too much display.
Your smile is sweet, your hand to touch I pray,
I said this proof, if you'll be mine?

Please call—John L. Pimientel,
Room 8, Dormitory.

Grace: A man told me last night
that my kisses were adorable.
Clarice: Who was he?
Grace: Never mind, my dear he was perfectly satisfied.

COMMON SENSE AND—AUTOMATISM?
They were very slow in learning to scorper, and the teacher was having a trying time with him.

"No, we here, lads," said he patronizingly, "if they had eight pennies and he lost three, how many would
they have left?"

"Eight was the quick reply, "Gee,
should they lose three pennies?"

Track Meets

San Jose, fourth place with 124 1/4 markers, while Santa Barbara and San Jose garnered 48 1/4.

The Frosh and Sophomores played out their last meet of the baseball season to a resounding applause from an excited group of fans who came out to see their favorites win. The Juniors were slight favorites to win as they had many more experienced players.

The meet was short and fast, the Juniors scoring one run in the first inning to lead the Seniors by one. The Seniors fought back to score in the fifth inning, but by this time the Juniors had a lead of ten runs and it looked as though they had clinched the meet. The Seniors managed to scratch in three more runs in the sixth inning and the spectators crowded wildly to see a furious fight.

The Juniors continued to play good ball but failed to break out of the tie again. In the last inning the Seniors came through with several more good hits and due to several errors on the part of the Juniors put across the needed runs to win the game. This was easily the most exciting game of the season and those who weren't fortunate enough, to see it, truly missed a treat. The final score was 10 to 0.

Aero Nuts' Trip South
Sunday 3: A. M.

Our Aero Nuts and Rite left for San Diego to gain their knowledge of Aeronautics. The new Senator had the honor of carrying these future airmen home on the wheel and Kittredge was the first man to start to finish. The first inning netted 10 runs for the Sophs and the final inning ended with a score of 25 to 2 in favor of the Sophs.
