Turkey Was King Of Dining Hall Thanksgiving

If you don't know the Turkey, you should. You'd better know the Turkey, you just shouldn't.

Upon the request of Mr. Thompson, late Friday night, a gala gale Thanksgiving dinner was held. A complete Thanksgiving dinner was served and a Turkey was given to each student. The Turkey was all that could be expected of a Turkey. It was large, juicy, and stuffed with all the usual Thanksgiving trimmings.

The bedding was all provided by the students, who were encouraged to bring their own beds. The Turkey was roasted on a spit, and the students were allowed to help themselves to the remains of the birds. The students were also given a turkey as a gift, which they were encouraged to keep as a keepsake.

The students were very appreciative of the favor and the Turkey was quickly devoured. The remaining Turkey was used for sandwiches and other snacks throughout the day. The students were very happy with the feast and the Turkey was a huge success.

This picture of Bob Irvin, Dan Waller, and Jim Bogert with their prize Shorthorn, Hersford, and Devon steers was one of those recently featured in the Christmas Livestock Show edition of the Western Journal. This is only a part of the important publicity which the school is getting in Southern publications through the part which the members of the Agricultural Department and the Band are taking in the Livestock Show. The publicity, in fact, will not be limited to California as stock exhibitors from throughout the state are to be represented at the show which is reputed to be on a par with the National Live Stock Show held each year at Chicago, Illinois.

The Mother Whoa* Child Had Gone

The committees, appointed by the Student Council, attended the assembly with musical selections both before and after the talk.

The Thief ....................... Dudley Soper

Redrafted Jackson and Bernard Caney, representing Poly-Y, attended the Older Boys' Conference at Cornell, on November 28-30. While at the Conference they went on a Navy tug to Point Loma where they witnessed some of the modern equipment of the Navy. The Poly-Y Conference is one of the oldest and best meeting grounds in the state. They attended five lectures. The group discussed the World War's Boy Brotherhood. There were did lectures at the Conference, consisting of topics ranging from international and national and from almost every phase of the war.

A torch-light procession was held on the beach. Each boy with a torch formed a circle about a central fire and sang patriotic songs. After the impressive ceremonies and speeches the group disbanded.

Mark Brown was very much pleased, though, to make the trip to Honolulu, and the impression of the school in his mind is lasting. He says, "I don't know just how to describe my first impressions of the school. I was rather disappointed because of the general confusion about, but I knew that it spread quickly, so I dropped the thought there. I was very much pleased, though, to find that I really could be one of the members of the school."

The students here have found it to be just the same as those in the mainland. There are some who are always cutting up and some who are more quiet and reserved. They all seem to be necessary to school life. They have all made a large improvement in their attitude, and I expect to make more time and succeed as in the mainland.
Assemblies

The assembly held Monday, October 24, was marked by a pleaseful atmosphere. Many people attended, and the meeting was well conducted. Mr. Albert Halley, an alumnus of the college, gave a talk on “The Importance of Mental Health”. The assembly concluded with a prayer led by Mr. Halley.

Rev. McIntyre Speaks

Rev. McIntyre of Kentucky spoke before the Poly-Y members, stressing the importance of maintaining a strong faith in God. As an example of the value of continued prayer, he reminded the audience of the miracle of the loaves and fishes. He encouraged all to put in their best efforts while they are running and to make no mention of the things hereafter.

Galley Slaves

Bruce Rose wanted to get off of the galley slave, for his grandmother was dying. He believed that if he remained in the ship, he would surely be injured in an accident. He was able to find a way off the ship and spend some time with his grandmother.

The early bird catches the worm,” Rosy Day exclaimed. If he does not think so, the early bird will surely be caught.

Rev. McIntyre spent the few days before the assembly talking with the boys. He spoke of the importance of being a good friend and of always keeping an open mind.

Flashboards & Short Circuits

The flashboards and short circuits were displayed for several weeks taking special attention. The board was designed to help students to get a position with an electrical company. The board was displayed through the summer in Los Angeles as a relief for the industrial depression.

League of Nations

Stilltypian was busily engaged surveying a tract of land in the city of Morro. After a hurried consultation, she made an appointment for the next day at the League of Nations as the Guarantee of the Efforts. The League of Nations is going to be well illustrated during the week.

Further information may be obtained from Dr. Albert Einstein, the noted German physicist. He expressed himself very well, saying that one must have faith in God.

A Scotch golfer recently resumed playing golf after a coughing spell after indulging in a two weeks’ vacation at home.

The magazine also carries a large picture of the League of Nations Association. The traffic on the river is at times, perhaps, more congested than it has been before and the rick-sha coolies gather round. The fare by sampan is quite a cost. The regular fare is thirty dollars, but this number of one of our large universities is the equivalent to about eight dollars.

Meanwhile the United States is giving holidays, presented a number of one for the purpose of discussing as to whether one college is actually the victor or has gained the best of the past year.

Participation. We are already beaming with delight because of the opportunities if any person is willing to take them.

We are sending three carloads of mixed stock composed of grapes, wine, and sheep to the Los Angeles Stock Show this week.

This shipment will represent the best stock of our herd, and we are confident that the stock, and also the boys who own the stock will bring high prices to the school as a result of their participation. We are already abounding with delight because of the fact that we are represented in the winning herd of the National Stock Show held in St. Louis, and we hope that it will be our pleasure to win further honors in the Los Angeles Stock Show.

In addition to our entries, we are sending the Band down as an added attraction, and we think the stock has performed admirably, and it will give them further opportunity to show their ability, and help to make a name for the school besides the splendid trip it affords them for their pleasure.

Schedules

Now that we are pleased with our first fall meeting, there has of course been a schedule of plays to decide the winner. It seems rather strange, but in making out schedules in any school, college or division of colleges, the point is always raised as to when the winner shall be declared. There are various ways of determining the winner, and each has its good points and bad points. If schedules could be made perfect, one would never need to read the sports section, but discussions as to whether the actual winner has been won or won by some fallacy in the schedule. Even in our Western conference with the schedule thay use, there happens at odd times a certain winning wire and it is good that brings the point of the schedule.

This is what happened in our football schedule. There was a great deal of question about the schedule. Everyone at the meeting had the privilege to make any changes they wished, but not a sound was uttered.

We only hope that those who disapproved of the football schedule after the games were over will see that the basketball schedule is without fault and that it pleased everyone—which is not possible.

QUALITY COUNTS

The time has come when every man cannot make himself supeior to over common classes of people. This world is filled with many opportunities if any person is willing to take them.

One must have self-confidence and will-power to undertake any risk of his fortune. For instance, Abraham Lincoln was a young part of one of his large universities to require students to pay a fee of one dollar. The motive is obvious. Too many students do not take their studies seriously because they do not think of it in terms of dollars, they think of it as a means of getting a good job through hard work and they have a tangible reason for not letting their studies lapse. Undoubtedly the plan would decrease the number of students who regularly fall in one or more courses.—The Daily North Western.

ONE FLUNK, TWENTY-FIVE DOLLARS

Grapevine telegraph brings news of the point on the part of one of our large universities to require students to pay a fee of twenty-five dollars for each course in which they flunk. Whether this proposal embodies a good idea or not, it is certain that it represents a reasonable proposal.

To show Poly friends the courses of events "the way they are going," a young man in his service, the writer of this series of excerpts from his letters, will make the rounds through the following.

Schoefield Barracks.

Our morning hours here in Schoefield Barracks are very full. And to practice and study in the Howlett Hospital room is a delight in itself.

In the afternoon I "work out" with the Major, under Major Meade's track coach for the 21st Infantry, held a regimental track meet, and ran a few "hustle" miles. The Major gave us an opinion of the track team, and caught me at ages rapidly in the last half mile. I past the Major and never saw him again, as I have the past few hours and one minute was the time I had taken to do the thing. The cross uniform consists of brass buttons in each corner of the letter "P." The day before yesterday, the 50,000 soldiers of the heavy writing O. It's that kind of feeling when you don't get the same day of the same make-up as the Poly uniforms, only that we wear them on a daily basis with the same" of the poly soldier.

As a result of the campaign, there are now large, roomy and well ventilated barracks, and in general, it is necessary to keep them cool and comfortable. The Poly barracks are given to drill and to give an idea of the army units:

1. Battalion consist of 4 companies, commanded by a lieutenant.
2. Regiment consists of 3 battalions, commanded by a colonel.
3. Brigade consists of 2 regiments, commanded by a brigadier-general/or general.
4. Division consists of 2 brigades, commanded by a major-general.
5. Corps consists of 3 divisions, commanded by a major-general.
6. Army consists of 2 corps, commanded by a lieutenant general.

The above shows that a regiment is composed of 4 battalions, each battalion is composed of 4 companies, each company is composed of 4 platoons, each platoon is commanded by a captain.
