SPECIAL SENIOR CLASS EDITION

Seniors of 1931 Who Bid Farewell To Their Alma Mater Tonight

BY WILLIAM WHITE

This Wednesday night will witness the graduation of "The Class of '31." We have spent a profitable four years here at Poly and many of us will leave with a tinge of sorrow. Our stay has been a most happy one.

We have seen many changes come over the campus during our stay. We used to enjoy dancing down at the "Aud." The football players used the Deus Dorn basement as a locker-room. Now we have the wonderful Cran- dall Gym. Heron Hall, Jay-Cee Dorm, the new Electri- Lab, additions to the cafeteria, Dairy Barn, and Aero Shop have all been built while we have been here. We have seen the ground broken for a new dorm.

"The Class of '31" has the distinction of being the first class at Poly to graduate with our names on them. Even though the girls were missed a little in the spirit, the fellows still have that "Poly spirit" for which the school is noted.

It is the hope of the Class of '31 that the freshmen of this year will see as many im- provements during their four-year stay as we have. We hope that they carry on in the work we have started and do all that is in their power to make Poly "bigger and better."

In the past the co-operation between the faculty and students has been very good. We hope that in the future this co-operation and friendship becomes even closer and that the student body becomes more united. This will mean a vastly improved spirit and better programs especially in athletics and student activities.

The growth of the Junior College has been great. The Junior College has progressed wonderfully. Some of us may return next year and enroll in the campus of the Junior Col- lege which was organized during our first year here.

In closing, we hope that the students in Poly will benefit and take advantage of the many things Poly has to offer. We hope that they will get as much good out of Poly as we have and that they will meet with success as we hope to do.
Juniors, Take Notice

Perhaps one of the most vital things which the California Polytechnic needs for the promotion of Spirit is an inter-class competition. By the actions and conduct of the members of the different classes towards one another it is rather hard to distinguish a high school freshman from a senior or a junior college man. A Freshman may speak as if he were on the verge of being qualified, punctuating his speech with as many discouragements as he may feel to be necessary. There are very few schools where such thorough disregard of seniority is practiced. It is also true that "Freshman" is illegal, but surely there is some manner by which a little class distinction may be acquired.

The summer fun in attending a boarding school lies in returning to your Alma Mater as a Sophomore and in watching the Freshman stumble up the stairs loaded down with baggage. At least you must say that a Freshman adjusts himself to a new class, better than a Freshman

The Senior class is going to leave several memorials which are to be wished the Junior class. It is the hope of the class of '31 that the Juniors make the most of them and start the next year right by proclaiming their supremacy over the other three divisions of the High School and maintaining it.

Tims to Decide

There comes a time in the life of every young man when he asks himself that fatal question, "What career am I to pursue for my life's undertaking?" This same question has proved to be more mental unrest in the minds of the students of America than any other.

The graduating student of yesterday was not confronted by this problem, for, of late the student was only required to choose a subject which went with it. After the place was determined, the student could choose the school in which to study this subject. The school in which to study was determined by the state or by the state. The state in which to study was determined by the state or by the state. The state in which to study was determined by the state or by the state.

The decision of the future student is a great deal to accomplish. It was the beginning to the end. There has been a great deal of progress in the modern field of agriculture, and the advances in this field are not likely to cease. Therefore we appeal to the student body as a whole to give their cooperation in making Dorm News meet their demands.

Poly Phase Club

With Loren Ford as president; Erwin H. Preble as business manager; Preble, secretary-treasurer; and Horace Pierce as editor, the Poly Phase Club looks forward to another successful year. Now that the school is getting to be a real business institution, the work which the Club has accomplished during the present year, and the opportunity which the Club will have for work in the future years, will be much appreciated.

The Poly Phase Club has been cutting down on their expenses and with an increased membership it is to be hoped that this year will be a success for the Club.
