Individualism Combined
With Social Tolerance
Predicated for Decade

Cooperative individualism has made America great in the past, and a rebirth of that spirit represents the challenge of the decade. The "Fortunate Forties," Dr. Walter P. Dexter, state director of education, told 125 school teachers of San Luis Obispo and Santa Barbara counties last week.

Dr. Dexter spoke to a joint dinner meeting of the School Masters Club and the Retired Teachers Club at the Montana View Hotel in San Luis Obispo.

"In the 1940's," he said, "we need to build a climate in which the individual can express his purpose and achieve his desires.

"It is time for us to have a spirit of cooperation, of willingness to work together."
