Save Polly the Polar Bear: Energy Competition Under Way Through March 6

A displaced polar bear has been spotted running loose on the Cal Poly campus, trying to find her way home. Because of rising global temperatures, the arctic ice is melting at an alarming rate and forcing the polar bear to travel farther south in search of food. The bear's mission is to encourage humans to reduce their energy and water consumption in order to preserve her habitat and help her return to her hungry cubs. I think we should do everything we can to help her. Last year, Cal Poly used 42 million kilowatt-hours of electricity at a cost of $4.2 million. The student-led PowerSave Green Campus Program on Facebook is partnering with Polly the Polar Bear on a mission to reduce Cal Poly's energy and water use with an energy competition in-store.
