buildings, working in areas
To be put in their place are Francesca Annex, Mariposa Annex,
Dorm 6, Palomar.

New permanent dorms have been named after cities of Caliifornia's famous mountains. Dorms and their new names are:
Dorm 1, Shasta; Dorm 2, Lassen; Dorm B, Drive 4, Whitney; and Dorm B, Polk.

Names for temporary dorms have played important roles in early California history. Mariposa, Marinwood, Marinette, Mariner Annex, Cathedral City, Cottage, Tu-499 Buffalo Annex, Sierra, San Diego, Catalina, Plumas, Catalina Annex, Monterey, Coronado, El Dorado, and Coronado Annex, Monterey.

To be put in their places are dorms named in many ways by the first six letters of the alphabet, from a city to a mountain

Andy, My Ag Teacher

I guess I liked Andy from the first time I saw him. Round-ruddy-faced, thin-aandy-halred, scrupulously clean, he hop by digging out an unexcavated part under the high school. He equipped it by renovating old tools donated by agricultural folk of our community. With horrowed tools and confident to half a hundred boys, Be­ mayoral of the town, veterinarian, secre­

Poly Journalists Prepare For Lucrative Fields

Some of Cal Poly’s most unusual human specimens will be found in the agricultural journalism department in the basement of the administration building. The department consists of those who cover California’s agricultural businesses and organizations. For agricultural firms and organizations, the department is an invaluable resource.

Only two years old, the department is preoccupied with the growth of students preparing for specialized agribusiness careers. It is run by three people: the chairman, the dean, and the agricultural furnishing editor.

Working Already

Already, several of the majors, working on the Cal Poly news bureau as freelance writers, have had their bylines appear frequently and are accustomed to receiving recognition to Cal Poly and San Jose State. Their by-lines are frequently used in the college’s publications, and they are accustomed to working on the Cal Poly news bureau as assistants to public relations and agricultural relations.

Polys Beamng Transmitter
Links Local Hams With Globe

Scattered over the globe are more than 185,000 amateur radio operators and 90,000 of these are in the United States. Of these, 60 belong to the Poly Amateur Ham Club. Perhaps you've seen those two sets of four long horizontal poles sticking out of Poly's ES building and wondered just what they were. They're the directional transmitting antennas of the general transmitters of station W6BHZ, the DX station of communications in Redlands, Calif. You may have noticed the antenna of station W6BHZ's was pointed toward Poly. In fact, Poly's W6BHZ antenna was pointed toward Poly. It was pointed this way on a conversation with one of the fellows in his last year radio class, telling him of the annual spring tour, new officers of the club, and some of the changes in campus life. The purpose of this program is to establish links between Poly and the various radio clubs and agencies in emergency civilian defense.

Indonesians Begin 'Operation Rice'

Fifteen Indonesian agriculture students and seven faculty members who are training in USAF Agricultural College, Params, near Madrid, to be returned to their own country's leading producer-rice. Param is the capital of the highlands of Sumatra, and is the scene of the world's greatest rice production.

Members will coordinate the program to see that application is applied to the cultivation of rice. The purpose of this program is to establish links between Poly and the various radio clubs and agencies in emergency civilian defense.
