Colts Fall In 45-0 Smothering At Hands Of Santa Maria JC Eleven

The Colts played their last game of the season Armistice day at Santa Maria and took a smothering 45 to 0 defeat at the hands of an alert Santa Maria Junior college eleven.

Most of the scoring was done through aerial attack and a failing pass defense by the Colts.

Injuries hampered the Colts considerably.

Two key tackles, one guard and one fullback, all first string men, did not play, and center Schiffrin was injured during the game. This left the Colts too weak and the

A Personal Note

With this issue I close my editorship of El Mustang. I have been El Mustang's editor continuously since Dec. 8 of last year and am tired. The new editor, Phil Keyser, is a capable individual. His writing is polished. His phrasing and form of expression are almost flawless. His judgment and perception are keen. The only regret in leaving El Mustang with Keyser, yet it is with regret and perhaps a muffled dry sob that I leave. His phrasing and form of expression are
A Personal Note

The night before examinations always assay ponies by the thousand being prepared by countless students. False fingernails with the desired answers on them are especially popular this quarter. A few students will attempt to put the whole history of the Napoleonic Wars on the slide of their saddle shoes. Some students write on the lenses of their glasses, which is perfectly harmless except the eye tend to stray toward the nose voluntarily at any time.

However, the most ingenious method of avoiding the necessity of studying for finals was reached by a student who went to a carnival recently. This student had the answers to his finals engraved on the buttons of his shirt by one of these carnival artists who engrave Hamilie's bulliony on the head of a pin.

A special study kit has been invented by a Poly student who recently graduated after eight years of intense study. The student takes the kit with him to exam and during the course of the test, fogma illnesses. Quickly he opens the kit, takes out a white powder and applies generously. Of course, it has a medicinal taste and no one can guess it. The impression of being extremely ill, and immediately the teacher gives the hopeless student permission to eat a sandwich.

The sandwich is no ordinary food staple. Instead of lettuce this sandwich has the complete answers to the exam written on it. The student smiles, for he is deciphering the answers to the exam and tossing them in the air and eating them. He always has the right answer, for he eats the passes to the course a few days before the exam. The kit contains all the answers to the course he's taking, including past examinations.

Also going in popularity is the less practical rushes of throwing tear gas bombs at the examiners. This is very disturbing to them for several precious moments.

We've all been keeping our eyes on the process of the construction of our new library. We want it to look as long as possible, windows, etc., are all falling into place.

Tuberculosis, number one cause of death in the United States in 1904 when the National Tuberculosis association was founded, the disease has since been forced down to second place. But it still remains a threat, I swear continued secrecy and offer more thanks. To El Mustang's staff and it's readers, I say, "So long kids, it's been swell time beating my foot off Dancing is more fun, it's a grand opportunity to aid in stamping out tuberculosis."

More Cops

Johnny Eaton, motocyclist, suffered a fractured leg last Friday. Heading toward camp, he was suddenly forced off the road and into a barbed wire fence. An unidentified automobile was the cause of the accident. The car rounded a blind corner on the north-west section of Mount Bishop road and Eaton used to be told my spellbinding for the past year. I still regard the position as the best job at California State University, possibly lenient with assignment dates, I swear continued good graces of my instructors. Among people from 16 to 44 years of age, there are signs of TB in its earliest stages and will, in this way, help contain the tuberculosis, number one cause of death in the United States in 1904 when the National Tuberculosis association was founded, the disease has since been forced down to second place. Conquered Germany
Really Needs Men

The female situation in the British zone of Germany seems to be in inverse ratio to Potsdam's present set-up. There is an average one and one fifth woman for every man. At this rate, approximately 3 million married German women are unable to ensue in the current state of affairs. The hope of every man is to be married.

A British official report stated, "At no time since the beginning of the Thirty Years' War has there been such a disproportion between the male and female population of a community as exists here today. It is evident that these British statisticians have never heard of Ban Lulu Obloepo."

Polygamy was widely practiced following the 30 years of hostilities. In a recent poll exploring the possibility of polygamy being practiced again, over 600 people were questioned. In Hamburg and in the neighboring Schleswig-Holstein district, thirteen percent of those questioned in the two districts said that they expected polygamy to spread, but the greater majority disapproved of it. Only a small group of people stated they would not mind it.

When husbands and wives were questioned separately it was found that more people favored irregular sexual unions. Nearly 30 percent of the German people questioned said they saw no moral reason against free love for the unmarried.

This information was taken from an A.P. release which appeared in last Monday's Los Angeles Times.
