Dr. Kirby Page Will Speak Before Students

Dr. Kirby Page, author and lecturer, will speak on "Can Military Weapons Defend Us?" at 11 a.m. tomorrow. The junior body assembly Wednesday, January 12, Page is the author of nineteen volumes on international, economic, social and religious questions. His works have been translated into ten different languages, and more than fifteen copies of his books and pamphlets have been sold. Dr. Page has spoken at over 400 colleges and universities in the United States. This is his first visit to California State Polytechnic College.

State Veterinarians Meet Next Week At Poly Campus

Leading veterinarians of the United States, including Dr. Otto Harwood, chairman and vice-chairman of the American Veterinary Medical Association, will meet next week at Poly to discuss the "Problems of the Veterinary Profession." Among those scheduled to attend will be Dr. Worden, chairman of the Department of Veterinary Science of the University of California, and Dr. E. A. Steiner, according to an announcement made by the AVMA, president of the AVMA and head of the Department of Veterinary Science. The purpose of the conference is to improve the practice of the veterinary profession.

Radar Search Tower Begins Operation At Campus Airstrip

A new tower, which has recently been installed at Cal Poly's airstrip, is to be used by the United States Air Force. The electronic department is preparing for future operations.

The tower is a part of a complete medium wave radio tower which was a gift to Cal Poly by the Piedmont Air Force. The electronic department has designed and manufactured the experimental license for this station, to whose technical detail the tower is assigned.

The tower was first assembled in the factory and then lifted, using a crane, over the tower. The base was completed by the electronic department and the tower was assembled by E. A. Steiner, chairman and vice-chairman of the Department of Veterinary Science. The tower is to be used for the study of the electronic characteristics of the medium range radio tower.

Vets Switching To State Plan Contact SDVA

Veterans at Cal Poly are planning to take advantage of State veterans' service department. A number of veterans in the coming semester are looking into the service department, which seeks to provide the veterans service office, to consult veterans without delay.

Veterans near the end of the Federal GI Bills may be able to continue their education through the state's Veterans Educational Incentives program. Under this program, the veterans can, if their Federal GI Bill payments have expired, receive funds through the state for their educational expenses.

Under this plan, veterans may qualify for State payments of $98.00 per month free, plus a subsistence allowance of $3.50 per month. A total maximum expenditure of $1,000 per veteran is allowed.

To be eligible, a veteran must have a degree, and he must be a resident of the state of California. The State Board of Veterans Affairs encourages veterans to use all their Federal entitlement first, then to use their State entitlement.

Len Walne, a veteran who attended Cal Poly, states that the State Board of Veterans Affairs has been helpful in providing veterans with information on their educational options.

The State Board of Veterans Affairs has been working closely with Cal Poly to provide veterans with the resources they need to continue their education.

An exciting trip hitch-hiking their way home during the holidays was provided "by tho Majors and the Student Veterans Association. A number of veterans were able to travel home during the holidays, and many veteran students were able to attend the vets' banquet.

The banquet was held at the Major's house, and the attendees were provided with a meal and an opportunity to socialize with fellow veterans.

The banquet was a great success, and many veterans were able to meet and connect with other veterans during the event.

The banquet was sponsored by the Student Veterans Association, and the Majors provided the food and the facilities for the event.

The banquet was a great opportunity for veterans to meet and connect with other veterans during the holidays.
A Resident?

A recent statistical release from the registrar's office shows that there are now 2,486 students enrolled at the SLO branch of California Polytechnic. This figure represents a considerable gain over the school's pre-war population, which, we understand, numbered around or below the 500 mark. Any school whose student body has increased at such a clip is bound to be conflict ridden, and the old and the new. Facilities once quite ample are now outmoded jowls. Now construction is apoponant about us, the contrac­

This Language of Ours

Dear Editor:

One of the reasons for so many of the quarrels and petty bickerings we find about us are the misunderstandings caused by the foreign language, English.

I was riding up from town on the bus the other day and two school children were discussing their fast disappearing gum drops.

"What you got left?"

"Two blacks and a white."

I heard it vaguely and dismissed it from my mind until about five minutes later a woman across the aisle inquired of her husband, as he read the evening paper:

"What do the defendants in the trial, Jim?"

I was repeated the phrase. When I got off the bus I stopped for a cup of coffee. As I approached a booth, I heard someone call up to the man behind the counter:

"What you got left?"

Among his concerns was the need for a resident physician who had a high mark in his studies. He would be more likely to be a very busy man.

The swinging door type westernsaloon as depicted in the Holly­wood movies never seems to laugh. Like all pictures amusing to us, it is a result of a filtered period of American history when allow­ances were made for none of it.

The president of the movie version of this bit of Americana has no need to smile. The camera pushes itself through the proverbial swinging door and materializes the movie audience with a general view of the bar­room audience who are drinking and talking.

The atmosphere is heavy with the blend of sweat and cigar­smoke. Women in gray­colored attire sit at the bar with their elbows on the counter, completely oblivious of the festivities, as a polka­dotted faceless piano player wearing a gray suit seems to dominate the corner.

Drinks are on the house. As if nothing had happened, the camera moves over to the bar where weatherbeaten sour­faced piano player nervously begins to pound out a tinny rendition of "Just a Girl That Men Forget," which according to Holly­field, would be attributed to the cooperation of many.
