An article about California State Polytechnic University appeared in the Christian Science Monitor, early this spring, has brought an interesting development in the International Students Relations Bureau. Only business is a bureau interested in sending his son to the United States to study engineering.

The article was written by Mrs. Brijita Prasad, an All-India Council for Overseas Education, in her capacity as the president of the Students' Union of the University of Delhi. She stated that she had been studying the problem of sending Indian students to the United States for several years, and that she was encouraged by the fact that the United States was willing to accept Indian students on a small scale.

The article was published in the Christian Science Monitor on March 10, and it was widely circulated in India. It was even reprinted in the Indian Express, a leading newspaper in India.

The article stated that the United States was willing to accept Indian students on a small scale, and that there was a need for more students to come to the United States to study. The article also stated that the United States was willing to accept students from other countries as well.

The article was widely welcomed by Indian students, and it was widely praised by Indian educational institutions. The article was even reprinted in the Indian Express, a leading newspaper in India.
