Dear Editor:
Your lead story in the July 22 edition of Cal Poly Report was entitled "Study finds promise in research park idea." Hogwash. I was at the Bechdel Corp. "pre-feasibility" study. The assessment pointed to as many negatives as positives in moving forward with a Research Park.
My concern at this stage is mainly procedural. The "pre-feasibility" stage is now moving into its second year. At the July 16 meeting it was made clear that decisions had far have involved three and only three groups: Cal Poly administrators, downtown business representatives, and local government officials.
Although the study calls for the location of such a park to be "as near to the campus core as possible," neither citizens from neighborhoods near the university nor environmental groups have been invited to any of the meetings thus far. This duplicates the very scenario regarding the Cal Poly Sports Complex when both groups were kept in the dark in the early discussion stages.
The first opportunity for public comment will be Tuesday, Aug. 11, from 5 to 7 pm. The location has not been announced.
Opening remarks will have been the modus operandi for Cal Poly. A change in policy would be welcome.

Richard Kronzard
Political Science Department

Opinions, comments welcome

Allen Haile, director of Cal Poly's Community and Government Relations office, urges concerned campus and community members to participate in a discussion of the research park study conclusions at the Aug. 11 meeting. The Central Coast American Research Park feasibility Study Workshop will meet from 5 to 7 pm in the San Luis Obispo City County Library's Community Room.
"The research park task force is in the process of forming a non-profit organization with a board of directors," Haile said. Once formed, the board will determine the next steps in the effort.
"The input of the community will be very important in determining this direction," Haile said.
For more information on the workshop call Haile at ext. 6-7664.

Publica­tion is extended on two issues during Fall Conference week. One on Monday, Sept. 14, and another on Wednesday, Sept. 16. Articles for Monday's edition are due in the Communications Office by 10 am Tuesday, Sept. 8. Copy for Wednesday’s issue should be received by 10 am Thursday, Sept. 10. Updating career fliers?

If your department needs to update its career flyer, the Communications Office can help by preparing the camera-ready copy for printing. Substantive changes to the flier should be submitted as a Word document on either an IBM or Mac disk, along with a marked-up copy of the flyer showing the changes. If minor corrections are needed, a marked-up copy of the flyer is sufficient if the Communications Office has a previous digital file. Because the Communications Office's graphic specialist position has been reduced to half-time, we need a minimum of one week—preferably two—to complete the work. For details, call ext. 6-1511.
