Editorial

Thanks mainly to the generosity of a subscriber, this issue of BTS has been professionally typeset. We think you will agree that the journal is now handsome indeed, as well as easier to read. The professionally achieved format has allowed the inclusion of substantially more text in each issue.

We began 1988 resolved to publish 80 pages each time out. Even had we not had such intention, the subscription rate would have been raised to its present $15.00 annually. As we look ahead to what seems most feasible for BTS, it appears that the better part of wisdom will be to settle in at 60 pages in each issue. With the text professionally set as in the current issue, the material that can be included in each issue will still be considerably greater than in our standard 52 pages of past years.

Due to the press of his work directing, as President, the Humane Society of the United States, Mr. John A. Hoyt's autobiography will not be appearing in BTS this year. We hope that it can appear at a later date.
