Draft Master Plan to be reviewed

A preliminary draft of Cal Poly's new Master Plan will be available May 1 for campus and community review.

The draft plan, designed to balance land uses and enrollments for at least the next 20 years, is the result of two years of deliberation among key campus groups, campuses and community task forces, and planning officers.

Review of the initial document will take place throughout spring quarter, and it will be refined and reviewed again next fall and winter. The final Master Plan will be presented to the CSU Board of Trustees for approval in spring 2001, Cal Poly's 100th birthday.

"The Master Plan will be designed to meet new emerging needs of the academic community," said Linda D'Allesio, vice president for institutional planning, who is leading the effort. "Campus administrators have identified areas for program growth so the Master Plan can include appropriate buildings, laboratories and technology to meet these needs."

This plan is designed to accommodate, over the next 20 years, enrollment growth within the academic year of about 17 percent over present capacity. In addition, the continuation page 4.

Open forums set for three job candidates

Two candidates for the position of dean of extended studies and one for the position of dean of business will be on campus for interviews April 6.

Open forums are planned to give the campus community an opportunity to meet the candidates and hear a short presentation.

• Janet K. Williams, who serves as administrative assistant to the University President and is on call for her position.
Applicants sought for pre-doctoral program

April 13 is the deadline for the CSU's 2000-2001 California Pre-Doctoral Program, designed to increase the diversity of CSU students who will continue their studies at the doctoral level and become eligible for teaching positions.

A special emphasis will be placed on increasing the number of CSU students enrolled in undergraduate programs at UC campuses.

To be eligible, upper-division or master's-degree candidates must be enrolled at a CSU institution as of spring 2000 and at least one term in 2000-2001.

Each of the 16 scholars will work closely with a CSU faculty sponsor to develop a plan that leads to enrollment in a graduate school. The plan will be tailored to the student's specific goals and career objectives.

The program provides:

- Travel funds for students and faculty sponsors to visit UC campuses.
- Student stipends and faculty stipends.
- Travel to two national conferences.
- Six-month stipends to complete the plan.
- Health and dental insurance.
- A two-year membership in the California Pre-Doctoral Program.
- A personal professional development seminar.

Artistic-in-residence to give piano recital

Louis Goldstein, professor of music at Wittenstein University, will present a recital as part of his artistic-in-residency for the Music Department at 7:30 p.m. April 18 in Room 218 in the Davidson Music Center.

Goldstein will perform John Cage's " prepared piano," which requires placing diverse objects between the strings of a grand piano to create an effective percussionist orchestra under the control of two-hands. Goldstein's considerable recording of the Sonatas and Interludes was ranked in the "10 Best of '96: Classical Albums" by Spectator magazine.

Goldstein has been a member of the Wittenstein University faculty since 1979. He has performed widely as a pianist soloist in the United States, most notably at the Hollywood Bowl, Orchestra Hall in Chicago, and Carnegie Music Hall in New York City.

This recital is sponsored by the Cal Poly College of Liberal Arts and Music Department. For more information call the Music Department at ext. 6-2982 to reserve a spot.

Artistic-in-residence to speak, play April 26

Piano and Cal Poly artistic-in-residence Justin Kolb will talk about surviving the music business and will give an evening recital on April 26. Kolb will present "Know the Score: Inspiration and Motivation for Surviving in the Business of Music" at 11:40 a.m. in Room 216 in the Davidson Music Center.

At 7:30 p.m., he will perform a piano recital featuring works by Chopin, Copland and Liszt in Room 218 in the Davidson Music Center. Kolb, an active piano performer in the United States and abroad, is a graduate of DePaul University, from which he received the 1994 Distinquished Alumni Award. A frequent performer at the International Liszt Festival in Hamilton, Ontario, he has also played in Germany, Great Britain, Luxembourg and Spain. He has appeared with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra and the U.S. Military Concert Band at West Point.

The lecture and recital are made possible with funds from the Cal Poly Plan. The College of Liberal Arts and the Music Department are also sponsoring the events.

For more information call the Music Department at ext. 6-2486 or visit the department's Web page at www.calpoly.edu/music.

Nominations sought for scholarship, awards

Student Affairs would like to remind the faculty and staff that the deadlines for one scholarship and two awards are due April 12.

Inquiries should be directed to Polly Harrington in Student Affairs at ext. 6-1421.

- Courtney Elizabeth Smyth Scholarship — Faculty and staff members are encouraged to submit letters of nomination for the Courtney Elizabeth Smyth Scholarship. The scholarship committee is seeking " unusual students who have overcome personal tragedies, adversity or hardship, suggesting an inner strength and resilience to hasten academic progress.

- The Quest for the Best Award and the Merrill MaGee Innovative Service Award — Employees are asked to encourage students to apply for these two leadership awards. Application are available in Adm. 209. The recipient of the Land award receives $1,000 per year. The Quest for the Best recipient receives recognition and $200.

For more information call the Music Department at ext. 6-2986 or visit the department's Web page at www.calpoly.edu/music.
Learn-at-Lunch series to continue Tuesday

The Education and Careers Program is continuing its Learn-at-Lunch series of talks from noon to 1 p.m. Tuesdays beginning May 2 with "Mindfulness-Based Stress Reduction" by Mark Schechter, a "mindfulness" practitioner at Mindfulness in Action.

Other presentations include:
- April 25: "Back Basics — Maintaining Healthy Backs by Exercise" by Nanci Slocum, an exercise physiologist, personal trainer and group exercise instructor.
- May 9: "Managing Burnout" by Ken Martin, a doctoral intern with the Employee Assistance Program and Counseling Services.

Sessions are open to employees and their family members. Attendees are welcome to bring or buy lunch. For more information, call the Employee Assistance Program at ext. 6-0327.

Statistics consults on research, data analysis

The Statistics Department provides a consulting service to help with research design and analysis. The service is intended to support faculty and staff projects and research, as well as students pursuing work with a minor or senior project and graduate research. Heather Smith, the main consultant on campus, is available to consult on collection, experimental design, and analysis of research projects. She is also available to lead seminars on required topics and advise on computer packages available at Cal Poly. She is available to help other special areas concerning statistical information to interested departments, group or individual.

Walk-in Consulting Hours:
- Monday and Wednesday, 4:15-5:15 p.m.
- Tuesday, 5:45-6:15 p.m.

Office Hours for Students
- Monday, Wednesday, Friday, 3:15-4:15 p.m.
- Tuesday and Thursday, 4:15-5:15 p.m.

Appointment can be scheduled by calling during walk-in or consulting hours or during office hours for students.

Sixteen students selected as Poly Reps

Sixteen students have been selected as Poly Reps and will help promote Poly to prospective students, alumni and friends of the university for the 2000-2001 academic year.

They and 55 continuing members will canvass campuses and visit high schools and community colleges.

In addition, the students work to develop alumni ties and help with university outreach programs and with efforts to encourage support from potential donors to the university.

The Poly Reps are sponsored by the Admissions and Alumni Relations departments and the Student Affairs division.

Eligible students complete an extensive application with essays, are screened for academic qualifications, and are interviewed twice by the staff members of the sponsoring offices and current members of Poly Reps.

Additional students chosen as alternates in the event any of the Poly Reps are unable to serve are Amber Sinios, junior, mathematics; Keith DeMaris, junior, business administration; and Cynthia Neff, sophomore, journalism.

Cal Poly to establish 'community orchard'

A new "community orchard" is planned on a 10-acre tract to help the public learn about growing a variety of fruit trees.

A planting ceremony is set for 2 p.m. Saturday (April 8) across the street from the Crops Unit, just west of Sisler Creek. After a short planting demonstration, community members will be invited to plant a tree. Approximately 50 deciduous fruit trees will be planted, under the supervision of Crop Science Professor Robert Neel.

Created by the College of Agriculture and the Central Coast Chapter of the California Rare Fruit Growers (CRFG), the orchard will also be used by Cal Poly agriculture students. Many of the fruit trees are not commercially grown on campus or in nearby orchards, according to Joe Sabol, director of outreach services for the College of Agriculture.

The fruit trees were donated by Dave Wilson, retired San Luis Obispo County fair director. The donation and orchard is on the northeast corner of the new lemon tree orchard located at the corner of Highland Drive and Santa Rosa streets. Parking is available on Highland at the Crops Unit.

For more information, call Sabol at ext. 6-7225.

Managing pest focuses of lecture series

The Crop Science Department is bringing in experts to discuss "Pest Management in Coastal Wine Grapes" for a spring quarter seminar series open to growers, licensed pest control applicators (PCA), and anyone else interested.

The lectures will be 3:15-6:15 p.m. Thursday and will be followed by two-hour wine tastings.

Guest lecturers include experts from Cal Poly, UC Davis, UC Berkeley, Allan Hancock College, the San Luis Obispo County Agricultural Commissions Office, and the Lodi-Woodbridge Grape Commission.

PCA credits are available.

For more information, call Michael Costello at ext. 6-4232. Non-Poly students may enroll on a space-available basis by contacting the Extended Education office at ext. 5-2033.

Two festival concerts planned at Open House

Artists-in-residence to give piano recital

Louis Goldstein, professor of music at the University of Wisconsin, will give a piano recital at Cal Poly as part of his artist-in-residency for the Music Department at 7:30 p.m., April 10, in the Davidson Music Center.

Goldstein will perform John Cage’s “Sonatas and Interludes,” which requires placing diverse objects between the strings of a grand piano to create an effective percussion orchestra under the control of two hands. Goldstein’s commission for the Sonatas and Interludes was ranked in the “10 Best of ’96: Classical Albums” by Spectrum magazine.

Goldstein has been a member of the University of Wisconsin faculty since 1979. He has performed widely as a piano soloist in the United States, most notably at the Hollywood Bowl and Orchestra Hall in Chicago, and Concertgebouw Hall in New York City.

The recital is sponsored by the Cal Poly College of Liberal Arts and Music Department.

For more information call the Music Department at ext. 6-2406 or visit the department’s Web page at www.calpoly.edu/-mu.

Writing for GE courses to be taught in workshop

Cal Poly’s First Writing in General Education (WINGED) Workshop, a series of six sessions designed for faculty members who now include writing in General Education courses or who will incorporate writing into GE 201, will begin Friday, April 7.

Topics will include how to design effective assignments for new disciplines and how to grade those assignments efficiently.

Trainers Seguy Dills and Jim Howard, both English Department faculty members, have taught writing for more than 20 years. Both of them have undergraduate degrees in literature.

The workshop will meet from 1:30 to 4 p.m. in room 101 in Business Room 101.

For more information to sign up, call Kari Toi at the General Education office at ext. 6-2255 or e-mail mmond@calpoly.edu.

Artists-in-residence to speak, play April 26

Pianist and Cal Poly artist-in-residence Junius Kolb will talk about surviving the music business and will give an evening recital on April 26.

Kolb will present “Know the Score: Inspiration and Motivation for Surviving in the Business of Music” at 7:30 p.m., in the Davidson Music Center.

At 7:30 p.m. he will perform a piano recital featuring works by Chopin, Copland and Liszt in room 218 in the Davidson Music Center.

Kolb, an active piano performer in the United States and abroad, is a graduate of DePaul University, from which he received the 1994 Distinguished Alumni Award.

A frequent performer at the International Listz Festival in Hamilton, Ontario, he has also played in Germany, Great Britain, Luxembourg and Spain. He has appeared with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra and the U.S. Military Concert Band at West Point.

The lecture and recital are made possible with funds from the Cal Poly Plan. The College of Liberal Arts and the Music Department are co-sponsoring the event.

For more information call the Music Department at ext. 6-4154 of visit the department’s Web page at www.calpoly.edu/-mu.

Books at high noon continue in spring

Six book reviews are planned for spring quarter, all at noon in the Veranda Room of the Kennedy Library.

• Monday (April 10) - Jim Cushing (English) will review “Live as Various as Possible” by Charles O’Conner. It is described as “a very high quarter of New York’s literary and artistic life during the 1990s and 1980s.”

• April 20 - Phil Fetzer (Political Science), “The Moral Animal” by Robert Wright. Through the “new science of evolutionary psychology,” Wright discusses topics such as marriage, family, friends, custom and identity.

• April 27 - Laura-Mae Swiney (Librarians), “The Science of Love: Understanding Love and its Effects on Mind and Body” by Anthony Walsh. The book reviews research in the biological and psychological sciences and why love is vital to the healthy functioning of both individuals and societies.

• May 4 - William Grabenski (City and Regional Planning), “From Arose to Hightech: Architecture and Landscape Across the Mexican Border” by Lawrence A. Herbg. The book examines the tension of Mexican-U.S. relations through the architecture and landscape of the border.

• May 11 - Michael Oves (English), “River Horse: A Voyage Across America in a Wooden Hoosier Moon.” “River Horse” is the story of a journalist’s trip in a small cruising boat from New York City to Oregon, Oregon, at the mouth of the Columbia River.

For more information call Sariya Talip, Faculty Fulbright Program, at ext. 6-2244.

Professor Steven Mark to sign new book today

Cal Poly author and English Professor Steven Mark will introduce and sign copies of his new book, “Shakespeare and the Bible.” From 1 to 3 p.m. today in the College of Liberal Arts and the Music Department.

For more information call Rebecca Brown at ext. 6-3590.
Applicants sought for pre-doctoral program

April 18 is the deadline to apply for the CSU's 2000-2001 California Pre-Doctoral Program, designed to increase the diversity of CSU students who will continue their studies at the doctoral level and become eligible for teaching positions. A special emphasis will be placed on increasing the number of CSU students enrolled in graduate programs at UC campuses.

To be eligible, upper-division or master's degree students must be enrolled at a CSU institution as of spring 2000 and must continue to enroll at a CSU campus, thanks to $40,000 in Target Stores resources and donations from Sun Microsystems to the Computer Science Center.

The program provides:
- Travel funds for the student and faculty sponsor to visit Phil.D.-grazing institutions and to attend professional meetings appropriate to the student's development.
- Opportunity to apply for a fully funded summer internship for the student to participate in doctoral level research.
- Funds for other related activities, such as membership in professional organizations, special research costs, and graduate student application fee and test fees.

Selection will be based on major criteria: potential for successfully completing a doctoral program, probable effectiveness of the student-faculty plan, and degree of underrepresentation in the national pool of doctoral recipients in the applicant's proposed area of study.

For more information and an application, call Becky Powell, Graduate Programs, at ext. 6-2328.

Target donates $3,000 to Career Services

Target Stores has pledged $3,000 to Career Services "in appreciation of the partnering relationship that has developed over the years," said Mark Quinlan, Target Stores' area recruiting manager.

Target Sites selected Cal Poly as a grant recipient because of the significant number of management and business courses offered within the college, the diversity of the campus' population, and the store's relationship with Career Services.

Target has hired more than 20 Cal Poly graduates in the last five years and offers internships and career opportunities to Cal Poly students and graduates.

Target specified that the grant be used to help students in exploring and implementing career plans. Career Services Director Richard Equinoa plans to use the grant to add core pre-professional workstations in the Career Resource Center.

Students use the center to explore career options, conduct Internet research, and participate in Web Walk-Up, Career Services' on-line interview scheduling and job listing service.

Philosophy Department plans spring colloquium

April 18, 2000, 3:00-5:30 p.m. in the Philosophy Auditorium.

This informal colloquium series is planned for every Tuesday, with two presentations each day in AU 205.

- Stephen Bell (Philosophy) will present "Philosophical Arguments For and Against Affirmative Action," 3:00-3:30 p.m.
- Keith Almy (Philosophy), "Gaylibian Hermeneutics: Science and Creativism, Then and Now," 3:40-4:30 p.m.
- Fun Cushing (English) and Paul Miklowitz (Philosophy), "Reading Nietzsche's "The Gay Science,"" 4:30-5:30 p.m.

Spring plant sale, arboretum tours on tap

The Environmental Horticulture Center and the Arboretum will hold a spring plant sale in April.

- The plant sale, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., will offer quality discounts on landscape shrubs, hardy flowering perennials, succulents, herbs, ornamental grasses and more.
- Most of the plants come in 4-inch pots and are produced by the award-winning Associated Landscapes Contractors of America student team.
- The Environmental Horticulture Center will showcase the springtime beauty of the 50-acre arboretum, including the newly developed 2-acre expansion that includes a colorful garden of South African plants and recent additions to both the California and Australian gardens.
- The plants shop and arboretum are located at the Environmental Horticultural Science Unit.

For more information, call ext. 6-2388.

Foundations Board to meet April 14

The Foundation Board of Directors will hold a public meeting at 9 a.m. on April 14 in the Foundation Administration Building's 2nd Floor Conference Room.

For more information or to obtain a copy of the meeting agenda, call Executive Assistant Connie Damico at ext. 6-5211. A copy of the agenda packet is available for review at the Kennedy Library Reserve Desk and the Academic Senate Office.

Fitness classes offered at Rec Center

Cal Poly is opening two new, state-of-the-art computer laboratories equipped with donations from Sun Microsystems to teach students how to create software for the Internet and World Wide Web.

The Java Center Instructional Lab and the Java Center Projects Lab will be open to classes from every department at the university for instruction and research at all types of Internet applications, from business to family activities.

The labs will teach programming in Java, a programming language developed by Sun that allows the same software to run on many different kinds of computers, consumer gadgets and other devices.

With Java, different machines can communicate with one another more easily than before.

That flexibility has sped up the process of developing software for the Internet, said Robe Conover, dean of integrated media services and interim director of the two new facilities.

To equip the labs, Sun, donated $180,000 worth of computers, software, and workstations, as well as related software. Often Java component developers specifically for business, applications were donated by IBM.

"The goal is to provide high-quality instruction in Java with state-of-the-art systems and software and to provide students with opportunities to work on multidisciplinary teams to develop Internet applications, particularly in the professional fields for which Cal Poly is recognized," Clover said.

In the Java Center Projects Lab, a charter member of its Authorized Academic Java Campus program, which fosters collaboration with industry to give students hands-on experience with Java technology in a realistic business environment.

The university is the second in the United States and one of 15 in the world to receive that recognition.

In the Java Center Instructional Lab, located in the campus' Engineering East, Building, teams of students, professors and staff members will work on computer programs with industry.

The Java Center Instructional Lab, located in the Business Building, will be used in courses offered by several departments.

Providence Bank and officials from Sun Microsystems, Cal Poly's Information Technology Unit, and the city of San Luis Obispo will work on computer programs with industry.

The Ivey Center Instructional Lab, located in the Business Building, will be used in courses offered by several departments.

Draft Master Plan to be released for review

A preliminary draft of Cal Poly's new Master Plan will be available May 1 for campus and community review.

The draft plan, designed to balance land uses with enrollment demands for at least the next 20 years, is the result of two years of deliberation among key campus stakeholders, students and faculty and staff members.

Review of the initial document will take place throughout spring quarter, and it will be refined and reviewed again next fall and winter. The final Master Plan will be presented to the CSU Board of Trustees for approval in spring 2001, Cal Poly's 100th birthday.

"This Master Plan will be designed to meet emerging needs of our academic programs, said Linda Davoli, vice president for institutional planning, who is leading the effort. "Our campus and department have identified areas for program growth so the Master Plan can include appropriate buildings, laboratories and technology to meet these needs.

This plan is designed to accommodate, over the next 20 years, enrollment growth during the academic year of about 17 percent over present capacity. In addition, the
